The New English Black and White

This Season's Swellest Overcoat

It has recently been extensively advertised by the leading wholesale tailors of America who have spent much time and money in introducing it into this country. It is distinctly an English creation and is made of the dignified mourning goods, being therefore suitable for the most discriminating dressers. The care and attention given to make and finish constitute standing evidence of the really wonderful advance in the manufacture of ready-to-wear clothing.

HE WAS VERY ELOQUENT

Closing Arguments in the Schley Case—Applicant's Chief Counsel Said His Client Was the Victim of a Chain of Circumstances.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6.—Upon opening the Schley court today, Captain Parker concluded his argument in about twenty minutes and was followed by Schley's chief counsel, Raynor, who closed the arguments for the applicant. Raynor was eloquence itself, without casting the slightest imputation on any official of the American fleet. He declared that Schley was the victim of an unfortunate chain of circumstances that left him in total darkness as to the location of the Spanish fleet. Nelson chased the French fleet twice across the sea. Nelson was criticized and maligned, but, when the thunders of Trafalgar reached over the sea and the blood of Nelson anointed the deck of "Victory," shouts arose from England's bosom that will never die as it rolls upon the advancing tide of centuries. And so with Schley. Raynor said that Lieutenant Potts' name will echo through the ages of undying fame. When Manila shall be forgotten and Santiago buried in oblivion, the name of Potts shall still live.

Raynor's Good-Natured Talk.
"The question here is not whether Schley made an error in judgment. The question is, was he honest, did he act according to the dictates of his conscience; did he do his duty to his country?" continued Raynor, who then proceeded with a very few facts at Captain Harbor and Lieutenant Bristol, of the Texas. The Schley-Hodgson colloquy, in which Schley is alleged to have said, "Damn the Texas," was disposed of thus: "The trouble about all this is the New York Sun was taken too seriously. Never quarrel with newspapers unless you own one. Never interfere with the liberty of the press. It will be right when you die. They all will be with you then. It was a case of confiding innocence on one side, of business enterprise on the other." Raynor reviewed eloquently the part taken by the Brooklyn in the battle of July 31.

DEATH OF LI HUNG CHANG

China's Shrewdest Statesman Passes Away—His Health Had Been Failing.

PEKING, Nov. 7.—Li Hung Chang died at 11 o'clock this morning. At midnight last night he rallied slightly. His family had installed native doctors in charge of the patient, the regular physicians having refused to attend him unless the Chinese doctors were dismissed.

At 9 o'clock last evening Earl Li was still breathing and displaying unexpected vitality. The burial clothes had already been put on. The courtyard of the Yamen was filled with life-size paper horses and chairs, with cooing bearers, which his friends sent, in accordance with Chinese customs, to be buried with him, in order to carry his soul to heaven.

Several of the ministers of the powers called to express sympathy. The Chinese officials are somewhat uneasy concerning the effect his death will have on the populace, and to guard against a possible anti-foreign demonstration, the Chinese generals have disposed of their troops about the city in such a way as to command the situation. Trouble, however, is extremely improbable.

Women and Jewels.

Jewels, candy, flowers, man—that is the order of a woman's preferences. Jewels form a magnet of mighty power to the average woman. Even that greatest of all jewels, health, is often ruined in the strenuous efforts to make or save the money to purchase them. If a woman will risk her health to get a coveted gem, then let her fortify herself against the insidious consequences of coughs, colds and bronchial affections by the regular use of Dr. Rosch's German Syrup. It will promptly arrest consumption in its early stages and heal the affected lungs and bronchial tubes and drive the dread disease from the system. It is not a cure-all, but it is a certain cure for coughs, colds and all bronchial troubles. You can get Dr. G. G. Green's reliable remedies at Blakeley's drug store. Get Green's Special Almanac.

Clark & Falk are never closed Sunday. Don't forget this.
