BANDIT GARDNER MAY BE HIDING AT CASTLE ROCK

POSSES CLOSING IN ON SUSPECTED REFUGES OF TRAIN ROBBER.

GOLD TEETH GIVE CLUE

WAITRESS IN RESTAURANT SAYS CUSTOMER ANSWERED DESCRIPTION.

By United Press
PORTLAND, June 14.—A man answering Gardner's description is believed to be in hiding near the base of Castle Rock, from whence the town derived its name. A sheriff's posse is closing in on the place.

If, as officers believe, Gardner is in hiding at this place, a battle is imminent. If the man is not the notorious bandit, it is believed that he will surrender without a fight.

There is little reason to believe that the man is Gardner, except through the description of a stranger by a waitress in a Castle Rock restaurant, who thought a man she waited on, who had gold teeth, answered the bandit's description.

A man also answering Gardner's description is reported to be hiding in the rocks near the Butte region, along the Cowlitz river, according to reports received here today. The man has a growth of beard and acted suspicious.

Sheriff Hoggett and a posse are gathering in strength around the place where the man disappeared, beating every inch of the ground in an effort to dislodge the bandit.

PORTLAND, June 14.—Gardner is supposed to have been seen last night.

Lenroot Committee Will Delve Into Present Farm Conditions

COMPLAINTS OF DISCRIMINATION IN MARKETING, FREIGHT RATES, CREDIT EXTENSIONS, AND THAT FARMERS ARE UNJUSTLY BURDENED IN PRICE DECLINES, WILL BE EXAMINED.

By John M. Gleissner
(United News Staff Correspondent)
WASHINGTON, June 14.—The joint committee of agricultural inquiry this week will begin a comprehensive investigation of all phases of the farming industry, which is expected to result in recommendations for legislation to correct the situation which has caused such widespread complaint in recent months.

The committee is composed of 10 members of congress, five from each house, and was created as the result of a resolution introduced by Senator Lenroot of Wisconsin.

Lenroot expects the committee to get down to fundamentals and ascertain basic causes for the present condition of agriculture. The contention of farmers that they are discriminated against in marketing processes, freight rates, extension of credit and that the price decline has burdened them unjustly will be considered. So far, a broad attempt to determine the correctness of these assertions on a basis of hard facts has not been made.

The first thing the committee will do, Lenroot said, is to collect the vast amount of information available in the various departments and hearings which have been held before congressional committees. This information will be studied with the object of obtaining all facts bearing on the various questions, then hearings will be held to get additional facts.

"Information now available has never been examined and coordinated," said Lenroot, "and has never been properly brought to the attention of the public or congress."

Among subjects to which the committee will give attention are these:
1. Why the prices paid the producer are so low in comparison with the prices ultimately paid by the consumer. This involves a study of marketing processes and transportation.
2. Whether it is true that banking facilities discriminate against the farmer and keep him from getting adequate credit.
3. Why the price of soil products declined relatively so much more than other products and whether prices of things the farmer buys are being artificially maintained.
4. Whether operators and speculators depress prices received by the
