TREASURER'S NOTICE.

All Wasco County warrants registered prior to January 4, 1900, will be paid on presentation at my office. Interest ceases after November 10, 1901. JOHN F. HANFORD, County Treasurer.

WAYSIDE GLEANINGS.

C. E. Dawson, of this city, has got the contract for painting the scenery for the opera house now in course of erection at Wasco.

The marriage of Mr. J. P. Lucas, of this city, and Mrs. Olivia Morgan is announced to take place sometime about New Year's.

The football game tomorrow afternoon between Pondiston and The Dalles will be guaranteed to be clean and entertaining. All should come out and see this game, one of the best of the season.

The local lodge A. O. U. W. will give a social next Thursday night to which the ladies of the D. of H. will be invited. It will not be a stag social, as was mistakenly said a couple of days ago.

Two new cases of diphtheria were reported yesterday, one of which is in a house from which the quarantine was raised a couple of days ago. The quarantine has been raised from the residences of Dan Baker, J. C. Connelly and Mrs. Tyler.

The heavy rains of last Friday and Saturday caused a big freshet in Hood river. About one million feet of logs came down the river for the Lost Lake Lumber Co., and only about a dozen logs went over the boom and were lost in the Columbia.

Wednesday evening George Bacon, of Forest Grove, arrived on the steamer Dalles City with stock and carriages to open up a livery barn in this city. Until such time as a new stable can be built he will occupy temporary quarters on First street near the Gemalla House. Mr. Bacon has a fine new outfit of buggies and good horses and will be in a position to accommodate all who may desire anything in his line.

President Wheaton, of the commercial club, having had sickness in his family almost all the time since it was determined to hold a monthly fair here to commence on the first Saturday in December, and not having been able to give attention to advertising the fair, has decided to increase its success, has concluded to increase the price for the present. It is hoped the matter will be taken up in the near future and pushed to success. This enforced temporary abandonment must in no wise be construed as a permanent abandonment.

The Portland Telegram of November 25th says: "The musical and literary recital, to be given at The Dalles December 5th by Miss Helen Flynn, assisted by Rose Bloch-Bauer, Portland's famous soprano, promises to be the musical event of the season in that city. Since her graduation in music and elocution, Miss Flynn has won a reputation gained by few young artists. Her work as a pianist, her execution, interpretation and memory of the works of the great masters, have called forth the most favorable criticism. At the coming recital she will give selections from Beethoven, Liszt, Chopin, Schubert, Tausig, Schumann and Paderewski.

Among a collection of sundry articles of food and clothing in the county court room, which have been donated to the Boys' and Girls' Aid Society, is a 20-pound box of Star plug tobacco. On the lid is the inscription in the well-known geography of the sheriff, "From the sheriff's office—believing that under the guidance of Brother Gardner the children of the 'Aid' have acquired the habit of 'chewing.'" This singular donation was found some months ago under a lumber pile while a search was being made for goods stolen from the Hub clothing store. As no owner could ever be found for it the sheriff concluded to make a present of it to the home. It can be readily sold for something really useful.

The management of the Boys' and Girls' Aid Society has always shown great appreciation for the contribution made to them each Thanksgiving. The amount contributed has usually been very generous. No people in the state have responded more liberally than those of Wasco county. But this year because of the decreased attendance at school, the contribution has fallen low compared with former ones; being only about one-third of last year's. In view of what the society is doing for the unfortunate children of our community it places us under renewed obligation to it. The agent, Mr. Renshaw, will be here until Saturday evening. If there are those who have not had an opportunity of contributing, and still desire to do so, it would be much appreciated if they would hand any donation, no matter how small, to Mr. Renshaw, Judge Blakeley, or Prof. Landers. There is no cause more worthy to which we can contribute.

Mr. S. R. Husbands, late of the Mosier neighborhood, now of Seaside, Santa Cruz, California, sends this office a bunch of cut flowers and a bunch of raspberry bush, laden with ripe berries. On a postal Mr. Husbands says the raspberry branch was taken from a row of bushes about thirty feet in length, from which he had plucked more than seventy-five boxes of berries, holding three-fourths of a pound each, within the last month. Mr. Husbands adds: "We have flowers in great variety and abundance, and are not only enjoying but reveling in the best climate in the world." For old-friendship's sake, at least, Mr. Husbands will not take it unkindly if we tell him that we had some climate here ourselves this fall. The flowers are still in bloom outdoors, for we have had very little frost. We have had some ripe raspberries quite lately, but of course not as many as Mr. Husbands has had, and ripe strawberries have been in the market almost every day until about a week ago. Mr. Husbands has the sincere thanks of THE CHRONICLE for his courtesy.

THE MEIKLEJOHN CHILDREN.

They Are Committed To the Care of Boys' and Girls' Aid Society.

The two little boys, who were reported in Wednesday's CHRONICLE as having received brutal treatment at the hands of their father and stepmother, were arrested yesterday and today committed to the custody of the Boys' and Girls' Aid Society. The boys' names are Stanley and Clyde Meiklejohn, aged respectively 5 and 7 years. Their father's name is John M. Meiklejohn. He came here a short time ago from Baker City. He is a carpenter by trade and by profession a Seventh Day Adventist preacher. Armed with necessary papers Deputy Sheriff Sexton, J. A. Renshaw, of the Boys' and Girls' Aid Society, Deputy County Clerk Simeon Bolton and THE CHRONICLE man went yesterday morning to bring the children away. The family reside in a small frame building on the hill south of Judge Bennett's residence. The stepmother and children were at home. The father was at work on the W. A. Johnston building. The house was neat and clean. The children's clothing was the best of them. The pinched, old-mannish look of the older boy, with his black and bruised eye and face and swollen hand, and the swollen cheek and bruised and swollen hands of the younger would have melted the heart of a stone.

The woman seemed to have expected us. When Sexton announced his business she showed no more emotion than if we had come to take away the house cat. The children were togged up a little and their little belongings packed in a paper parcel when we started on the back track. The woman saw the children leave her doorstep with the stolid indifference of the basalt rocks around her dwelling. When about 200 yards from the house the younger child began to cry and without the compliance of prompting or suggestion from anybody said: "Mamma's gone. I don't like her. I never want to see her any more." There was a little sob on his nose. The writer pointed to it and asked, "What did that?" The child answered, "Mamma kicked me down." "Then you must have been sitting on the floor," the writer pointed to it and asked, "What did that?" "No, I wasn't. I was standing up." "What did she kick you for?" was asked. "Because I put two sticks in the stove when she told me to put in only one."

There was a wound on the older boy's thumb. He was asked how he got it. His answer was that he got it sawing wood. "Does your pa not saw the wood?" was asked. "He sawed one stick a long time ago," was the answer. Then the little one said his mamma used to stuff cloths in his mouth to prevent the neighbors from hearing him cry when she was whipping him.

When brought to the hotel the writer examined the elder boy's back and hips and thigh and found them covered with bruises to the number of thirty by actual count.

At the examination today these and numerous other evidences of cruelty were brought fully out, as was the fact that the present brutality was a repetition of what happened to two elder children in Baker City about six months ago. The father absolutely denied any cruelty in the present instance in spite of the clearest evidence in the world. When Judge Blakeley announced his decision the father manifested considerable emotion and begged hard that the children be not taken from him.

The writer accompanied the children back to the hotel. As he was about to leave he took the younger one in his arms and said: "Come, let me take you back to your mamma, and have a good time." The child instantly cried out, while the tears streamed down his cheeks: "I don't want to go back to mamma; I don't want never to go back. The writer set him on his feet and said: "Then, my child, you will never have to go back," when a smile instantly lit up his little bruised face as he said: "I don't care; I'm just glad I'm not going back." How much cruelty it took to put these unnatural words in the mouth of a child of five years. God alone knows.

In an Ohio town this year the African Methodist Episcopal church of that district held a conference. The colored population of the little town made great preparations to ascertain the visiting clergymen. A few days after the conference closed its sessions one of the leading women of the town drove out in her buggy to purchase chickens of Aunt Hattie, who had supplied the family for some time. Aunt Hattie, coming to the door, said: "You're Miss Alice. I don't give chickens for my Day of Nowhere do ministry."
