Historical Pictures Tonight—An interesting series of American history pictures will be shown tonight at the public library. A general invitation to all is extended.

Sunrise Devotionals Planned—The young people of the Methodist church will meet at the church at 5:30 tomorrow morning, then will proceed to the hill south of the city for a sunrise devotional meeting.

Cosmopolitan Picture Scheduled—"Going to Church Around the World," is the subject of a stereopticon lecture which will be given tomorrow night, 8 o'clock, in the Methodist church. The picture is said to touch upon the religious life of every race.

Community Council To Meet—A special meeting of the Community Council and executive board of The Dalles Community Service, has been called for 4:30 Monday afternoon, at the public library. Matters of importance in connection with the staging of the pageant will be taken up.

Mrs. Brune Returns—Mrs. Henry Brune returned Sunday, May 15, from an extended trip through California where she went last October. She is now at the Loma Alta ranch, her son's home, where she has been entertaining an old friend, Mrs. M. C. Bachrodt of Portland, for the past few days.

Brother Dies—J. A. Hay, rancher of Wrentham, received word Friday of the sudden death of his brother, Thomas Hay, in Portland, and accompanied by Mrs. Hay, and his two brothers, Charles and Lee, left to attend the funeral. They drove to Portland over the Columbia river highway.

Lincoln Program Continued—A pleasant Sunday evening service will be held in the Congregational church. The pastor will give a short address, after which there will be a program in motion pictures. The subject in the Lincoln series will be "A President's Answer," which describes the heart of Lincoln as he constantly pardoned in direct opposition to the secretary of war.

Operetta Pleases—A packed house last night greeted the East Hill grade school operetta, "Jack and the Bean Stalk," presented at the high school auditorium. All parts were played by pupils of the East Hill school, who had been rehearsing on the play for several months, under the direction of the teachers. Music was furnished by the East Hill orchestra, an organization made up of students and teachers.

Chautauqua in July—The ever-popular Ellison-White chautauqua association will include The Dalles upon its booking route again this season with an entirely new program of interesting acts and people. It was announced today by Mrs. Lulu D. Crandall, who is attending to the preliminary arrangements incident to the actual arrival of the chautauqua company upon the ground. It is planned to hold this year's chautauqua festival in the Union street park, starting July 4 and ending July 9.

Loop Drive Open—A complete loop automobile trip through the new city auto park is now possible, according to H. R. Fancher, chairman of the chamber of commerce park committee. Workmen today completed grading the loop road, which extends for half a mile through the park and back to the main entrance on the highway, touching all points of interest in the park. The first person to drive over the new road was Walter Fox of this city. The road will be open all day tomorrow.

Autos 16 Years Ago—Sixteen years ago, the prevailing mode of conveyance for physicians was a one-cylinder Oldsmobile gas buggy, the cost of which was $325. This price, odd as it may seem when compared to the present prices of automobiles, was the usual figure at which automobiles of this type sold for in 1904 and 1905, judging from an advertising poster on exhibition in the show window of the Dalles Garage. One of the really fine cars, a one-cylinder Packard, brought $400. Among the now extinct cars listed on the poster, are such makes as the St. Louis, Orient, Northern, Knox and Glide, all one-cylinder cars. The poster is one sent out by a Chicago automobile concern. It was found in the attic of G. E. Manchester's house, when he was engaged several days ago in the annual process of spring house cleaning.

New Christian Minister Here—Rev. Carroll C. Roberts, the new minister at the Christian church, arrived in The Dalles Friday, and will take charge of his work beginning Sunday. Mr. Roberts was called from the Mealavilla Christian church in Portland, where he had ministered for a year and four months, building up a strong work. During his ministry there he has had 125 additions to the church, more than tripling the membership. The Bible school has grown to over four times its membership. In Portland, Mr. Roberts made the Montavilla church a community center. In every way he tried to center the activities of the youth in the church. He maintained boys' and girls' gymnasium classes every week during the winter, playing basket ball and baseball, developed the Boy Scout movement for boys and hikes for the older young people. He also had a boys' chorus of sixty and girls' chorus of about 40 in the church. Mr. Roberts is a graduate of the Eugene Bible university and was a student in the University of Oregon having been a member of the class of '20. He is prominent in Christian Endeavor work of the state. He was the first county intermediate superintendent appointed in Oregon, having served in Lane county as such. He was president of the Lane county union for a year and was editor of The Oregon Endeavor. Bulletin for a considerable time. He has been used as a convention song leader, speaker, organizer and has raised finances for several conventions in Oregon. His societies in Portland captured every pennant and prize offered last year by the Multnomah county Christian Endeavor Union.

Growers of cherries in Wasco county will be interested in the private reports received this week by the Oregon Growers Cooperative association on the general damage done to cherries as well as other crops by the recent cold weather in the central states as well as those in the far east.

From New Jersey comes reports of 95 percent damage to the cherry crop, a 75 percent loss in New York state, and fully as heavy a loss in all the New England states. One special report to the association states there will be the lightest fruit crop this season ever known between the Rocky mountains and the Atlantic sea coast.

From the middle western states comes reports to the association of great damage to all commercial fruit crops. These reports are all sent to the association by those who are in position to secure accurate crop reports. There is also a report of much damage to cherries in southern Idaho, and from the fruit district in the southern part of the Yakima valley.

Every indication points to a tremendous loss of the commercial crops of cherries throughout the country except on the Pacific coast. There has been some damage done to the stone fruit crops in California although as yet it is too early to form a correct estimate of the loss.

The cherry crop is not the only one that has suffered severely this season from severe weather during April. Private advices to the Oregon Growers Cooperative association indicate a very light commercial crop throughout the east. In Arkansas and Missouri, there is almost total loss on apples. In the New England states there is fully 50 percent damage and the same is true of the state of New York and of Michigan, the two great apple states of the east.

The same story of immense damage and the prospects of the lightest crop in a generation is true of all other fruit crops east of the Rocky mountains. In Michigan the peach loss is estimated at 85 percent and in Missouri, it is all gone.

In its estimates of crops for the past season, the U. S. department of agriculture credits Wasco county with a crop of 2,000,000 pounds of commercial cherries. This high record was exceeded by only one county in the state, the estimate of the government giving Lane county 2,158,000 pounds.

The state tax commission in its report for 1920, gives Wasco county 363 acres of bearing cherries and Lane county 462 acres. Hence, based on acreage, Wasco county produced last season, more cherries to the acre than any county in the state.

The government estimates 10 cents a pound as the average price received last season for commercial cherries. The Oregon Growers Cooperative association averaged 12.7 cents a pound for its members.

Rollin P. Grant, vice-chairman of the board of Irving National bank of New York, gives the following opinion:

"There has been no particular change in conditions during the past two months. Following the rapid downward trend that occurred all through the late summer and fall there seemed to be a pause about the middle of December, during which time merchants in general had opportunity of rather catching their breath and looking about for a more orderly handling of the general business situation. From that point there was a little rebound, but since the first of February there has not been very much stimulus to a largely increased business, the whole situation appearing to drag, but in the last week or 10 days we have noted a little more hopeful tone, and there seems to be more business booked and more inquiry for merchandise."
