

TWO SMASHED BY CLUB OF PROWLER

BRUTAL ASSAILANT ESCAPES—HAS OPERATED FOR TWO WEEKS.

By United Press
DALLAS, Tex., April 21—A club-wielding prowler, who attacks persons as they lay asleep and who has been eluding posses for two weeks, today claimed two more victims.

The mysterious assailant crawled through a window in the home of Shirley Russell and fractured Mrs. Russell's skull and beat and mangled her husband, fracturing his jaw with a heavy timber. The prowler again escaped.

SENATE RATIFIES

Bryan during Wilson's administration.

The principal change made by the committee from the original draft was removal of the clause expressing "sincere regret" on the part of the United States. This apology had been the principal target for treaty opponents. The vote was 69 to 19, 11 more than the necessary two-thirds. Fifteen republicans refused to follow their party leaders and voted against ratification; four democrats also voted "No."

Senator Borah, chief opponent of the treaty, attacked it with vigor from all angles in the closing hours of debate.

As a last minute piece of strategy, he introduced an addition to it in the hope of forcing a renewal of negotiations which brought confusion to his republican colleagues, and gained more support than any other change proposed.

Borah, with others opposing the treaty, has contended that its ratification constitutes an admission by this country that it violated international law. So he proposed to insert a clause expressly stating that the treaty was not to be construed as an admission of this fact.

The amendment said that "neither said payment nor anything that is contained in this treaty shall be taken or regarded as an admission that the secession of Panama in November, 1903, was in any way aided or abetted by the United States or its agents or representatives, or that said government in any way violated its obligations to Colombia."

The senate voted also to reject additions which would have lowered or increased the amount to be paid Colombia, and which would have deprived her of special privileges in the use of the Panama canal.

These privileges would permit her to transport troops through the canal at the same cost as those of the United States, would put her citizens on a commercial equality with those of America, and allow her to transport coal, petroleum and seafood by railroad across the isthmus at cost.

U. S. MAY HEAR

was authoritatively summed up as follows:

They will not accept a 20 percent wage reduction and will vehemently oppose any reduction.

They might accept, rather than strike, a reduction of 10 or 15 percent in their wages.

The wage question already has been discussed by the seamen and the shipowners at a conference here, the shipowners having called the men into a meeting a few weeks ago and notified them that wages would be reduced. No agreement was reached and it was at that time determined to leave the matter to the conference of shipowners and seamen in New York.

Pacific coast seamen are strong organized. They claim they are more firmly united than are the men employed on the Atlantic.

Wages paid on the Pacific now range from 15 to 20 percent higher than those paid on the Atlantic coast.

ROUND COAST BASES

By United Press
SAN FRANCISCO, April 21—The Coast league had two leaders today.

Vernon walloped the Seals right gracefully, and Sacramento took its toll of runs from Seattle yesterday with the result that the Seals and the Solons now are tied for the head of the percentage column. Each team has a record of 12 wins and 3 defeats—a percentage of .800.

Oakland turned on Los Angeles in an amazing fashion and beat the Angels, 15 to 2. Nineteen Oakland hits figured in the scoring.

Portland won its second game of the season, beating the Bees, 3 to 1.

JURY OF WOMEN WILL JUDGE MRS. ORTHWEIN

By United Press
CHICAGO, April 21—An uplifted eyebrow and a mouth that twitched amusedly were the only expressions of Mrs. Cora Isabel Orthwein amid the possibility that she will be tried by a jury of women.

Mrs. Orthwein, a divorcee, shot and killed Herbert P. Zeigler, a tire man, in her fashionable furnished apartment several months ago.

A woman jury for the case was practically assured Wednesday when Mrs. Orthwein's lawyers agreed in court that the defendant be tried by 12 of her own sex. Judge Francis S. Wilson, to whom the case has been assigned, said he "could see no legal objection" to the plan.

Mrs. Orthwein appeared in court looking 10 years younger than on the day following her arrest. She was elaborately dressed.

A dozen years ago a resident of the coal district of Pennsylvania, having saved a few thousand dollars, decided to spend it all as he imagined a millionaire would. So, he started for New York in a private car, earning the title of "A Millionaire for a Day."

This man had apparently enjoyed dreams of how it would be to spend without a thought, to be able to buy anything and everything he desired. That was not only this person's dream—it's the dream of every individual who hasn't unlimited wealth at his or her beck and call.

Realizing this fact, Mr. Nolan, manager of the Empress theater, has decided to offer the opportunity to everyone in The Dalles and surrounding country, to put his or her dreams on paper, in other words all one has to do is to write a brief essay on how he or she would act if suddenly in receipt of a legacy of a million dollars. The idea was suggested to Mr. Nolan by the Paramount picture, "Brewster's Millions," and the management of the Empress theater, realizing what a human question this is, will offer five prizes, donated by local merchants of The Dalles, to one whose essays on the subject are judged the best.

The staff of The Chronicle has agreed to act as judges of the compositions and the prizes will be awarded in accordance with their decisions. Also, the work of the prize winners will be published in The Chronicle immediately following the closing of the contest.

There is no entrance fee of any kind. Anyone is eligible. Merely a suggestion it's advisable to see the Paramount picture, "Brewster's Millions," which will be exhibited at the Empress theater Thursday and Friday, April 28 and 29. You will then learn how Monte Brewster proceeded when he suddenly found himself a millionaire. You can use your own judgement regarding how you would act if you suddenly acquired great wealth.

When you have completed your essay, leave it at the Empress theater box office, or at the office of The Chronicle. All entries must be in by 9 o'clock, Saturday, April 30.

The list of prizes will be announced in tomorrow's issue of The Chronicle.

HELP! BURGLAR! POLICE FIND PLUMBER REPAIRING SINK

"Come quick, there's a burglar breaking into the house next door. Oh, I'm sure he's desperate. Hurry, hurry—On Kelly avenue and Fulton—"

Chief of Police Frank Heater yesterday afternoon received the above information over the telephone, from a very excited woman. Calling Patrolman McClaskey, the two policemen hailed a taxi and within a few minutes were speeding to the scene of the robbery.

In the taxicab, the two policemen planned their attack. It was arranged that Heater was to enter by the front door and McClaskey by the rear door, thus having the burglar between them should he choose to offer resistance.

The house in question was reached. Springing out of the automobile, McClaskey followed the plan and ran for the rear door. A few jumps behind, Heater sprang for the front door.

The front door was unlocked. Drawing his revolver, Heater cautiously stepped inside.

In the rear of the house, McClaskey was going through the same procedure.

Both officers paused. Strange noises were emanating from the kitchen, as if the burglar was gathering the family silverware and tossing it in a sack preparatory to making his "get-away."

More cautious tiptoeing and Heater came upon the burglar at work.

The "burglar," Fred Christen, was busily engaged in repairing the kitchen sink. Dressed in workmen's clothes and carrying his plumber's kit of "burglar tools," he had broken into the house to repair the sink, at the request of Mrs. Ella Burgess, owner of the house.

Forgetting that she had requested Christen to repair the sink, Mrs. Burgess had left to transact business down town. A neighbor, seeing her leave and realizing that no one was at home, had come to the natural conclusion that the house was being burglarized when she had seen the plumber "break in."

Christen was released after he had convinced the police that he was an honest "burglar," plying his trade as a plumber for a living.

CONSTABLES END GAMBLING IN TEXAS BALL LEAGUE

By United Press
DALLAS, Texas, April 21—With constables standing guard, gambling at Texas league baseball games here was under a strict ban today. Two deputies patrolled the grounds to prohibit betting yesterday after authorities were informed that betting on games was taking place in wagons of $100 or more.

"Ninety percent of such bets are crooked. I understand higher-ups get a rake off," said Constable Guggenheim. He declared he is investigating a report that there are places in Dallas where bets on the outcome of baseball games as high as $1,000 are quickly covered.

children of the 15 which were born to Mrs. Ohlgeschlager. These were loved and mourned, but the first little daughter was still unaccounted for. So constant was his mother's anxiety that the idea became fixed in Harry Mathwig's mind to find his sister.

He was called into the service during the world war and his company spent some time in Denver, Colo. Remembering that his mother had said that the sister was lost there, he went to the superintendent of the boys' and girls' society for information. It was first refused him but his persistent questioning finally persuaded the superintendent to bring out old records and to get the names of the people a Mr. and Mrs. Dench, who had adopted the little girl so long ago. Further search was then instituted. About Christmas time young Mathwig located his sister in Denver. She was married and the mother of a small boy and girl Mr. and Mrs. Dench were located in Astoria Oregon. Letters were immediately exchanged and the chasm of the years was bridged for Mrs. Ohlgeschlager.

The daughter is now Mrs. Joan Long. She with her two children, after several days' visit here left the city yesterday for their home.

After 31 years of anxiety Mrs. Ohlgeschlager found that her daughter had been given excellent educational advantages had a comfortable home and friends and is now happily married. She is desirous of visiting Mr. and Mrs. Dench of Astoria and expressing her gratitude to them. The Ohlgeschlagers have lived in The Dalles for the last 27 years.

THE SCOREBOARD

Yesterday's hero: Babe Ruth. The Bambino smacked a homer in the seventh inning, his second of the season. The Yankees beat the Red Sox 8 to 4. Bobby Meusel also clouted a homer.

SERVICE DRUG STORE HAS THOMSEN'S CANDIES

When Don W. Yantis opened the Service Drug store, just west of the Parlor Grocery, he decided that nothing but of the best standard should go into the stocks he dispensed. It was in line with this that he put in a complete supply of the famous Thomsen candies and chocolates, an Oregon product through and through. Thomsen candies are made in Portland, in a perfectly appointed candy making plant.

The Service drug store has Thomsen candies in 75c, $1.00 and $1.25 boxes; a dozen or more varieties.

It's a sure bet if you patronize home industry in this case, you will be getting something good.—Adv.
