WAYSIDE CLEANINGS.

Jessie Nelson, a son of the Land O' Cake, today took out his first citizenship papers.

Judge Blakeley today appointed Malcolm McLunis administrator of the estate of the late Wencelaud Pashek.

Homr Davenport, the great cartoonist, will lecture in Pendleton Saturday night for the benefit of the Pendleton Academy.

Agnes Ostering, a subject of the King of Sweden and Norway, today declared her intention of becoming a citizen of the United States.

A marriage license was issued yesterday afternoon to George Ward, son of Patrick Ward, of Kingsley, and Miss Maggie Tomalson.

A new line of children's school hats and caps received at Campbell & Williams millinery parlors. At reasonable prices. Call and see them. 023-1f

Rev. M. M. Bledsoe, of Arlington, who is well known in the Baptist circles of The Dalles, has accepted a call to the Calvary Baptist church of Portland.

Mrs. P. J. Stadlerman, who has been ill for a week with typhoid fever, was considerably better today than at any time since she took ill, and is getting along as well as could be expected.

Sam Moore, of Corvallis, is the proud possessor of a brick that was used in the construction of the old church at Jamestown, the first English settlement in the United States. The brick is nearly 800 years old.

Mrs. George Snipes is dangerously ill of pneumonia at her home west of town. She was attacked with the disease about a week ago and her condition at noon today gave little hope of her recovery. Mrs. Snipes is 65 years of age.

It is with sincere regret that we announce the dangerous illness of W. W. Williams at his home in this city. Mr. Williams was taken down last Friday with obstruction of the bowels and has since suffered intensely. Every effort of his physicians failed to give him relief, and this afternoon, as a last resort, a surgical operation was attempted, but it was either that or death, and while the chances are against recovery, the patient's many friends devoutly hope and pray that the operation may be successful.

Deputy Sheriff Wood and Officer Aitky arrested in the East End last night young Archie McCully, an orphan lad of some 8 or 9 years, who was committed to the Boys' and Girls' Home from The Dalles about a year ago, but who lately ran away from the home and beat his way back here. The boy was placed in the county jail and Sheriff Kelly has notified the superintendent of the home of the lad's arrest.

Mrs. Robert Elton, of Mill Creek, left at this office today a box of big ripe strawberries, whose size and appearance would do credit to the month of May. They are principally of the Sharpless variety, and some of them measure over four inches in circumference. Mrs. Elton says she has had ripe strawberries all summer and would have had plenty to sell if the vines had only had a little proper care. In this connection it is proper to observe that October strawberries have a wondrous adaptation to the editorial stomach.

One of the two big generators of the Wasco Warehouse Company's electric light plant has arrived here from the East and will be taken out in a few days to White river falls. The generator is such an immense affair that the Portland Bridge Company will have to get a special wagon from Portland to take it out. The delay in the arrival of the other generator makes it uncertain when the flouring mill will be able to start, but this will probably not be later than December 1st. Meanwhile the old electric plant will be used for the street arc lights, which will be put in operation about the 15th of November.

Messrs. French, Mays and Houghton, who own the entire north side of Second street between Washington and Federal, are doing a handsome thing for that most important part of the street in constructing a cement gutter the entire length of the block. This is a much-needed improvement and one that will last for an age. Nearly half of the block on the south side is similarly improved, and as the balance is owned by a man who never lags behind his neighbors in the matter of needed improvements, we hope soon to have the pleasure of announcing that both sides of the street have cement gutters all the length of the block in question.

A special meeting of the city council was held last night to receive and act upon the plan of assessment for the Court street sewer, which has been made by a special committee consisting of J. E. Barnett, G. W. Dietzel and J. C. Crandall. Beyond the formal acceptance of the plan of assessment and a lengthy discussion of matters relating thereto, little was accomplished and definite action was deferred to an adjourned meeting to be held tonight at 7:30 o'clock. Councilman Liebe, having moved into another ward, submitted his resignation, which was accepted, and on motion it was agreed to defer the election of his successor till the next regular monthly meeting.

From the Portland Telegram it is learned that a man from Klickitat county, giving his name as Hector, jumped from a Vancouver car last Saturday, with serious consequences. Hector, without knowing it, had passed the street he intended to get off at, and when he learned his mistake he jumped off the car in an opposite direction from that at which it was traveling at full speed and was thrown heavily to the ground, striking on his face. He was severely bruised and cut about the head and was picked up unconscious and taken back to town. THE CHRONICLE presumes that the victim of the accident is Mike Hector, a well-to-do farmer who lives six or eight miles east of Golden-dale.

Coroner Butts and a jury consisting of W. A. Kirby, E. J. Young, J. W. Staats, N. M. Eastwood, A. H. Beal and Timothy Brownhill, held an inquest this morning on the body of Phillip Breen, who came to his death yesterday afternoon from being struck on the head by a rock from a blast in a cut on the O. R. & N. Co.'s right of way about four miles west of town. The testimony showed that Breen was a single man of about 35 years of age; that he was probably a native of New York state; that he had friends living at or near Canby, Oregon, and that he had no effects or estate of any kind save a small sum due him as wages from Kilpatrick Bros. & Collins, contractors, for whom he was working at the time of his death. It appeared that Breen had been duly warned of the explosion and that he had had plenty of time to get to a place of safety. Instead of going to the left of a direct line from the blast, as all Breen's fellow-workmen did and were thus protected by trees, Breen chose a direct line, where he was fully exposed, and he did so in spite of the special warning of the foreman to go to another place, where he would have been safe. A rock from the blast struck Breen in the head and knocked his brains out so that they lay beside the corpse. The jury rendered a verdict according to the above facts.

Herrmann the Great.

Yesterday's Oregonian gives the following write-up of the performance of Herrmann the Great at Portland last Monday night:

Herrmann, known to theater-goers as "The Great," gave an entertainment at the Marquam last night which proved that his right to that pretentious title is not altogether in the mind of his press agent. His feats of palmistry are even more marvelous than those of his famous predecessor, while his mechanical tricks are astounding, clever, and his conversational style, which is composed of a strong French accent, is really humorous. After the usual preliminaries, such as candle-playing and rising up out of a glass when called by name, picking egg out of the head of the orchestra leader, causing canary birds to disappear, and others of the same mysterious sort, he produced the well-known glass clock, and made the hand do things that no one could even try to understand. His most remarkable palmistry was done with three red spheres, which he made to travel from one hand to another, to disappear and reappear, to multiply and divide, in a fashion that was as bewildering as it was clever. A hat into which he poured half-dollars through the crown and from the air also furnished him with an opportunity to display this marvelous talent, and a more remarkable exhibition of it has never been seen in Portland.

The most wonderful of his mechanical tricks was that of the fishing rod and line, with which he apparently materialized goldfish out of the air and dropped them wriggling and quivering into a bowl of water. An elaborate mystery is that of Noah's Ark after the flood. The ark is brought in apparently as empty as when it first left the ways. It is closed up and battened down and then the wizard extracts from it all kinds of barnyard creatures, beginning with a chicken, and running up through ducks and geese to a dog and a pig. The pig ventured across the footlights by way of enlarging his liberty, and his capture by the colored attendant after the fall of the curtain furnished the gallery no end of amusement.

His escape from Sin Sing and Turk-eloopment are two good feats, although neither is by any means as bewildering as his work with the goldfish. He proceeds leisurely and easily with all his tricks, and never for a moment is there any apparent effort to accomplish a feat or breaking of any of the illusions.

Herrmann the Great will give an entertainment at the Vogt tomorrow (Thursday) night.

New Electric Plant and Flouring Mill.

The Dalles correspondent of the Oregonian sends the following report of the Wasco Warehouse Milling Company's enterprises to that paper:

By December 1st it is expected that power will be turned on to the new electric plant of the Wasco Warehouse & Milling Company. This city will then be lighted by a current generated on White river, twenty-six miles south of here. It will be one of the longest transmission plants in the Northwest. Electricity will be supplied for lighting the city and also for general power purposes. The full force at present to be generated is 2000 horsepower, about one-half of which will probably be utilized. In addition to the current for lights and general power, the new mill, which is being constructed by the company, will use from 250 to 300 horse power. In the various improvements which the Wasco Warehouse & Milling Company is making, nearly all of which are represented in the electric plant and new flouring mill, upwards of $400,000 will have been expended before they are finished.

The mill will have a capacity of the start of 700 barrels of flour a day. Room has been left for adding enough machinery to double this capacity. It will be one of the most modern mills on the coast. Everything is new and up to date. The product, for the most part, will consist of high-grade flour and will be ground from the wheat which comes to the company's three warehouses in Wasco and Sherman counties, a section of the state noted for its fine quality of wheat.
