See for Yourself

You don't need to be told that H. S. & M. suits and overcoats have the touch of true style, you can see it for yourself in the cut; you can see it even better in the suit and overcoat itself, ready for you to try on here at any time. We have plenty to show of many styles—suits and overcoats—good clothes.

Steven Nelson, aged about 64 years, and an old-time resident of Hood River, died at St. Vincent's hospital yesterday and was brought to Hood River today for interment.

All members of Fern Lodge, Degree of Honor, are requested to be present at the meeting to be held tonight. Mrs. Wilda Belknap, grand chief of honor, will meet with the lodge, her dates having been so arranged as to make her meeting with Fern Lodge possible this evening.

The new mail contract between The Dalles and Wrentham went into effect yesterday. The daily round trip is made Wednesdays and Saturdays. Parades living contingents to the route can have their mail delivered in boxes on the roadside by applying to Postmaster J. M. Patterson, of The Dalles.

Another newspaper has gone to the boneyard. The Goldendale Journal, that started out demo-Bryanite-pop and anything else to beat the republicans, has suspended publication. Its last three issues were democratic-socialist-populist-anarchistic, and then it jawped and died. Requeant in pace.

Mr. Le Claire, owner and superintendent of the Don Juan mine in the Greenhorn district, this was first discovered by Dick and Top Kelly of this county, in the city on his way to Portland. Mr. Le Claire is also superintendent of the Richmond Mining Company of the same district, which owns one of the richest mines in Eastern Oregon.

Top Kelly, an old-time Wasco county man, who owned a ranch twenty years ago on the Deschutes ridge east of the Warner ranch, near the head of the grade leading to Sbera's Bridge, has struck it rich by all accounts as a miner in the Greenhorn district. Top was a third owner in the Phycbe mine, which was sold the other day for $150,000. Besides this he has large interests in other mines that alone make him wealthy. Top is a good fellow and a first-class ruckler, who is deserving of his good luck.

The grand scenic production, "Daughter of the Diamond King," will be the attraction at the Vogt Monday, Oct. 21st. It is from the pen of that well-known playwright, Chas. A. Taylor, author of the "King of the Opium Ring," another popular production. The play is built about the life of a young New England lassie, both young and handsome, who is a daughter of one of New York City's leading diamond merchants. Produced with appropriate scenery and effects, and with a cast of twenty artists, headed by the charming La Belle Laurette, it need not seem strange, when stated on good authority, that Mr. Taylor's new production has surpassed his vaunted hopes.

The Albany Herald publishes the full text of the complaint in the damage suit of Attorney General Blackburn's son, Arch, against George L. Rees, of Linn county, for alienating the affections of his wife. The suit is for $10,000. It says that the plaintiff introduced Rees to his wife in May, 1898, and that soon he began his wiles that resulted in her leaving him and going with Rees to Portland, basking in the smiles of said Rees. Finally Rees put up the money for a divorce suit in Columbia county, and completed the ruin of his home. They had one child. Hewitt & Sox and Weatherford & Wyatt are attorneys for Arch Blackburn. The suit is the talk of the Willamette valley.

Wiedemann's Big Show presented a very clever comedy entitled "The Major's Daughter," at the Vogt last night, to a crowded house. This is undoubtedly the best popular-priced attraction that has ever appeared in our city. Their plays are all new and well staged, and the performances go with a vim that keeps the interest of the large audience from start to finish. Tonight they present the famous comedy-drama, "The Great Divorce Case." The local series of Eagles will attend this evening's performance in a body to show their respect for their brother Eagles in the company. Friday night the play will be "The Steam Laundry," Saturday matinee, "The Village Belle," and Saturday night they present their $10,000 scenic and costumed production of "The Sea of Ice."

Mrs. W. E. Campbell, of this city, received a dispatch this morning from La Grande announcing the sudden death of her husband near that place, where he had been engaged on a government survey. The remains were to have arrived here this morning, but for some reason did not come and the particulars of his death are not known at this writing. Mr. Campbell, however, had been in falling health for some time and his death probably occurred from natural causes. He was a native son of Oregon, having been born of pioneer stock in Clackamas county about fifty years ago. He was at one time county surveyor of this county, as was his father before him. He was a most upright, honorable man, a sincere and earnest Christian and a devout member of the M. E. church. He leaves a wife and five sons.

At the play last night while Miss Myrtle Vane was singing the closing notes of an encore a number of young female hoodlums sitting in the middle column of seats in front of the singer, two or three rows back of the front row, showed their Dalles breeding in fine style by cutting up in a variety of ways so as to express their contempt for the singer. One of the girls—they weren't ladies although they were old enough to be marriageable—pointed an opera glass at the singer while another girl asked in audible voice: "Did you see that note in your opera glass?" and still another, in open ridicule, tapped her throat with her finger. The censor has no idea at this writing who the girls were that were guilty of this vulgarity, but it devoutly prays the Lord to have mercy on the man that has the misfortune to get one of them for a wife.

In Memoriam.

Last Sunday's Oregonian contained the following:
"In loving memory of the late Miss Ella Booth, who died at her home, 770 Montana avenue, Tuesday morning, after a brief illness. She was a resident of this place and resided with her sister, Mrs. Moffitt. It will be remembered how her father was killed about eight years ago in the railroad yards, their mother dying a few years previous at The Dalles, leaving the girls alone. They had no relatives to sympathize with them in their sad bereavement, but had many kind friends and neighbors who gave them a kindly hand, for they were loved by all who knew them. Miss Ella was of a very retiring disposition, and a patient sufferer, but she bore up to the last with great fortitude until the Lord called her home to meet her loved ones gone before."

An Aid to the Buyer...

The Pianos which have been endorsed by the most eminent experts are now on exhibition right here in your city, and are offered at prices upon easy terms of payment, heretofore never attempted by a reliable house.

The laws underlying the theories of standard piano construction are today an unacquainted feature with nine hundred and ninety-nine people out of every thousand, and in the advanced race for business many cheap and inferior instruments are being offered for sale through various avenues by an unscrupulous class of illiterate vendors.

When you stop to consider that the Steinway, the great Kimball, the wonderful Weber, the peerless Chickering, are conceded by the world's greatest critics to be the acme of piano construction, you need not hesitate to buy now.

Thus far the business already transacted during this special sale has been of the most flattering type, and we beg to offer through the columns of this paper our hearty appreciation and many thanks for the liberal patronage bestowed upon us, and our earnest endeavor will be to please and satisfy the most skeptical, with a positive and distinct guarantee with each and every instrument sold at this really reduced-price and genuine piano sale.

Yours for good Pianos,
