...containing the money. The robbery was into the darkness and was gone. Craft describes the man as tall and slim with a light complexion. He wore dark clothes and a narrow-brimmed hat. A telephone message was immediately sent to the central office and the red light was turned on, but the nightwatchman didn't show up till the robber had abundance of time to have reached a place of safety. Craft is a poor man and had brought the money with him from home, intending to go back by way of Dufur and pay a store bill.

Williamson's Candidacy.

What nomination will State Senator Williamson receive? asks the Telegram and then proceeds to answer as follows: "Of the many available men in Eastern Oregon he, at least, is apparently a sure winner for something. That he will not be overlooked at the convention next spring is considered a certainty by well-informed republicans of this city. "Senator Williamson is spoken of as a successor to congressman Moody and also as a successor to Secretary of State Dunbar. There is quite a boomlet having as its object Williamson's candidacy for congress. This is against his wishes, however, for his preference is the post now filled by Dunbar.

"It is asserted that politicians unfriendly to Moody are trying to defeat him by means of Williamson; not that they love the latter more, but that they care for Moody less. Having no inclination to be a congressman, nor to be used as a club against Moody, Williamson refuses to entertain the idea of representing the Second congressional district of Oregon at Washington.

"Senator Williamson stated recently that his ambition was to be secretary of state, and, to use an overworked expression, he is not a 'miscellaneous candidate.' His career has been quite meteoric, for it is only within the past three years he has attracted attention throughout the state. Thus far he has served in the legislature as representative one term, and is now filling his first term as a senator. Having avoided becoming a rabid partisan, he stands well in both factions of the republican party."

Paralyzed the Wrong Man.

"I'll give that waiter," said Rivers, "an order that will paralyze him."

"What will you have, sir?" presently asked the waiter.

"Bring me," replied Rivers, "some verulam and ova."

"Yes, sir."

The waiter, a seedy looking man in spectacles, went away with a strange gleam in his eye, and returned about fifteen minutes later with a large platter containing something hot.

"Here you are, sir," he said. "Bacon and eggs. In ordinary English it would be 25 cents. Culpam poena premit bones, as we used to say at college. Anything else, sir?"—Chicago Tribune.

A Pointer

Promptly at the advertised hour of the big Piano Sale inaugurated by Menefee & Parkins, a large crowd had assembled ready to take the first glimpse at the magnificent line of high-grade instruments on special sale.

One would naturally suppose that in these days people would be supplied, as far as Pianos are concerned; however such is not the case, and when we say that, with the 300 and over manufacturers in the United States, they cannot supply the demand, it will prove to the public that there is an increasing and constant demand for Pianos.

In opening a Special Sale, rarely, if ever, does it occur wherein an established institution, located right in your own city, whose reliability and responsibility are well known, offers to its citizens an opportunity that this sale presents, and to intending purchasers we beg to affirm—

First: That this is positively a genuine Piano Sale.

Second: That you will find more first-class makes to select from than have ever been shown in your city before at one and the same time.

Third: That we have no shoddy or stenciled instruments; nothing but first-class and absolutely high-grade pianos.

Fourth: Kimball Pianos, Chickering Pianos, Weber Pianos, Steinway Pianos, are conceded by the world's greatest critics to be the one standard par excellence of piano creation.

Fifth: There is no use putting off your intended purchase. We have the instruments, we have the prices, we have the terms, and with your assistance we will do the rest.

Don't delay; don't neglect this grand offer. Every instrument must be sold; and as to price, we won't quarrel.

Yours for good Pianos and Organs,

MENEFFEE & PARKINS

John A. Haylock will teach a term of school in district No. 18, Klickitat county, Oregon, commencing Monday the 21st inst.

Mrs. Caroline Kennedy has received her Spanish war claim of $12 per month, on account of her son. The pension was obtained by Mrs. Meins.

Naxton & Walther put a force of men to work yesterday afternoon on the Court street sewer contract. They commenced at the outlet of the sewer on Mill creek, west of Union.

Leo Schanno got back today on the noon train from a short hunting trip on the Albany prairie. He brought with him twenty-three Mongolian pheasants, but whether he shot them in the old-fashioned way or with silver bullets he alone knows.

B. H. Grant, the cigar man, has on sale a lot of photographic pictures of the late President McKinley that as representatives of the dead chieftain and as works of art are the equal of anything we have ever seen.

The ladies of the local lodge of D. of H. regret to announce that Grand Chief of Honor Mrs. Wilda Belknap will not be able to be here next Thursday night, as was announced in The Chronicle a couple of days ago. It is hoped that Mrs. Belknap will be here at a later date, of which due announcement will be made.

A Salem paper says: "Mrs. E. F. Moody has presented to the state a large number of palms, cacti and other large potted plants, to be used in decorating the interior of the state capital. The plants have been placed in the two legislative halls and in the rotunda. The Oregon Agricultural College made a similar gift not long ago."

The Dalles has a most respectable and well-behaved young gentleman named Fred Frye, who is entitled to heavy damages from a sacrilegious young scoundrel now in the county jail, and happily a certain candidate for the state penitentiary, who is masquerading under the same name. The circumstance is annoying to the Dalles boy and the city is there is no help for it.

Another hold-up, not previously reported, occurred Saturday night near the O. R. & N. Co.'s freight depot. The intended victim was a stranger whose name has not been learned. His assailant adopted the usual tactics of shoving a pistol under the stranger's nose and ordering him to hold up his hands. The stranger had $140 on his person, but just about the time the robber was in the act of getting his hands on it one of the company's employes came upon the scene with a lantern in his hand, and the robber took to his heels.

It is said that Bishop Potter and Senator Depew were on their way to a social function a few days ago, at which both were to speak, when the ecclesiastic, after greeting the senator, said: "By our mutual presence at this affair I am reminded of the experience of two oysters in attendance upon an ecclesiastical festival. They were swimming about in a very large tub of highly diluted soup. One of them encountered the other and said to him: 'What is this, any how?' 'This is a church fair,' said the second oyster. 'A church fair! Then what in heaven's name do they want with both of us?'"

The Wiedemann Big Show, now playing at the Vogt, had a crowded house last night, and well deserved it. It was a good, clean, refined show from start to finish, without a suggestion of coarseness or vulgarity and with exhibitions of talent in the several players of a very high order. If one might distinguish where all was so good, it might be said that the fire dance and butterfly dance were really magnificent, and the specialties between acts were as good as anything ever seen in The Dalles. The play tonight is "Little Miss Thompson," and if it is anything like as good as the "Down in Egypt" of last night it will do.

Sheriff Kelly, Deputy Sheriff Wood and Officer Ailkey, who work together with admirable and effective harmony, have run down E. Fish who recently beat Ben Wilson of the East End, out of $200 by means of a bogus check on the First National Bank of this city. It was a pretty piece of detective work for which these officials deserve much credit. Fish is a "alike" scoundrel and Ben Wilson is not his only victim in The Dalles. He has been in various ways in some amounting to two or three hundred dollars. The officials got on his trail after he left here on the Sunday night following the carnival and never let up till they traced him to Boise City where they had him arrested this morning by the Boise chief of police. As soon as a requisition is obtained from Governor Geer the sheriff and his deputies will proceed to Boise and bring the prisoner here for trial. Fish is certain to get a term in the penitentiary.

The Indians who participated in The Dalles carnival are having a good time down in Portland. Last Sunday evening they attended divine service at the First Baptist church. They were chaperoned by Colonel Hawkins and were assigned seats in the front, and Chief Schan-nal-wich and Hash-nash-shut were invited to sit on the platform with the pastor, Rev. Alexander Blackburn. Before commencing his sermon Dr. Blackburn made a few appropriate remarks to the visitors, which were translated by the interpreter. Following the sermon a selection was played on the pipe organ for them, and afterwards an informal reception was held by the Indians, at which the members of the church who were present were introduced.

When Father Bronsegeest learned yesterday of the death of Wenceslaus Pashek he immediately communicated by telegraph with Father Dominic, president of Mount Angel college, and requested him to break the sad news to Mr. Pashek's eldest son, Alois, who is, or rather was, a student there. Without a moment's delay Father Dominic mailed a letter to Father Bronsegeest inclosing a check in favor of Mrs. Pashek for $65, the full amount that her husband had paid the college in advance for the education of the boy, and adding that the check was sent thus hurriedly lest the bereaved widow should be in need of the money and that after the funeral, should Mrs. Pashek be able to get along without the boy's assistance, the college would take him back and educate him free of expense. Father Dominic then gently broke the news to the fatherless boy and sent him here to attend the funeral. No wonder such men as Father Dominic find a warm place in the hearts of their co-religionists. As an Irish Methodist preacher once said in the hearing of the writer, this is "religion with a bone in it."

Joe Craft, a rancher from the Nansene neighborhood, was held up last night in this city and robbed of $155 in gold. Mr. Craft had come to town with a load of wheat and was camped with his team on the street a little south of Lane's blacksmith shop. He had just returned from down town, had fed his team and was preparing his bed for the night when a man stepped out from behind an adjacent wood pile and, poking a pistol in his face, ordered him to throw up his hands. Craft instantly obeyed and the robber, as if he knew exactly what he was about, stuck his hand in Craft's right pocket and pulled out a
