The star player of the Heppner Giants was considered to be Charles O'Neil, the all-round athlete of the organization.

All those having bills against the football association are requested to bring in their bills at once, leaving them with Manager E. H. Grant.

Still the marriage licenses continue to be issued. Those for today were J. P. Lucas and Olivia Morgan and J. F. Wiley and Zerado Galloway.

The Christmas exercises, tree and party given to the pupils of the Episcopal Sunday school Saturday were, of course, thoroughly enjoyed by them and in the anticipation and realization their Christmas joys were extended throughout the entire week.

Leslie Butler returned to Hood River on the noon train, having attended the banquet Saturday night. Mr. Butler said never had he attended a function in The Dalles which gave him more satisfaction, the openness of sentiment as regards the good of this entire section of the county being so self-evident.

If you want extra copies of the New Year Chronicle, secure them immediately as they are meeting a speedy sale. The carrier boys will call at every house in the city Tuesday with the New Year issue for sale, so be prepared to purchase whatever number of this souvenir edition you desire. Price 10 cents.

Arthur Clark, captain of the Heppner Giants, desires The Chronicle to express in behalf of his team, their appreciation for the kind treatment and hospitality extended by The Dalles people, and wishes to say that the game was fair and square in all respects, and that they were simply defeated by a better team.

Cards are out announcing the marriage of Christine, eldest daughter of I. C. Nickelsen, to Mr. Harry Grubb, of Arlington, Wednesday, January 8th, 1902. THE CHRONICLE extends congratulations.

Yesterday being the fifteenth anniversary of the marriage of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Wilson, a few of their neighbors surprised them by walking in last evening unawares and spending the evening very pleasantly with them.

Tomorrow night at 8 o'clock a watch night service will be held at the M. E. church, continuing until 12 o'clock. The pastor will preach a sermon and other religious exercises will take place. The public are invited to attend.

The club members are arranging to watch the old year out and the new year at the club rooms tomorrow night, in a jolly manner, with a short musical program, bowling and all the amusements the club affords. It being ladies' night, it is hoped a large crowd will be in attendance.

This morning at The Dalles Hospital Dr. Ferguson amputated the left leg of Louis Burlingame, who was brought here from Mosier a few days since suffering with necrosis of the bone. Although the leg was in a bad condition and taken off at the hip, the boy stood the operation remarkably well.

Every family in The Dalles should send at least one copy of THE CHRONICLE New Year number to relatives or friends in the East. The wheels will go round in the Dalles Flouring Mills built by the Wasco Warehouse Milling Company, at an expense close on to half a million dollars, some time next week. This enterprise to us of the Inland Empire ranks far ahead of the incipient enterprises which caused such unisaculous growth to Minneapolis and the state of Minnesota. The Dalles will now become the prospective promoter of a surprising interior development.—Observer.

The engagement is announced of Miss Jeannette Gynor Williams, eldest daughter of Mrs. A. M. Williams, and Mr. A. G. Dunn, of Seattle. The wedding will be solemnized on January 8th in Portland, and the happy couple will leave at once for a six-months trip to Europe. Mr. Dunn is one of the leading business men of Seattle, being connected with a large shipping firm. Although having lived in Portland for several years, we still claim Miss Williams as a Dalles girl and as such her friends here are deeply interested in her welfare and will extend their sincere well wishes.

Senator Raley made no mistake at the banquet Saturday night when he remarked that The Dalles is no "ten-cent town." That fact has been demonstrated in a hundred ways in the past few months and is recognized by all who have any business dealings with us. In no place of its size on the coast does more money change hands, or is more substantial business transacted. Among the minor evidences of its prosperity during the past summer is the fact that so much real estate has changed hands and so many fine residences been erected. Other evidences are too numerous to mention; but it takes more than ten cents to buy us out.

Among the little ones who took part in the Christmas exercises of the Boys and Girls Aid Society in Portland we notice the name of Clyde Meiklejohn, one of the children who was beaten so badly by his parents and taken in charge by the society a month since. 'Tis not to be wondered that among the forty children there this little one should be chosen as one of those who took part in the program for he is certainly one of the brightest children imaginable, and Superintendent Gardner informed the writer recently that as soon as the transfer of the children to the society is made permanent he will find not the slightest difficulty in obtaining homes for the Meiklejohn children, application having already been made for them.

As the new street lights dissipated the blackness of the past year or two Saturday night, our citizens felt that a new era had dawned, and that whereas they were blind now they see. The power for the lights now in use is generated by steam, passing, however, through the new appliances, and are all that could be desired. Beside being free from the unpleasant flickering so annoying in the old street lights, they have the advantage of being enclosed, thus preventing the bug nuisance. Electrician McArthur, with his assistants, labored until midnight Saturday night in the endeavor to grade the lights to the desired degree. Chief Engineer Simmons, of the Pacific Bridge Company, left yesterday for Des Chutes, and the water will be turned on the wheels today. It will require a few days at least, to test the machinery thoroughly, making the date of the final advent of the power into the city an uncertainty. The last delay was caused by the potential switch board which was shipped from Sebastopol on the 25th, failing to reach here until yesterday. The mill is in perfect condition and only awaits the touch of the magic wand.

EATE, DRANK AND WERE MERRY

How Our Citizens Succeeded in Celebrating in Honor of the Wasco Warehouse Milling Company.

The banquet given Saturday evening by the citizens of The Dalles to the members of the Wasco Warehouse Milling Company was one of the most pleasant and sociable events ever occurring in The Dalles. The big dining room of the Umatilla House was beautifully decorated, and the two long tables running diagonally across the room and meeting at the front doors were a mass of glittering glassware, flecked out with ferns and flowers.

Promptly at 9 o'clock the doors were thrown open, and the merry crowd of "celebrants" filed in. Covers were laid for 164—and there was not a vacant chair. Mayor Farley presided, "opening the ball" with a short but pithy statement of the occasion of the hilarity, expressing in warmest terms the appreciation the people of The Dalles—all of them—had for those who had carried the undertaking to so successful an issue, and in conclusion called upon Hon. E. O. McCoy to respond to the toast, "The Wasco Warehouse Milling Company," the toast being washed down with all on their feet. This of course occurred after the men had been discussed.

It seems superfluous to say that the table would have groaned under its weight of good things, but groaning was not permissible, so it just suffered in silence.

Mr. McCoy in responding gave a too brief history of the trials and troubles the company had met with, including that of the strike of the steel workers east, which delayed the shipping of machinery, and prevented the completion of the work in October, as was intended. He was given an encore, but as there was only one company to give the history of, declined to respond. He was followed by Hon. E. S. Wilson with "remarks." He suggested that while Hon. J. N. Williamson was down on the program for an "oration," Judge Bennett, S. L. Brooks and himself for "remarks" and N. W. Sheldon for a speech, that Rev. D. V. Poling was, when they all got through, only able to "talk." Mr. Wilson's remarks were to the point; bright and sparkling with wit. Mr. Brooks was unavoidably absent.

Mr. Sheldon made a solid business talk, and perpetrated a pun on Mr. Lord, the purport of which was unfortunately missed, but which brought down the house.

Hon. J. N. Williamson made a strong speech, setting forth the wonderful resources of Crook county, which must all add to the prosperity of The Dalles, and another toast to "Our Sister Counties" was drunk standing.

Prof. J. S. Landers made a very witty and telling little talk that was heartily applauded, and was followed by Mr. Douthat of the Times-Mountaineer in a brief talk on the future of The Dalles and surrounding country, which was received with a hand-clapping that must have made many a palm tingle.

Hon. W. H. Wilson laid the blame of not being loaded with a speech on his namesake, H. S., whom he claimed had promised to write one out for him but had failed. Apology, however, was quite unnecessary, for one of the best speeches of the evening was given by that gentleman, who voiced the sentiment of all in his remarks.

Hon. J. H. Raley, who happened in, was called on. All who are acquainted with the senator know how easily and gracefully he speaks. On this occasion he "outdid" himself, and "hoped to see The Dalles grow until Pendleton was one of its suburbs, and that its lights and power could be furnished from Mt. Hood." This brought out a toast to Umatilla county—another stand-up fellow.

Judge Bennett made one of his best talks—witty, logical, forceful—suggestive of things to come.

Rev. Poling turned a neat point by saying he was indeed glad to address so large a congregation of gentlemen, and if they would consult their watches they would understand why. It was two minutes after midnight. There was only one fault with his talk, and that was, it was too short.

J. H. Cradlebaugh was down on the program for a "house-warming," and claimed that Judd Fish put him in the basement to look after the furnace, and was not present. However, those who listened to his characteristic remarks say he was decidedly "in it," and if it were possible to find one in the house who needed warming up to the situation, Cradlebaugh succeeded in making the house-warming complete.

This is all told briefly, but it must
