FIGHTS KILL SPORT

To the baseball team:

The average fan who attends an exhibition of the national sports pays his money to see a ball game. He does not go out to the ball diamond to view a fight.

The two sports will not mix on a baseball lot. If the fight element enters into a contest, it is no longer a ball game or a fight.

We had a ball game here yesterday between the local team and the Maupin pastimers. One of our men hit a Maupin player. He should not have done so. The player has no right to make decisions.

When a man engaged in an athletic contest so loses control of his better nature as to fight, clean sport is robbed of all it possesses—its urge for fairness and good nature and honest rivalry.

Our team didn't show a lot of class. The pitching was fair and the backstop performed in acceptable manner, but when one says that, one says all that can be stated of praise.

But that is neither here nor there. Our boys by playing a ragged game didn't come in for censure. But when one of our players so far lost control of himself as to smash an opposing player, just then the whole Dalles team and all the spectators were placed in an unenviable position.

We hear a good deal these days about gambling ruining the national game. Gambling does harm. There is no argument against this fact.

Every time a ball player hits a contestant, he brings disrepute upon the game, upon his playing mates, upon himself and upon the town he represents.

The local boys have been asking support of local merchants. They represented that they were playing baseball. Now it appears that they are staging boxing contests.

Fellows, for the love of clean sport, let's have no more disgraceful exhibitions of unbridled temper. When we pay to see a ball game, we want to see a ball game, not a fight featuring men in action who have lost every vestige of self-control.

FATHER'S DAY

Mother has a day set apart for her. It is fitting that she should have. She has furnished the inspiration which has carried the world to its present state of civilization.

But what about poor father? Isn't he entitled to a little acclaim? Every good father is a hero. But he gets no trumpet blare, no rousing cheers. He doesn't want these marks of praise. Father is modest.

However, day after day, he is working to the betterment of the world through his children. Early and late he toils. This toil is not for himself. Father knows that if he considered his own needs, he could knock off work tomorrow and live soft.

He lives fairly and decently—for himself? No, for his children. He wants them to take example from his every day life and grow up to be square shooters and morally clean men and women.

Sometimes father is near the breaking point. He doesn't feel well. He ought to take a vacation. But he keeps everlastingly at his tasks. The children have to be looked out for.

As the children grow up, father sees that they must be given college training if they are to take their proper places in the sun. So he works harder, deprives himself of the new suit, the trip to the seaside, the automobile he has been promising himself.

Father is rather unspectacular. He does his plain duty day after day without a murmur—for the sake of the world a generation removed.

And we humbly suggest that father be given a day apart from all other days, so that his loving kindness and his tremendously worthwhile traits may be considered reverently.

HOUSE LACK ROBS US

Someone with an aptness for calculation and a trusty stub pencil has figured out that the present housing shortage in the United States is affecting 5,000,000 people.

It is safe to assume however that hundreds of persons in the smaller cities and towns are feeling the effect of too few houses. It is safe to assume that thousands of persons in the larger cities are being discommoded by the lack of adequate housing accommodations.

The housing shortage serves notice that millions of persons cannot set up homes. It says that millions of people then cannot establish the units which are the mainstays of the nation.

It means that millions of people are not leading normal lives. It means that they are but half doing the work in hand. Without proper surroundings, without adequate homes, to give rest and inspiration they cannot do it. Industry is thereby the loser. It would be interesting, were it possible, to sum up what the loss to business is, owing to the lack of houses. The figures would be staggering, unbelievable, we dare say.

We dare say that thousands upon thousands of divorcees are directly attributable to too few houses. Husband and wife can have no family life. They are crowded into a one room apartment or they go to live with relatives.

The close bond between the family which prevents divorce, is thereby severed and little differences grow into great perplexities. It would be interesting, were it possible, to sum up the exact number of homes being wrecked owing to the lack of houses.

Human happiness is being defeated by the lack of houses. Men and women aren't getting out of life what they should. The home alone supplies the great happiness to which everyone is entitled. Robbed of home, people are robbed of happiness. It would be interesting to calculate, were it possible, just how much happiness is being wrecked by lack of houses.

We may conclude, that the housing shortage is getting in deadly punches on the great American nation and that unless remedial action is taken, we'll soon be groggy on the ropes.

LAUNDRYMEN WILL GO FISHING FOR TROUT EUGENE, Ore., May 9.—A trip up the McKenzie river, famed for its mountain trout, will be one of the features of the first annual convention of the Oregon Laundry Owners' association, to be held here on May 21 and 22.

William H. Hoos and William H. Nichols, local laundry operators, are the committee in charge. Two hundred laundrymen are expected to attend.

There's A Difference If you've been a "ready made" man in the past, be a "made to order man" in the future. First class hand tailored suits to measure, $35.00 and up. W. A. Webber, one block east of post-office.

LOOKING BACKWARD

(From The Chronicle, May 9, 1896.)

The county court has authorized the making of a connected map of school districts of the county. Mr. George Morgan has been employed to do the work.

Mr. S. E. Van Vactor, a prominent attorney of Goldendale, Wash., has decided to cast his lot with us and will open an office in this city for the practice of his profession.

Miss Grace Scott, who for some time has been employed as a compositor in the Baptist Sentinel office, left yesterday for her home in Corvallis.

Erwin Parker went to Cascade this morning. He was the bearer of a beautiful basket of out-door-grown flowers, designed as a gift to Mrs. Lakehardt and Miss Aldrich.

Elder J. W. Jenkins returned from Heppner Tuesday quite ill. He is recovering slowly and hopes to be able to fill his appointment at Dufur Saturday evening and Sunday.
