

Are You Mixed... on the Suit and Overcoat Question?

It's pretty hard to know what to do, isn't it, when every clothier in town has "the best at the lowest price" and all "give satisfaction," and all beat the tailor to pieces, and save you a half to a third—and all that. It comes down to the question of faith in somebody. Hart, Schaffner & Marx tailor-made Clothing, made expressly for PEASE & MAYS, will answer the question. Stylish, durable and best for the money.

Rev. Lake, Episcopal minister of The Dalles, preached in the Presbyterian church Monday evening. The sermon was very entertaining. We hope the reverend gentleman will call again. He will go to Shaniko, where he will remain a few days before returning to The Dalles.—More correspondent of Wasco News.

Mr. C. A. Severance, of Portland, is in the city looking over the situation with a view to starting a commercial school at this place for teaching a thorough business course, including book-keeping, type-writing and shorthand. Mr. Severance comes here highly recommended and we hope he may succeed in establishing a school.

Charles Hendershot was arrested yesterday afternoon by Deputy Sheriff E. E. Woods for selling whiskey to Indians. The arrest was made at the wood pile at the foot of Union street and the deputy caught Hendershot in the act of handing a bottle of alcohol to an Indian. Hendershot will be examined tomorrow morning before Commissioner Hudson.

Harry Clough, for many years resident at The Dalles, has purchased from J. M. Coulter, a 100-acre stock ranch on Little White Salmon in Skamania county and will move on to it next year with his family. Mr. Clough has amassed a fair competency at his trade of machinist and chooses wisely in settling down to the ease and peace of a pastoral life.—Skamania County Pioneer.

The many friends of Mr. W. W. Williams will be glad to learn that he is progressing towards recovery in a manner peculiarly gratifying to them, as well as to his physicians. Should no complications arise in the next two or three days we shall be able to compliment Mr. Williams on his recovery from a disease that at one time indicated certain death.

The report that a child of B. T. Collins, the milkman, is ill of diphtheria is without a particle of foundation, and as the report works an injury to Mr. Collins it is only fair to him to contradict it in the most positive manner. Since our report of last week that said that there were only six cases in the city there have been no new cases and most of those then ill have since recovered.

Mr. Toomey, of the Columbia hotel, received word this morning from Portland that the physicians were obliged to remove the injured eye of Sam Hudson in order to save the other one. Sam Hudson is the youngest son of Henry Hudson, of Boyd. While chopping wood in the forest west of Dufur, one day last week, a chip struck the boy's eye and injured it so that he was obliged to go to Portland and consult an eye specialist.

Mr. W. E. Williams, of Polk county, arrived here yesterday on a visit to his brother, W. W., who is ill at The Dalles hospital. It is hardly necessary to say that the visitor was delighted to find his brother in such a hopeful condition. By the way, W. E. is a fac-simile of W. W., only built on a larger scale. There are six brothers of them, and The Dalles man, who isn't a skeleton by any means, is the smallest man of the lot. The Williams family are Oregon pioneers of 1845.

Miss Melinda Allen Fender, daughter of John Fender of this city, was eighteen years old at 4 o'clock this morning. There is nothing peculiar in this announcement, nor is it strange that Miss Fender is a stout, healthy young lady and weighs 107 pounds in her stocking soles. The peculiar thing about her case is that eighteen years ago, twenty-four hours after her birth, and with all her baby bands and gussets and waists and waists and gussets and bands, she weighed exactly two pounds and seven ounces. And she was born in St. Joseph, Missouri, and didn't come into the world a minute before her time.

Andy Keller, the candy man, has anticipated the Lewis and Clark expedition by an exhibit of his own, which he erected in one of his show windows this morning. It is in the form of an Irish round tower, although Andy wouldn't know an Irish round tower from an Irish turf stack, and it's all made of candy stuck with peanuts, coconut and pop corn. On the top is an American flag with the legend in candy, "Lewis and Clark, 1905." The inside of the tower and the grounds at its base remind one of Herrmann's picture of Noah's ark, the difference being that this is no humping and Herrmann's was.

Saturday evening the local agent of the Pacific Express Company went to supper leaving in front of the office a package of plants and mosses sewed up in burlap and addressed to Milton, Umatilla county. The package being fresh from the nursery was heavily saturated and Mr. Korts never dreamed that anyone would bother it. On his return from supper he was surprised to find that the package had been stolen. Deputy Sheriff Woods and Officer Alisky were notified of the loss and after some searching they found the package cached in a wood pile at the foot of Washington street. The package had been ripped open, but, as it was of no value to the thieves, they left it where it was found.

If there be a health officer in the city, and The Chronicle honestly doesn't know whether there is or not, but strongly inclines to the belief that there surely cannot be one, we recommend him to take a walk through the alley bounded by Second and Third. Let him, however, take the precaution to have a bottle of smelling salts on hand and a lard bucket, or something, in case he objects to voiding the contents of his stomach in the alley. When he has made the trip if he doesn't own to having seen more decayed vegetables, rotten eggs, and human excrement, and smelled more and worse smells than ever greeted his olfactory nerve since it first started in business, the writer hereof will set up the cigars.

Albert Teobagency filed a complaint in the circuit court this morning against F. N. Jones, of Sherar's Bridge, for the recovery of $890.71 for services rendered as a laborer on the farm, together with interest from October 26, 1901. Jones' herdsmen have levied upon his sheep for claims for wages aggregating some $3000. His buggy and team were attached here this morning, but were released on Jones' claim that they were exempt from execution. Jones this morning filed for record in the clerk's office a deed to his wife of all his real estate in Wasco county. The consideration is one dollar and love and affection. Deputy Sheriff Sexton left here this afternoon for the Jones ranch to seize for the creditors everything he can get his hands on.

The funeral of the late William Mosbas took place from Crandall & Burgess' undertaking rooms at 1:30 this afternoon. The death of Mr. Mosbas is shrouded in mystery. All that is known at this writing is that he was found in the Willamette river, near the Portland steel bridge, last Saturday, and that the condition of the body indicated that it had been in the water for about six days. No marks of violence appeared and the verdict of the coroner's jury was the usual one in such cases, "found drowned." The deceased was born about 39 years ago. He was a good-natured, amiable man, and the death of a brother at Missoula, Montana, October 2nd, is known to have given him great distress and may, possibly, have affected his mind. He had many friends here who deeply regret his untimely end and whose sympathies go out towards his aged mother, Mrs. Anna Mosbas, of Seattle; and his sister, Mrs. M. T. Nolan, of this city.

Green Mast Hang.

Murderer Green has given up hope of escaping the gallows. State Senator E. M. Rands, his attorney, was up early this week, and, it is reported, informed his client that he must suffer the extreme penalty.

The meek-appearing little jail where the prisoner is confined is far stronger than it looks, and would resist all ordinary efforts to escape from it, even were the prisoner disposed to try. It is the belief of those who have him in charge that Green lacks the courage to escape even if he had a fighting chance to do so. But, given a saw and gimlet, it would require several hours to effect an escape through the jail where Green is confined. The walls are composed of many thicknesses of inch boards, each thickness being nailed with spikes four inches apart, driven slantwise. The building is only 12x12 in size, outside measurement, and half of this space is allotted to the jailer, who has but little more than enough room for a bed.

A night and day watch is now kept and will be maintained up to the day of Green's doom. The precise day of the execution has not yet been made public, but it is evidently near at hand, as Sheriff Totten is now planning to have cards printed inviting his friends to witness the gruesome event. About 200 of these favors will be distributed.

The prisoner shows such a woful lack of courage as the day approaches for the execution that the sheriff has decided to construct a gallows in the woods adjacent to the town, and away from hearing distance of the condemned man.—Skamania County Pioneer.
