

As the policies of Roosevelt are revealed from day to day it becomes more and more apparent that we have a president with a broad and enlightened understanding of the West—its history, its possibilities and the wishes of its people, says the Spokesman-Review. Since Mr. Roosevelt entered the White House he has indicated to visiting delegations that his administration will favor the speedy construction of the Nicaraguan canal, the laying of a Pacific cable, congressional action for the reclamation of arid lands, protection for the beet sugar industry against Cuban sugar and the sugar trust, and the re-enactment of the Chinese exclusion law. The great bulk of the Western people will approve these policies, as they approved Mr. Roosevelt's vigorous utterances for national expansion.

It is easy to accept the reports that President Roosevelt will make no specific recommendations on the subject of reciprocity is a vast subject. It is the biggest question which will come before congress in the approaching session. There are many sides to it. All of these sides require special study. Congress, by its committees and subcommittees, will go over this question carefully, and will probably formulate some which will be satisfactory to the country.

When Congressman Moody arrives at Baker city he will be warmly received, says the La Grande Chronicle. There are eight candidates for the Baker postoffice, and each one of course will want to be the first to give him the glad hand.

A Valley Editor on Hood River.

E. H. Woodward, editor of the Newberg Graphic, who was in Hood River for several days, a short time ago, has this to say of Hood River in his paper: "Four hundred dollars an acre sounds like a pretty stiff price for land, but they ask it here without a shrug of the shoulders and then catch their breath in time to make a raise in price before you close the deal. About the hotels you hear little else but 'strawberries' and 'big apples.' Growers made good money this season on berries and it is expected next season's crop will be one-third larger. An elderly gentleman from the East, who talks 'apples,' is here showing his faith in the business. He owns extensive apple orchards in Colorado and also in Arkansas, and has had long experience handling fruit. He has invested in extensive apple lands here and talks like a veteran of Baldwin and Ben Davis.

"Then there is 'Hood River Smith,' who is known all over Oregon as the champion heavy weight in argument in favor of Hood River apples. Just now he is not doing it by back talk, but is out of town six or seven miles up the valley looking after his crop. He has a fine home in town and is one of the fortunate ones who got in on the ground floor and helped lay the foundation for the present prosperity of the place. There are lots of Smiths in Oregon, but very few localities have a 'Hood River Smith,' and there is where they miss it.

"The most widely known character of the little city is Dr. W. L. Adams, a pioneer of 1848, who got his start in old Yamhill. In company with the Glacier scribe, the writer spent an hour in the home of Dr. Adams, and listened to him tell of ye olden time and of the early political history of Oregon, with which the old pioneer, who is now 82 years of age, is very familiar. At one time he published the Argus at Oregon City in opposition to the Oregonian, which was edited by Thos. Dryer, and the war must have been carried on after the true western style, as Mr. Adams says he carried two revolvers and a big knife at all times, in order to be ready for all emergencies that he thought were liable to be met. Speaking of the present site of Newberg, he said he sold some property at Astoria for $3,400 in an early day, and coming up the river he landed here and footed it across the country with the hard cash stuck in his boot legs, which made walking rather heavy. Before leaving Yamhill county he sold what is known as the Thompson farm, over beyond North Yamhill for $28,000. Dr. Adams has a wonderful memory for names and dates, and he has been urged many times to write a history of the early settlement of Oregon, which he is fully competent, even at his advanced age, to do. When you have a little spare time to spend away from home, by all means take a trip up the Columbia, and a stop-off at Hood River will not be out of the way."

Attractive Women.

All women sensibly desire to be attractive. Beauty is the stamp of health because it is the outward manifestation of inner purity. A healthy woman is always attractive, bright and happy. When every drop of blood in the veins is pure a beautiful flush is on the cheek. But when the blood is impure, moroseness, bad temper and a sallow complexion tells the tale of sickness all too plainly. And women today know there is no beauty without health. Wine of Cardui cures women with beauty and attractiveness by making strong and healthy those organs which make her a woman. Try Wine of Cardui, and in a month your friends will hardly know you.

Located by Vision.

Portland, Aug. 10.—(To The Editor).—Homer de Morrison, occultist, located by vision the stolen from the Selby Smelting Works. In behalf of occult science he immediately communicated by letter the facts to Mr. A. J. Ralston, owner of the Selby Works. The reports received last night prove his statements correct. MRS. FRANCIS PARTLOW.

"It is pleasing to be assured that the gold stolen from the Selby Smelting Works was 'located by vision' by a Portland occultist. This proves that the story of the confession of the thief and that his assistance was required in recovering the gold was a base California invention for the purpose of depriving Oregon of just glory."—(Editor Portland Oregonian.)
