Mr. Bogue's lecture, community singing under the direction of W. H. Arbury with Dr. F. R. Braseau at the piano held sway for 20 minutes. The aims and purposes of Community Service were explained by those in charge of the meeting after which Captain T. G. Cook demonstrated to the huge delight of the kiddies particularly, plays and games for both youngsters and grownups. Songs by the crowd concluded the evening's program.

1200 Acres Embraces Commercial Land — Not all of the 2,000 acres of orchard and produce land, said by the 1920 government census report to be included within the boundaries of Wasco county, is what can be termed as commercial orchard and produce land, according to E. R. Jackman, county agent, who has just completed a survey of the county in connection with the campaign being put on by the Oregon Growers' Cooperative association for the signing up of 1200 acres of land and the formation of a local branch association. Many small orchards and gardens are included in the census report, which are too small to be considered in the commercial class, according to Jackman. He expected that when the state cooperative association completes the signing up of 1200 acres of fruit and produce land, virtually every fruit and vegetable grower of any size in the county will be a member of the new association. The hard freeze two winters ago killed many more fruit trees than was originally believed to be the case, Jackman said.

KARL'S DREAM

Karl would constitute a great national danger.

Conflicting reports were received as to whether Karl had signed a formal statement of abdication before his departure. One dispatch from Budapest said he refused and merely consented to go to a neutral country, either Switzerland or Spain. Other advices declared he had signed official repudiation of his monarchic ambitions.

The Hungarian government was reported to have promised to grant amnesty to all persons in any way connected with Karl's attempted coup.

GENEVA, April 2—The Swiss general council has decided provisionally to permit former Emperor Karl to return to this country.

Among the promises which will be exacted from Karl will be to abstain from political propaganda and not leave Switzerland again without formal notice.

Real Estate--Markets--Financial

Continued brisk demand for country acreage was the feature of the Wasco county real estate market during the last week. With county roads now in good condition, permitting dealers to take "prospects" to the various ranches listed for sale, a big increase in the sale of ranches and fruit acreage is expected during the next few weeks.

The largest offering of the year was placed on sale last week, when W. C. Hanna of Dufur announced that he had authority to sell 2,000 acres of orchard land in the tract now belonging to the Dufur Orchard company. All of the land offered is set out in seven and eight year old trees. The sale is said to be for the purpose of raising money with which to finance the continued operation of the Dufur Orchard company's holdings.

Very few transactions were reported by city real estate dealers during the last week, however. Darnelle Bros. reported the sale of a modern residence on View street from E. A. St. Marie to A. E. Fight Bug Army.

Now is the time to plan a right flank movement on the army of bugs, says the American Forestry association, which calls on every American citizen to enlist to make it a big year against the insect pests that destroy $500,000,000 worth of property every year. The birds are the great "front line army" in this warfare the association points out, but folks cannot work as fast as birds so they must resort to other means.

There are two big divisions to the advancing hosts. These are the chewing and sucking insects. Plans to get them differ. The plan of campaign is determined by the kind of injury done for you are only wasting time applying the methods for chewing insects to those that suck their food.

Bordeaux mixture does not kill insects, it only prevents and controls damage by disease. Chewing insects are generally controlled by poisoning what they feed on, while sucking insects are only controlled by spraying the insects themselves. Determine how the creature secures its food—(1) whether by chewing and swallowing portions of its food, or (2) by sucking the juices of the plants through a tiny beak inserted in the plant tissue.

The first group, usually called chewing insects, can generally be controlled by poisoning their food at an advantageous time, with some of the well known arsenical compounds. The work of chewing insects is usually recognized by the ragged or perforated condition of the foliage.

The second group, composed of sucking insects, can be controlled by oily or corrosive contact sprays applied directly to the bodies of the insects. It is useless to attempt any control of a sucking insect by the application of a stomach poison, either to the surface or in the sap of a food plant. The work of sucking insects is not so easily recognized as that of the preceding group, since the affected plants show little external injury. Gradual weakening withering or shriveling of the attacked plant is generally evidence of attack by sucking insects.

Paris Green Works Fast.

In the battle against the bugs everybody wants action, says the American Forestry association, and for that reason Paris Green is used in preference to other things because it is quicker on the trigger than arsenate of lead, for example. This widely known bug getter is, when pure, a brilliant green and a finely divided powder. Here is the combination suggested by the American Forestry association for spraying purposes: Paris Green, five eighths of an ounce; lump lime, one pound; water or Bordeaux mixture (never lime-sulphate), fifty gallons.

In small quantities use Paris Green, one teaspoonful; lump lime, size of a walnut; water, two gallons. This should be applied in a liquid spray, or may be used with 10 or 12 times its weight of plaster Paris, flour, or fine air-slacked lime, which is preferable. Burning of the foliage when spraying with Paris Green will occur on account of a small amount of water-soluble arsenic. This difficulty may be overcome by using an equal amount of lime, which counteracts the burning qualities. The use of Paris Green for spraying is advantageous in case the poison needs to be removed where plants are used for show purposes. The same is true in its use on certain fruits which are approaching the ripening stage.

certain seed firms at what may appear to be attractive prices, often contain so little alsike or red clover that they are of little more value than timothy seed, but actually cost nearly double the market price of that seed, say specialists of the United States department of agriculture. These mixtures are usually offered by the bushel, followed by the qualifying statement that a bushel weighs only 45 pounds.

In other words, this seed is offered as clover and timothy with the claim that the different seeds occur in the proper proportion for seeding, while frequently there is not more than 5 or 6 percent of clover present—not enough to be of any value in the crop.

Persons who buy mixed seed can not be too careful to learn the exact proportion of the mixtures they get and the quality of the seed composing them. Otherwise, they are likely to pay an exorbitant price for seed that will not give the crop wanted.

Although there have been reductions in the price of many building materials, high wage rates and working rules which make economical employment of labor impossible, together with high freight rates, have prevented material lowering of construction costs. As a result building has been restricted almost entirely to absolutely necessary work. The F. W. Dodge company's review of building and construction activity during February estimates new contracts awarded in the states north of the Ohio and east of the Missouri at $100,789,000 as compared with contracts for $216,663,000 awarded in February, 1920. A considerable volume of inquiries indicates that there is a potential demand which will make itself felt as soon as and not until costs of labor and material are lowered to what the public regards as reasonable. Meanwhile, the disinclination of labor not only to accept lower wage rates but to give adequate return for wages paid will continue to restrict new housing, thus directly preventing a reduction in rent which, next to food, is the largest single item of the workmen's living expenses.—National Bank of Commerce.
