PENDLETON MEETS DEFEAT.

The Dalles Boys Do Not Allow the Visitors to Score.

Owing to the lateness of the Pendleton Scouting Mill team in arriving at The Dalles, which was due to a delayed train, the game between The Dalles first and this eleven was not called until 4 p. m. Saturday.

The kickoff fell to the home team and in a moment after the signal for the opening of the game the Dalles boys were close to the Pendleton goal and were steadily pressing their way through their lines and it was plain that the visitors had no show to win. In less than five minutes from the opening of the game Cooper scored a touch-down, after which a goal was kicked. From this time on the game was almost a repetition of what had already taken place, as the visitors were incapable of coping with the home eleven. The second touch-down was made by Williams and as another goal was kicked, at the close of the first half the game stood 12 to 0 in favor of The Dalles.

In the second half three touch-downs were scored by Cooper, Williams and Groehler, but owing to the fact that darkness was coming on and of the wet condition of the field, no goals were kicked and after playing 12 minutes the visitors gave up the game the total time taken up by the game being about 35 minutes, while the score stood 27 to 0.

Although the visitors were badly defeated no one should labor under the impression that they are poor players. On the other hand they should consider that they were not in shape to put up a game, having played Heppner's team on Thursday, the Wasco boys on Friday and without any chance to get in shape after this game came here Saturday. Several of the boys were not in a condition to play at all and during the last half The Dalles team had their man Schmidt take the place of Ratigan, one of the Pendleton subs who was unable to play on account of injuries. It was simply an exhibition game as the visitors knew from the first that they could not win when they were so badly handicapped, and it passed off very pleasantly.

The visitors are a gentlemanly lot of young men and made many friends while in the city. The line up is as follows:

PENDLETON.	THE DALLES.
Dopino	Schmidt
Anderson	Starr
Schmidt	Allard
Sievens	Oiney
Finch	Patterson
Coffman	Bartel
Moorehouse	Scott
Hessian	Murray

The Popular Play, "Yon Yonson."

At the Vogt opera house next Friday night "Yon Yonson," the greatest of all Swedish dialect plays, will be seen for the first time here. The Portland Telegram of Oct. 21st has the following to say:

When it comes to drawing a house at Cordray's there are few attractions equal to "Yon Yonson." When this show was here last there was not even standing room available, and it looked as though the capacity of the theater was reached. A theater, however, is like a crowded street-car, no matter if the seats and aisles are filled and passengers hang on to the steps by their eyebrows, there is always room for one more. So it is at a playhouse when there is a drawing card. "Yon Yonson" stood "em up again last evening at Cordray's even more so than on the last visit. It was a banner house.

There is no occasion to present a synopsis of "Yon Yonson." Every one knows it by heart, and many of the lines have become familiar phrases. There is the railroad station, where Yon, just over from the old country, has his first adventures and separates himself from his wad of greenbacks at every touching tale of tribulation. He is made love to by the buxom Irish widow and escapes as the train pulls out and the curtain descends. The logging camp, with the memorable log jam, snow and glittering forest, follows, when Yon has the pleasure of dumping the villain into the creek, and later of rescuing the heroine from the grinding logs. Finally, Yon becomes a genuine gentleman, and captures his sweetheart, though arrayed in a misfit dress suit.

The Musical and Dramatic Review of Denver, Colo., has the following to say of Mamie Helen Flynn, who is to appear at the Vogt Thursday, Dec. 5th, assisted by Rose Bloch-Bauer, soprano, and Reginald L. Hidden, violinist: "We present to our readers in this issue the portrait of one of the most brilliant graduates of the Denver conservatory of music, Miss Mamie Helen Flynn, of Huntington, Oregon, daughter of P. J. Flynn, superintendent of the Northwest railway. Since her graduation she has won a reputation gained by few young artists, having appeared before large audiences in several Western states with great success and is known as Baker county's favorite daughter. While at the conservatory Miss Flynn was heard in many recitals and concerts, and her services were often in demand for church and society entertainments. Former students and patrons of the conservatory will remember the brilliant and successful recital for graduation given by the fair young artist during the commencement week in June '09, and all take a just pride in the wonderful success she has since achieved."

DEADBEATS IN ALL CLIMES.

Wall Signs Prepared for Their Especial Benefit All the World Over.

Two New Yorkers, sitting at a round table in a combination barroom and restaurant, eating hot roast beef sandwiches and drinking beer, had their attention called to a sign over the bar which read: "In God we trust; all others cash." "That sign smacks too much of sacrilege," said one. "It's witty, perhaps, but I don't like it. A sign that one sees in many English ale houses conveys the same hint to those who desire credit, and yet does not drag in the sacred name. This sign I speak of is often accompanied by the picture of a faithful watchdog lying dead on the ground, and the legend reads: "Old Trust is dead; bad pay killed him."

"The difference between the two signs," replied his companion, "it seems to me, is the national difference between British humor and Yankee wit. When I was in Europe last vacation I often saw a sign in the wine shops there which I never saw anywhere else until a few days ago I spied it decorating the wall of a little Italian drinking shop on the Lower East side. It reads: "To-morrow we give credit, but not to-day."

"The dead beat seems to be the especial product of no particular nation," said the first speaker. "By the way, will you lend me a half? I don't like to hang up the house. Never do it, indeed. Matter of principle with me. Thank you. Return it next time we meet, of course."

She Didn't Wear a Mask.

Old Soldier's Experience.
