

SENATOR WILLIAMSON.

"No man in Eastern Oregon stands higher in the affections of the people than Senator Williamson and he will come as near getting anything he may ask for of the republican voters as any man this side the mountains."

This is what the Dalles Chronicle says of a man whom it thinks would be a good candidate for the republican nomination for the governorship of Oregon. We of the eastern part of the state, who really represent Eastern Oregon and not the western part as do most of those living at or near The Dalles, desire to pay some compliments to Senator Williamson, The Chronicle's candidate. It is true that The Chronicle failed to speak very courteously of the candidates for the same office who live in Pendleton, but this will not deter us of the real Eastern Oregon from according to the Prineville statesman the credit due him for excellent character and valuable public works.

Senator Williamson is a man of very high standing throughout the state, and he has many friends hereabouts. He has a very good record as a legislator, and where he resides is known as a citizen of fine personal character. In the event he be nominated, his opponents can truthfully say nothing derogatory of him as a man.—East Oregonian. (Dem.)

Belief in the Darwinian theory of the descent of the human race from monkeys, and not by the direct creative act of the Almighty, has just received a most confirmatory impetus by a discovery recently announced in the Cincinnati Enquirer. True, the Enquirer gives out the discovery in a tentative way and modestly calls it a "possible explanation;" but for all that it merits as high a place among the hypotheses of Darwinism as many others that evolutionists have propounded with as much dogmatism as if they were mathematical demonstrations. The Enquirer is not satisfied with the idea that a drowning man stretches out his hands for aid or "to catch at straws," as the saying is, and suggests as a "possible explanation" that "the drowning man, losing all his acquired habits, and even those inherited from more recent parents, in his terror goes back to the instinctive movements of his arboreal ancestors, (the monkeys) and his movements are those of the frightened ape in seeking safety by clinging to the nearest tree." Did ever human reason offer anything more convincing as to man's ancestry than this? We trust no irrevocable critic will say that a "frightened ape" would be just as likely to "seek safety" by using his tail as his hands, when "clinging to the nearest tree," for that would spoil it all.

George W. Davis, ex-clerk of the School Land Board, was in Kern county a month ago where he swore to an answer in the suit brought against him and his bondsmen for the recovery of $30,932.08, which he is charged with having collected during his term of office over and above the amount that he turned into the state treasury. The answer is a formal denial of all the allegations made against him. His attorneys, however, have agreed, for the purpose of the trial, to admit the shortage and base their defense on the statute of limitations and other legal technicalities, and if these are not sufficient to constitute a defense they admit that judgment must be rendered against their client.

The Times-Mountaineer contributes the following to the controversy about "yellow" journalism: "Call it what you may—'yellow,' 'black' or 'green'—journalism is one of the safeguards of the government." We know democrats in this town, not religious men, or church members, who would not let the San Francisco "Safeguard of Civilization,"—God save the mark!—known as the Examiner, into their houses; not because of its politics, but because it, like all the other "yellow kids," is a vile, unclean rag that caters to all that is beastly in human nature. So you see, men and brethren, there is no accounting for tastes.

The following personal appears in the La Grande Chronicle. Mr. McCamant's ambition will probably create little surprise, although this is the first public announcement we have seen made of it: "Wallace W. McCamant, a prominent republican politician of Portland, was here Saturday and Sunday on business and politics. Mr. McCamant is a candidate for congress to succeed Moody, and is beginning to set a few stakes in that direction."

Brain Food Nonsense. Another ridiculous food fad has been branded by the most competent authorities. They have dispelled the silly notion that one kind of food is needed for brain, another for muscles, and still another for bones. A correct diet will not only nourish a particular part of the body, but it will sustain every other part. Yet, however good your food may be, its nutrition is destroyed by indigestion or dyspepsia. You must prepare for their appearance or prevent their coming by taking regular doses of Green's August Flower, the favorite medicine of the healthy millions. A few doses aids digestion, stimulates the liver to healthy action, purifies the blood, and makes you feel buoyant and vigorous. You can get Dr. G. C. Green's reliable remedies at Blakeley's drug store. Get Green's Special Almanac.

A Fireman's Case Call. "I stuck to my engine, although every joint ached and every nerve was racked with pain," writes G. W. Bellamy, a locomotive fireman, of Burlington, Iowa. "I was weak and pale, without any appetite and all run down. As I was about to give up, I got a bottle of Electric Bitters and, after taking it, I felt as well as I ever did in my life." Weak, sickly, run down people always gain new life, strength and vigor from their use. Try them. Satisfaction guaranteed by G. C. Blakeley, the druggist. Price 50 cents. 2
