Mrs. Martha Poorman, an old-time resident of this city, died at the state insane asylum this morning. The remains are expected here tonight, and the funeral will take place from Grand & Burgett's undertaking rooms tomorrow.

From the meeting at the club rooms last night somebody mistakenly walked off with another man's overcoat. This kind of exchange would be all right if it were a fair deal, but the owner of the more valuable coat naturally kicks and wants another deal.

The Chronicle is well pleased that the Citizen's communication of yesterday day was written under a mistake. The child who died Wednesday of diphtheria was not publicly buried as alleged. There was no one present at the funeral but the undertaker, the driver of the hearse and the grave-digger.

The barn of R. Heyting, of Lyle, was burned last Sunday night. It contained 100 tons of hay worth $1000. The barn was worth $600. There was no insurance, and as there was no one on the place at the time of the fire it is believed to have been the work of an incendiary.

A tract of wheat land twelve miles in width, between Bakoren and Sherar's has all been homesteaded within six months, which shows that when a railroad gets within sound of the fertile range a new order of things succeeds, and the solemn stillness and the virgin soil are broken simultaneously, says the Observer.

A fire accidentally started in the residence of Ernest Bonomi, eight miles up Mill creek, yesterday, which was happily extinguished after it had destroyed about $40 worth of clothing and furniture. In putting out the fire Mr. Bonomi got his hands so severely burned that he will be unable to do much with them for a couple of weeks. The property was fully insured in the Oregon Fire Relief Association.

Sheriff William Frasier, as agent for the government, has concluded the purchase of 250 horses for service in the artillery branch of the United States army at Walls Walls and Vancouver, Wash. A number of these horses were bought through T. J. Dripps, of this city, about fifty being brought in from this section of the country and sent to Vancouver. Of the 250 head, half were sent to Vancouver and the other half to Walls Walls. They will average in weight about 1200 pounds. By this last purchase Mr. Frasier has filled all orders for the government at present, although he has a standing order to pick up a good horse where he can.

A melodrama after the style of a three-ring circus will be the attraction at the Vogt next Wednesday night. "King of the Opium Ring" carries more people, scenery and effects than half a dozen ordinary shows. Three distinct companies—a dramatic company, a company of native Chinese and a number of vaudeville people, including a quartet and a team of acrobats. It has twenty thrilling scenes, any one of which, it is said, is strong enough to establish the success of a play.

Irwin Julien was arrested yesterday by Constable Jackson on the verbal complaint of his divorced wife that he had drawn a gun on her and threatened to kill her. Julien was drunk when arrested and after lying all night in jail Justice Brownhill this morning ordered his discharge as no complaint had been filed against him. Julien was not long discharged till he again visited Mrs. Julien and threatened divers and sundry things against her, including the burning of her, out of house and home. The end of this case is not yet.

Al Burgeson, the soda water man, and Freeman A. B. Comstock have just returned from a visit to the Pine Flat ranch of their friend, Conductor L. E. Lindsey. Not finding Mr. Lindsey at home they bethought them of making their visit historical by cutting down the largest tree they could find on the Lindsey ranch. This they accomplished after three hours of the hardest work of their lives. The tree measured 110 feet to the first limb and eighteen feet in circumference at the butt. Burgeson came home with a bump on his back and Comstock's hands have blisters that won't be healed for a month.

In the circuit court this morning the case of B. H. Shaw, who tried to pass a bogus check on Deputy Sheriff Lee, of Cascade Locks, the other day, was continued for the term. The check Shaw attempted to pass on Lee was for $10.35 and was drawn on the Nez Perce bank of Idaho. Sheriff Kelly communicated with the bank and was answered that Shaw never had any credit there. Shaw was wanted at Union for the same crime. He is a man of 30 or over, of polished address, who is said to have passed himself off in various places as an ex-state senator of Idaho, a candidate for prosecuting attorney of Nez Perce county, a United States postoffice inspector, etc. When arrested a blank check book was found in his pocket, whose stubs would indicate that he was wealthy, as they contained memoranda of deposits and checks on the Nez Perce bank for large sums. The court has not read Shaw's bonds, but his attorney, Ben Stark, expects to have him released on bail in a short time.

Proposition for a Monthly Fair.

Following the call of President Wheelton, of the commercial club, a meeting was held in the club rooms last night to consider the suggestion of Colonel Judson, of the O. R. & N. Co., of holding a monthly fair in The Dalles for the sale of stock and farm products. The attendance was representative of the business interests of the city, but was not nearly so large as it ought to have been when a matter that might be made to result in much profit to the city, as well as to the farming community, was to be considered. President Wheelton explained the object of the meeting, and after an interesting informal discussion a resolution was passed unanimously that the officers of the club proceed at once to make preparations for holding the first of a series of monthly fairs in this city on the first Saturday in December. The object sought to be attained by the fair is to bring the buyer and seller together in the same way they are brought together in the weekly and monthly markets and fairs in all the smaller cities of the old country. If a farmer has horses, cattle, hogs, sheep, chickens, or any of the vegetable productions of the farm to sell, he can bring them to town on fair day and confidently expect to meet a buyer who wants such things and who will take them at their full market value. Not only will local buyers look to fair day for supplying many of their wants, but buyers from abroad will be attracted, and thus the competition, which is the life of trade, will be promoted. Monthly fairs are an untried experiment, and once established they would in time come to be looked upon as a practical necessity. When, for instance, horse-buyers learn that a large number of horses will be brought here on a given day, they will not fail to be here in such numbers as will insure more sales at better figures and at less expense to the owners than they could be ordinarily disposed of in any other way.

The promoters of the fair will secure the Saltmarsh stock yards or the O. R. & N. Co.'s stockyards, or both, if needed, and in these places stock of all kinds can be placed and offered for sale without any cost to the owner save, of course, for necessary feed, which, however, the owner will, we presume, be permitted to buy where he pleases. For farm products a convenient place on one of the streets will be designated, where the farmer can, also without cost to himself, place his wares and negotiate for their sale. There is no question as to the benefit of such a market to the producer. The only question is, will he co-operate with The Dalles business men in their effort to establish it and make it a success?
