

IF EUROPE'S PEACE IS MENACED U. S. WILL BE CONCERNED

KNOX PEACE RESOLUTION WILL CONTAIN THIS PROTECTION PROVISO.

By John M. Gleisner
(United News Staff Correspondent.)
WASHINGTON, April 5.—The Knox peace resolution, to be reintroduced by its author as soon as congress meets, will contain a declaration that if the peace and freedom of Europe is again menaced and civilization is again threatened the United States will feel itself concerned.

The clause will state that if such a contingency arises the United States will consult with the powers affected, and will, if there is necessity, "carry out the same complete accord and cooperation with our chief co-belligerents for the defense of civilization."

Aside from this, according to present plans, the resolution as introduced, will not differ from its original form. It will give no assurances to France or other allied powers that America is standing with them in their efforts to compel Germany to pay reparations.

Senator Knox does not wish to burden his resolution with other matters than the simple ending of the state of war with Germany. He does not object to a declaration from congress on the subject of reparations, calculated to give moral support to France, but he does not feel that such a declaration should be incorporated in his peace resolution. Knox and other influential republicans consider the communication of the American government to Germany on reparations, and the recent pronouncement from the state department, as sufficient evidence that no comfort will be extended to Germany in attempted evasions of responsibility for the war.

"The statement of policy, which is to be included in the peace resolution, originally was offered by Knox, in June, 1919, when he endeavored to have the peace treaty proper divorced from the covenant of the league of nations. Objection developed in the committee on foreign relations at that time and it was eliminated.

The clause reads:
"That finally, it shall be the declared policy of our government, in order to meet fully and fairly our obligations to ourselves and the world, that the freedom and peace of Europe being again threatened by any power, or combination of powers, the United States will regard such a situation with grave concern as a menace to its own peace and freedom, will consult with other powers affected with a view to devising means for the removal of such menace, and will, the necessity arising in the future, carry out the same complete accord and cooperation with our chief co-belligerents for the defense of civilization."

The clause, as drawn originally, was calculated to dispel the fears of the allies that America was withdrawing her support from them and seeking to evade world responsibility. It is argued that it will serve the same purpose again.

Meantime, senators are without assurances from the White House as to what President Harding proposes to do about concluding peace with Germany, as nearly as can be ascertained.

The president, apparently, is delaying an announcement until the last moment, in the belief that changed conditions might force an alteration of his plans. This is the construction placed upon the White House silence by leading republicans, who say nevertheless that they have no cause to believe President Harding has changed his view that peace immediately be made by declaration.

How soon the resolution will be passed is problematical. The consideration of the Colombian treaty will delay it for eight days. Perhaps by that time a tariff bill will have been passed by the house and will be urged for immediate consideration in the upper chamber. Senators haven't received indications that President Harding desires to delay the resolution but it will be referred to the committee on foreign relations which can readily postpone its action.

Leading republicans have explained to M. Viviani, special envoy of France, that any attempt to block the Knox resolution is hopeless. Viviani has been told it is simply an attempt to "make the record conform to the fact, and enable America to resume relations with Germany as England and France have done. He has been assured that passage of the peace resolution does not imply lack of moral support to France and that it does not mean support to Germany.

It was indirectly suggested from a French source that a declaration on reparations might be included. The reply to this was that such a declaration does not rightfully belong in the peace resolution.

In his discussions, Viviani is said to have given the impression he has abandoned any hope that America might enter the league of nations.

$50,000 in cash, according to a check made of the money in the postoffice today.

As Bisbee is within 15 miles of the Mexican border it is believed that the Mexicans have made for the international line.

According to Bailey's story the Mexicans entered the postoffice last night while he was working. They covered him with their guns and forced him to open the safe, threatening him with death if he refused.

After he opened the safe they bound and gagged him and hit him over the head with an iron bar.

He was found in his office this morning in a serious condition. It is thought that he has a fair chance of recovery.

The loot obtained consisted of more than $40,000 in bills, intended for the payroll of the Bisbee mines, and approximately $10,000 in gold and silver coin.

Sheriff Wheeler is a former officer of the Arizona state constabulary and has lived in Cochise county for many years. He left here with the statement that he would get the bandits dead or alive.

"The Torrent"

Playing at the Casino Wednesday and Thursday this week with Eva Novak is an unusual picture. It tells a story of two lovers alone on a Pacific island under extraordinary conditions and of the uncertainty that awaits them on their return to civilization. It was written by George Rix, whose adventure stories are based on experience, and was directed by Stuart Paton.

Did you see "Male and Female," "Down to Earth," "Swiss Family Robinson?" Yes! Then see "The Torrent."
