One of Roosevelt's Soldiers.

J. C. Snyder, of Nelson creek, was one of Roosevelt's Rough Riders. He learned to admire the present chief executive for his strength of character when the latter was his superior officer. Mr. Snyder informs the Pioneer that it is not generally known that President Roosevelt came near being court-martialed while serving in the Santiago campaign. It was at a time when many of his soldiers were sick, and a case of needed medicines having come into camp, it was found that the chief surgeon was away and a requisition could not be obtained. The chief clerk did not feel like assuming the authority and after some parley "Teddy" cut it short by inquiring for an ax. It was soon furnished him and with his own hands he pried off the outer covering and distributed the medicines to those who were in need of them. Some loud threats of a court martial were made at the time, but with his usual obtuseness in a just cause, Mr. Roosevelt told them to go ahead—or dam'd—the reporter did not catch the exact word. It is needless to say that nothing further was ever said about the matter. —Skamania County Pioneer.

It may seem presumptuous to suggest that few people know how to boil water, but such is the case. The boiling point, under ordinary atmospheric pressure (sea level), is 212° Fahrenheit; this point changes according to the altitude. When bubbles form on the bottom of the kettle, come clear to the surface and rupture quietly, without making an ebullition, we have simmering. At this point the thermometer should register 180° Fahrenheit, and it is at this temperature that we cook meats and make soups. When the bubbles begin to form on the sides and surface of the vessel and come toward the top of the water, there is a motion in the water, but it has not really reached the boiling point. It is only when the thermometer reaches 212° Fahrenheit and the water is in rapid motion that it can be said to boil; and the atmospheric gases still continue to be given off with the steam for a considerable time after the water has commenced to boil rapidly; in fact, it is difficult to determine when the last traces have been expelled. It is safe to suppose, however, that ten minutes' boiling will free the water from its gases, make it tasteless, and render it unfit for the making of tea, coffee and other light infusions of delicate materials.—Mrs. S. T. Rorer, in the December Ladies' Home Journal.
