

TWO OPINIONS.

The import of the late decision of the Oregon supreme court, which declared the Lockwood primary election law to be valid and constitutional, is realized fully by two of Portland's leading citizens, namely, Senator Joe Simon and the editor-in-chief of the Oregonian. Each has given expression to his convictions in his own peculiar way; the senator by a silence that is distressingly eloquent and the editor in the terse and pithy vernacular of which he is a master. Simon opposed the law with all his might. It was to him as the handwriting on the walls of Belshazzars palace. In its passage he read his doom as a political boss, and the declaration of its validity was to him as the sentence of the court on a convicted criminal. It was natural, therefore, that when he was imperturbed by an Oregonian reporter to express his opinion of the supreme court decision the reporter should have been compelled to write: "Senator Simon refused to be interviewed." It was cruel, under the circumstances, to ask the senator's opinion, and useless as cruel, for everybody knew it without asking; and it sounds as the quintessence of cruelty to put the refusal on record. As well have asked a man's opinion of the rope with which he was about to be hanged.

Mr. Scott's opinion reads like a funeral oration, or the solemn sentence of a court of justice. It is the lusty application of salt and vinegar to a raw sore, or a fervid rendition of the riot act. Like a gladiator he jumps upon the broken fragments of the "machine" and thunders out:

"No clique, junta or party committee, pretending to the sanctity of party regularity, controlling the whole machinery of party primaries and conventions, and denying all rights of contest or opposition, can, henceforward, have full sway. All the members of the party—of each party—will now have a chance. This is a great change and reform, even though the law may be imperfect in some of its details.

"The opinion of the supreme court is so important that the Oregonian prints it entire. It is the emancipation of the people from party bosses. It will be scarcely worth while, now, for any set of men to organize a 'gang' and keep a 'machine.' Primaries and conventions may not be worked so smoothly hereafter; but no ticket made up in the office of a political boss can be rushed through a primary and convention. That farce is over.

"In Portland, especially, this decision means much. It means that there may be some approach to ascertainment of the popular will. Hitherto tickets have been made, as was the republican ticket of 1900, by not above three men, and nobody else permitted a word. It was the revolt from this usurpation that beat the republican ticket that year; and they who led the revolt justify it by presentation of this primary election law, under which there will be at least some approximation to fairness in making nominations."

Obviously at a time when freight is so big that railways cannot haul it, business so active that orders are ahead of product, it would be bad business to get up a Pandora box and fill it full of woes for the fun of seeing them overrun the country.

The holiday of Thanksgiving comes tomorrow and no people on earth have a better right to be thankful than the American people, while at no time in the history of the nation have there been so many causes for gratitude to the Giver of all good.

We have no five-dollar diploma, nor do we use technical terms that no one can understand, yet from many years experience we can fit your eyes, whether near-sighted, far-sighted or cataract. We can cite you to several instances where we have fitted eyes where so-called professional opticians have failed. We can save you from 50 to 100 per cent on spectacles, eye glasses, etc. F. A. Van Norden.

Brain Food Nonsense. Another ridiculous food fad has been created by the most competent authorities. They have dispelled the silly notion that one kind of food is needed for brain, another for muscles, and still another for bones. A correct diet will not only nourish a particular part of the body, but it will sustain every other part. Yet, however good your food may be, its nutriment is destroyed by indigestion or dyspepsia. You must prepare for their appearance or prevent their coming by taking regular doses of Green's August Flower, the favorite medicine of the healthy millions. A few doses aids digestion, stimulates the liver to healthy action, purifies the blood, and makes you feel buoyant and vigorous. You can get Dr. G. C. Green's reliable remedies at Blakeley's drug store. Get Green's Special Almanac.
