

MRS. SIMS TAKES ADMIRAL IN HAND

By A. E. Johnson

(United News Staff Correspondent)
LONDON, June 10.—A determined little woman has taken control of a situation that has all but developed into an "international incident" here.

The woman is Mrs. Sims, wife of Rear Admiral William S. Sims, who stirred things up in Washington by his reference to American Irish sympathizers as "asses" in a London speech. Mrs. Sims is chiefly responsible for the admiral's reticence during the past 24 hours.

Following the news that Secretary Denby had cabled Admiral Sims for an explanation of his speech and reports that Sims might be recalled from his leave here, correspondents began flocking to the Carlton, where the admiral and Mrs. Sims are stopping. The correspondents are rebuffed by the admiral, but Mrs. Sims is always present and just at the moment when Sims reaches the point of voicing some of his views on the Irish, Mrs. Sims intervenes.

The admiral was quoted from one source Thursday as saying that he would retract nothing, but it was later stated that this statement was not authorized.

Admiral Sims is scheduled to sail for home June 15 aboard the Olympia. It was impossible for him to secure accommodations prior to this date. Consequently if Secretary Denby should feel inclined to call Sims home because of his utterances, the order would have little effect, as the admiral could not sail earlier than the date already arranged.

Sims is frankly not attempting an alibi. It may be stated that he considers himself correctly quoted, although he is disdainful toward the press in general.

In his English union speech he insinuated repeatedly that the press was irresponsible and often untruthful.

Officials of the British foreign office are intensely amused over the furor the admiral's speech has stirred up. They recall similar incidents such as the situation created by Sims' "blood is thicker than water" speech and smile.

While correspondents were questioning Admiral Sims Thursday afternoon, Mrs. Sims interrupted the interview and hurried the admiral away for an automobile ride.

Admiral Sims was the guest of the parliamentary naval committee of the house of commons Thursday evening. He was loudly cheered during a most cordial reception and Rear Admiral Sir Reginald Hall referred to him feelingly as "a great admiral, a great American friend of Britain."

Among Sims' hosts were Austin Chamberlain, chancellor of the exchequer, Cecil Harmsworth, M. P., Viscount Curzon, and J. C. Clynes, labor M. P. Austin Chamberlain, toasting the admiral, said:

"We welcome Admiral Sims, not only because of his great work throughout the war, nor because of the cordial relations which he helped to form and maintain between the American and British navies, but first and foremost because he is a citizen and a patriot of the United States who undertook to reconcile the service of America with the recognition of the friendship of Great Britain."
J. C. Clynes, Sir Macdonald McLean, the Liberal leader, and others eulogized Sims, who replied that he was "profoundly touched."

chairman of the senate finance committee.

Since the first cash payment provided in the bill will not begin until July, 1922, Senator Penrose said that he saw no necessity to await the enactment of tariff and tax revision measures.

Revenue raising features which must originate in the house having been eliminated from the tentative bill, the senate is expected to soon have the measure before it for consideration.

CITY SET ON BRIDGE OVER GOLDEN GATE

By United News

SAN FRANCISCO, June 10.—San Francisco is in the throes of what is perhaps her greatest municipal undertaking since the world's fair.

San Francisco business and civic authorities are determined to bridge San Francisco bay. The distance across the bay to the Alameda-Oakland side, at present served by several ferry companies, is approximately three miles. Each of the several sites contemplated for the bridge heads plans to utilize one of several small islands in the center of the harbor.

Estimates on the work vary from $25,000,000 to $75,000,000. Using the slogan "San Francisco is a walled city" local business men, especially automobile dealers, are advertising extensively for the purpose of stirring up public opinion on all sides of the bay with a view to getting immediate action.

Mayor Rolph has appointed a committee to confer with representatives of adjoining counties on all sides of the bay, encompassing territory within a radius of 100 miles with a view to joint action in the matter. It is possible that the bridge may be built from the state highway funds, the state and counties being bonded to finance it. On the other hand a committee of business men is said to have taken the matter up with Gustav Lindenthal, builder of the Williamsburg and Queens bridges, with a view to financing the construction from private funds, provided government consent can be obtained. It is probable that the city will urge military advantage as a reason for obtaining federal aid for the project.

The bridge must have a great enough height to enable the greatest battleships to pass under it as it will span the harbor at one of the busiest marine centers.

If a bridge is finally constructed it is planned to erect a magnificent union terminal on the order of the Grand Central terminal in New York City, in the heart of San Francisco, probably near the civic center.
