

MESSAGES TO THE SIMON MACHINE.

Following the recent defeat of the Tammany machine the Oregonian said:

"It is a blow to machine politics, to little, cheap and mercenary men and politics. It is an inspiration for men everywhere who have a high-minded view of civic duty. It affords encouragement to those who trust the sound sense of the people to do the right thing at the right time."

"It is clear that the people of the United States are making steady progress in the right conception of their civic duty. They are becoming less and less disposed to tolerate sordid and mercenary politics."

"The suggestion to Oregon is that it discard and reject little and cheap men to whom the larger and higher purposes of politics are unknown."

"The result in New York comes like a minstrel to clear the political atmosphere of the country. Oregon needs it, too. Shall we not catch the inspiration, to put a check upon small, tricky, self-seeking, cheap-little politics? Is it not high time?"

Again, commenting on the wreck of the republican machine in San Francisco, which on all sides is recognized as "a rebuke to the bosses," the Oregonian says:

"This is a very old lesson in politics, but it has to be learned over and over again. New York has just enforced it, San Francisco has evidently done the same. The methods of ringsters may succeed for a time, but there comes a day of awful reckoning. In the end the people will get the men and measures that they want. Some machines are shrewd enough to recognize this and act accordingly. Platt, for example, did it in New York this year. Others have the hardihood to set the people at defiance, but inevitably to their own undoing. Instances are plenty enough in Portland's past history, and may be looked for again."

No special sagacity is needed to understand the drift of the Oregonian's comments. While the condemnation of "tricky, self-seeking, cheap little politics" and "machines" is expressed in general terms, it is not necessary to read between the lines to see that the Oregonian has special reference to something much nearer home than New York or San Francisco. There is just one political machine in Oregon that for years has had the "hardihood to set the people at defiance" and "may be looked for" to do it again; just one "machine" that is "not shrewd enough" to recognize that the temporary defeat of a year and a half ago is the precursor of "a day of awful reckoning" in the near future.

The Simon machine fills the bill and nothing else, and this is not the first warning that the Oregonian has given that machine, either. The warning, too, is all the more significant because the Oregonian has for many a long year rendered service—half-hearted, perhaps, and betimes unwilling—to this same machine, and because it would seem to intimate that it has served the machine for the last time. Joseph and his gang of tricksters are now up against the real thing in more ways than one.

The CHRONICLE learns from a valley paper that Ex-Sheriff Hy Plummer, of Polk county, the man who swears that he gave Governor Geer $1000 for his promise of a state office in the event of Geer's election, and afterwards got $2000 back when the governor broke his word, has just returned from a mining expedition in Northern Alaska. As the governor is the candidate of the Simon machine for re-election and Plummer was never known to wear a padlock on his mouth his excellency could doubtless have forgiven the fates if they had buried Plummer in the crevasse of an Alaska iceberg.

The East Oregonian is somewhat hard on "Little Joe." It says: "Here is a question that is pertinent just now: In all Oregon is one newspaper openly and avowedly for Joseph Simon for United States senator? If there be, that newspaper is keeping very quiet and is not letting the public know anything about it."

Women and Jewels.

Jewels, candy, flowers, man—that is the order of a woman's preferences. Jewels form a magnet of mighty power to the average woman. Even that greatest of all jewels, health, is often ruined in the strenuous efforts to make or save the money to purchase them. If a woman will risk her health to get a coveted gem, then let her fortify herself against the insidious consequences of coughs, colds and bronchial affections by the regular use of Dr. Roschke's German Syrup. It will promptly arrest consumption in its early stages and heal the affected lungs and bronchial tubes and drive the dread disease from the system. It is not a cure-all, but it is a certain cure for coughs, colds and all bronchial troubles. You can get Dr. G. G. Green's reliable remedies at Blakeley's drug store. Get Green's Special Almanac.
