See a correspondent of the Golden-rod Agriculturalist: "We took the steamer Regulator at The Dalles at 7 o'clock for Portland, touching first at the mouth of the Klickitat, where our fellow townsman, C. M. Elkins, was interested in a mercantile business. From one side of the river to the other, wherever a single person would wave a call, or where a small pile of freight on the bank would invite, the steamer would run from side to side, leave and take on passengers and freight; but all the time making way down the noble Columbia river to its destination in Portland, never failing to make its schedule time. I have taken passage on many steamers, on all the principal rivers in the United States, but never saw work done with such alacrity and so little noise as done by the captain and crew of the Regulator, the captain of which was always ready to lend a hand on a hard lift. I never heard an oath or loud word uttered by captain or crew. The dining room bell was rung at 12 o'clock, and the hungry were seated to a bountiful repast of dainties and solids, which could not fail to satisfy the appetite of the most fastidious. The stewards were attentive and polite, and the charge was the small sum of 25 cents. If I were an artist, and wanted to take grand and striking mountain scenery, I would choose the Columbia river for my base of operations, and background the precipitous gorges and water falls on the Oregon and Washington sides."

Brain Food Nonsense.

Another ridiculous fool-fad has been branded by the most competent authorities. They have dispelled the silly notion that one kind of food is needed for brain, another for muscles, and still another for bones. A correct diet will not only nourish a particular part of the body, but it will sustain every other part. Yet, however good your food may be, its nutriment is destroyed by indigestion or dyspepsia. You must prepare for their appearance or prevent their coming by taking regular doses of Green's August Flower, the favorite medicine of the healthy millions. A few doses aids digestion, stimulates the liver to healthy action, purifies the blood, and makes you feel buoyant and vigorous. You can get Dr. G. C. Green's reliable remedies at Blakeley's drug store. Get Green's Special Almanac.

If you want to retain your hair you have to keep your scalp clean. Soap will make your hair harsh, dry and crisp.
