For Rent—House at end of Third street, north side. Will be rented to responsible party. Inquire at this office. Oct14-1w

The CHRONICLE office is indebted to Mr. Carnaby, of the American Market, for a very beautiful calendar for the coming year of 1902.

The Yakima and Warm Spring Indians, who have been contributing to the gaiety of the Portland carnival, got back to civilization last night on the Bailey Gatzert.

The Bailey Gatzert people have built a plank sidewalk from First street to their boat landing at the foot of Union. Lumber is being hauled from the yards of J. T. Peters & Co. to build a wharf and platform.

A marriage license was issued yesterday to William McNab and Emma Van Patten, of Sherman county. The couple were subsequently married at St. Peter's Catholic church by Father Bronsgeest.

The funeral of the late Wenceslaus Pashek, which took place from St. Peter's Catholic church this morning, was largely attended, especially by the friends and neighbors of the deceased. The services at the church were conducted by Father Bronsgeest.

Word has just been received here of the recent death in Husum, Schleswig, Germany, at the age of 73 years, of Mr. J. E. Jacobsen, father of E. Jacobsen and Mrs. J. Nitschke, of this city. Mr. Jacobsen had been ailing for a long time and his death was not unexpected.

County Attorney Daroh, of Goldendale, is in the city. Mr. Daroh says the Goldendale murderer, Ferris, cannot, under the Washington laws, receive his ultimate sentence until thirty days after the late Apoliton of his case by the supreme court. He cannot therefore be sentenced at the term of court which opens in Goldendale next Tuesday. After the sentence is pronounced he will still have thirty days before he can be hanged. Should the governor refuse to interfere in the case—and there is absolutely no hope of interference—Ferris will be hanged in the Goldendale jail.

Hugh Farmer brought to town today a Gloria Mundi apple that measures seventeen inches in circumference and weighs exactly two pounds. Till somebody beats this we shall claim that The Dalles raises the biggest apples in the world. The apple may be seen in Maier & Benton's store.

Sheriff Kelly left last night for Boise, Idaho, to bring back E. Fish, who was arrested yesterday by the Boise chief of police on advice sent that official by Mr. Kelly. Fish is the man who passed a worthless check for $300 on Ben Wilson, of the East End. He offered to come back here without a requisition from the governor.

Harry Eggerton, the scalp bounty young man, who did not beat Linn county, who recently escaped from the jail at Eugene, is at large yet and probably will not be caught, says the Albany Democrat. While in jail Eggerton gave the game away. He was on his way home from the Philippines when he fell in with the principal in the swindle. With headquarters at Portland and an immense quantity of scalps secured in non-bounty states they went out to the county seats and disposed of their scalps. The man who run the game was with Eggerton when he was arrested, but escaped with about $800 on his person, while Eggerton got almost nothing.

At 8:15 last night a fire was discovered in Mr. Duncan's barn in the alley back of William McCrum's carpenter shop. The fire laddies responded promptly to the alarm and in a few minutes the chemical engine had the blaze under control. The barn is an old shack belonging to the city and is of little value. Probably $20 will make it as good as it was before. It contained three tons of baled wheat hay, the property of Mr. Duncan, on which there was no insurance. The bales are only scorched on the outside, but the chemicals used to extinguish the fire have probably ruined them for fodder. The promptness with which the chemical engine extinguished the fire has once more justified the wisdom of the city fathers in its purchase.

Chas. A. Taylor, the well-known playwright, whose play, "The King of the Opium Ring," scored such a single success in this city a year ago, has written a new play, stronger and better than anything he has heretofore attempted. It deals with the life of a beautiful young girl, daughter of an immensely wealthy diamond merchant in New York City. Two scenes are laid in old New England, and two in the great metropolis. It is entitled "Daughter of the Diamond King," and is produced with almost a carload of special scenery and effects. According to reports it bids fair to be one of the greatest successes of the season. With a company of twenty persons, headed by La Belle Laurette, who created one of the leading roles in the "King of the Opium Ring," scoring an instantaneous success in the part. "Daughter of the Diamond King" will be at the Vogt Oct. 21st.

Mr. Louis J. Gates and Miss Gunhilda M. Beck were united in marriage at 10:30 this forenoon at the residence of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Beck, of this city. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Robert Warner, in the presence of about a score of friends and relatives of the bride. Following the wedding the company sat down to an elegant luncheon after which the young couple left on a wedding trip to Portland. On their return trip they will make their home in Arlington, where the groom is engaged in business. The bride grew up to womanhood in this city and no Dalles girl was ever more highly esteemed for all that is sweet and womanly in her sex. The bride's many friends here wish her and her husband many happy days.

The play "Little Miss Thompson" drew a large crowd at the Vogt opera house last night, and to say that it was a well-pleased crowd is putting it very mildly. It is very seldom, indeed, that The Dalles is visited by a troop of players that have been as successful as the Wiedemann's in winning universal applause. It is the common talk of the street that no better show at double the price of admission has been seen here for many a day. To say nothing of the play itself, which was excellent, the specialties introduced between the acts, such as the dancing of the Mullally sisters, Nellie Wiedemann's electric and fire dance, and the marvelous trombone performance of Charles Barrington on what appeared to be nothing more than a sheet of ordinary card paper, and the still more marvelous imitation of a banjo with no visible instrument—but his lips, were each alone worth double the price of admission. There were no delays between acts; every minute of the two hours and a quarter being occupied with something amusing. And, best of all, there wasn't the semblance of anything low or vulgar, or suggestive of anything offensive to a refined taste. Tonight the company plays "The Major's Daughter," a society comedy, and an amusing time is promised. Our prediction is that the house will be crammed.

What Led to Fish's Arrest.

In reciting yesterday some of the circumstances that led to the arrest of E. Fish for passing bogus checks an injustice was unintentionally done to Constable Jackson, than whom there is no public officer here or anywhere more faithful in the discharge of his duties. It was Mr. Jackson that first got on Fish's trail after the latter had shipped the town. Mr. Jackson got possession of a letter which Fish had mailed from Umatilla to his wife enclosing a post-office order for a sum of money. This letter Mr. Jackson placed in the hands of the sheriff. He then learned from another source that Fish's intention was to first go to Sumpter, and if not satisfied with that place to go to Boise City. Mr. Jackson kept on the fellow's trail and on the very morning of his arrest at Boise Mr. Jackson mailed a letter about the case to the chiefs of police in Sumpter and Boise. Officer Allsky found that Fish's son, who went with him from here, wrote from Boise to Mr. Gifford, the photographer, asking to have mailed to his address at Boise some photographs that he had taken before leaving here.

There is something peculiarly sad in connection with Fish's crime. His wife, who is believed to have had no knowledge of her husband's guilt, and who lives in a little house east of the old fair grounds, is about to become a mother. It is not believed that she is at present in actual want, but she will soon need such care and attention as her scanty means will not be able to provide.
