MOVIE MOVES

Godless Men

There is the twang of the sea, the thrill of human combat with the elements and the drama of red-blooded sailors in "Godless Men," the Reginald Barker production, a Goldwyn offering.

This photoplay is a film adaptation of the Ben Ames Williams story "Black Pawl," which appeared in the Saturday Evening Post. The action centers about a brutal old sea-dog who has been called "Black Pawl." He rules his ship Deborah with fear, the most mutinous character aboard being his own son Red Pawl. He had taken his boy at tender age on a voyage only to return and find the mother with his little daughter had eloped with another man. From that moment he denied the existence of God and taught his son the gospel of hate.

On the island a missionary, Samuel Poor, had attended a dying woman who pleaded with him to get her daughter back to civilization on the first boat. Red Pawl looked lustfully upon the girl and conspired with a seaman, Spiess, to kill his father, that he, Red Pawl, might be master of the ship and of the girl.

On board a pure love affair sprang up between Ruth and second mate.

SIMPLE WASH REMOVES RINGS UNDER EYES

The Dalles people will be surprised how quickly simple witch hazel, camphor, hydrastis, etc., relieves bloodshot eyes and dark rings. One young lady who had eye trouble and very unsightly dark rings was relieved by a single week's use of Lavoptik. We guarantee a small bottle to help ANY CASE weak, strained or inflamed eyes. Aluminum eye cup FREE. A. E. Crosby, druggist.

Dan Darrin. The girl felt an unaccountable confidence in Black Pawl, whom everyone else feared.

A terrific storm arose and to sustain his strength Black Pawl drank freely. Ruth attempted to nurse him when, with strength apparently exhausted he retired to his cabin. But liquor had fired the lust in his veins and he crushed her into his arms. As she tore from him her waist was rent about the neck disclosing a locket. Black Pawl recognized in this a gift to his wife and discovered this was his own daughter.

He realized then that as her protector he had to guard her against her own brother. He went to Red Pawl, told him that Ruth was his own sister. Red sneeringly retorted that he had only made up the story that he might have the girl for himself.

Shortly afterward, Spiess, who had been egged on by Red Pawl, plunged a dagger in Black Pawl's back. Black Pawl called to Red to give him his gun that "justice might be done." Red figured that with Spiess dead he would be supreme on the ship and gave his revolver to his father. Then Black Pawl lowered the gun and sent the bullet into his own son's heart. As the youth dropped Black Pawl yelled to Dan to take command of the ship. Then father and son in a last embrace died together.

This photoplay is now showing at the Casino theater.

Plunging onward through the treacherous Southern seas, the schooner Deborah, commanded by the hardest man who ever trod a deck, is suddenly caught in the grip of a wild, tropical hurricane.

Like super-men the crew fight to keep the ship afloat—and win. But there comes another, and greater storm—this time a clash of human emotions, father pitted against son—with a girl as the prize. The ruthless bravery and sacrifice of the victory that befalls will engrave itself forever on your memory.
