WAYSIDE GLEANINGS.

Remember Professor Sandvig's social dance at the Baldwin tonight.

A. F. Haynes, of Dufr, has been granted a patent on a hay and grain un-loader and stacker.

Oysters now command the highest price ever known and have sold as high as $5.50 per sack, says the Olympia Standard.

D. H. Williams, a former of Great Britain, and a resident of Canada, yesterday declared his intentions of becoming a citizen of the United States.

It is again particularly requested that parties having claims against the carnival shall present the same without delay to Mr. J. C. Hostetler or any member of the executive committee.

Warrants for all audited claims against the carnival are now in the hands of the treasurer, Mr. J. C. Hostetler, cashier of French & Co.'s Bank, who will pay them over to their owners on application.

There are two or three well-defined cases of diphtheria in the city, one case below the bluff and the others above. They are each under strict quarantine and no extensive spread of the disease is anticipated.

Oregon is all right. It has received the highest award for collecting farm exhibits, having the finest, most comprehensive and correctly labeled display of grains, grasses and forage plants; at the Pan-American Exposition. There were 742 bundles and 399 varieties.

A New York man who found a burglar in his house held him up at the point of a revolver, searched him and found in his pocket $10, which he took, as he said, to pay for some crockery the burglar had broken. He then let the fellow go, and now the burglar is wondering whether he can have the householder arrested for robbery.

The Times-Mountaineer is doing everything in its little power which power is the small end of nothing rubbed out—to make a future fruit and vegetable exhibit at this place an impossibility. As THE CHRONICLE sees it, at this particular juncture, the only way to prevent the utter failure of such an exhibit next year is to give the editor of the Times-Mountaineer absolute control of the entire horticultural exhibit and then "amateurs like Doc Sanders" and K. H. Weber and W. H. Taylor will humbly take a back seat.

Under the heading, "The Dalles Fair, a Grand Success From Start to Finish," the Heppner Times says: "Dave McAtee and his daughter, Miss Vallejo, returned Monday night from The Dalles, where they had attended the district fair and street carnival. Dave speaks in the highest praise of the event and reports the entire carnival, the fruit exhibits, the races and all other features simply grand. The Dalles citizens and their country neighbors did themselves proud in this big fair, and deserve the greatest credit for the able and efficient manner in which the same was handled."

A merchant who had two stores in small villages tried an experiment. He put a bargain counter in each store containing the same articles at exactly the same price. In the newspaper of one village he did not advertise and sold goods amounting to $984. In the store the same month, in the village where he did advertise he sold goods amounting to $1,725. In commenting on the result of his experiment that merchant says: "People who read the advertisement will pass by one of my stores and drive miles to the other for what they could have gotten at the same price in my store at their door."—Ex.

On complaint of Ben Wilson, of this city, Justice Brownhill has issued a warrant for the arrest of Emile Fish, who is charged with having passed on Mr. Wilson a forged check for $300 on the First National Bank of The Dalles. Fish skipped the country, leaving a wife behind him in a delicate condition of health. He is described as a man of forty-five years, six feet in height, weighing about 180 pounds, of light complexion with light mustache, and accompanied by a young man of about twenty years of age. He pretends, or did pretend, to be a cattle buyer. Some time ago he worked for J. D. Cooper and Mr. Linton of the Columbia precinct, and subsequently moved to The Dalles and rented a house east of the old fair grounds, where his wife resides. It was rumored yesterday that he had gone to Idaho but the sheriff is still hot on his trail.

Death of George Moabus.

The Missoula, Montana, Missoulian of October 1st contains the following account of the circumstances connected with the death of George Moabus, a well-known and highly respected Dalles boy, whose untimely end was deeply regretted by a large circle of friends and acquaintances here. The article will at least afford the friends of the deceased the melancholy pleasure of knowing how much he was respected among his friends and fellow-employees in Missoula. The Missoulian says:

George Moabus, a Northern Pacific switchman, was killed at the company's yards Sunday morning by being caught between two bad-order cars which he was unchaining. A coroner's jury last night returned a verdict that death was the result of an accident while in the discharge of duty, but whether due to carelessness of the engineer or defective machinery of the engine the jury were unable to determine.

The accident was a most peculiar one, and of which the exact cause may possibly never be known. In company with a switching crew, of which he was foreman, Moabus was occupied in undoing the fastenings of a damaged car that had been brought in for repair, the draw head having been broken away. As a matter of safety the engine had been uncoupled from the car and backed away several feet. After getting between the cars, without warning, and for a reason that some of the trainmen are unable to explain, the engine started forward suddenly, catching the unfortunate man by the head between the cars. Death was instantaneous.

The dead man was taken to the undertaking rooms of Hayes & Marsh, where the largest body of railroad men that has ever assembled in Missoula for a like purpose, yesterday afternoon accompanied the remains to the Northern Pacific depot, by which road they were shipped to The Dalles, Oregon, the home of the deceased's mother, for interment. The sympathetic mourners were fellow workmen of the dead man, representing the orders of Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen and Switchmen's Union of North America, the deceased being a member of Tacoma lodge, No. 155, in the latter order. A large number of floral pieces that decked the casket on its last journey, and a deep gloom among railroad employes attested faithfully of the esteem in which the dead man was held.

Moabus was about twenty-five years of age and had been employed in the local yards for four years. He is survived by a brother, John, who is also employed as switchman here, and a mother living at The Dalles, Oregon. The death is particularly an unfortunate one, inasmuch as the resignation of the young man was in the hands of the division officials, it being his intention to quit work last night and leave for Oregon to be near his widowed mother.

The Umatilla House barber shop has recently been enlarged and fitted up with the only steam-heated bath rooms in the city. All the furniture and appointments are new and of the best. For the convenience of business men the place will be kept open, until further notice, till 10 o'clock p. m. 011-1m

Mrs. Sparlin will give lessons in stenography at the residence of Mrs. S. E. Henderson, Third street, near Madison. 010-1ud

We beg to present a picture of a late arrival. While up-to-date, the design is quiet and in good taste.
