

Amateur Dopesters Have Real Low Down On Impending Scrap

By William Stevens McNutt
(United News Staff Correspondent)

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., June 28.—I know all about the Dempsey-Carpenter fight now.

A number of men who know the real truth have told me.

My first informant was a man with whom I made casual conversation while leaning on the railing of the board walk listening to the sad song of the sea waves. He asked me what my line was and I told him I was writing pieces about the fight.

"It's a shame, isn't it?" he said bitterly.

I didn't know to what he referred and told him so.

"Why don't you know?" he asked me. "The fight's fixed. Its going to be a fake. Its arranged for Carpenter to win in the eleventh round."

I admitted that this statement was news to me.

"Who told you?" I asked.

"Kearns?"

"Kearns?" he said, "who's Kearns?"

"He's Dempsey's manager."

"I never met him," my informant admitted. "But I got it straight from a friend of mine; a fellow I met on a train coming from Chicago; a fellow by the name of — I forget his name now. Harris or Bowman or something like that. Anyhow, he had a cousin who was a vaudeville actor and he played the same theater with Dempsey once out west somewhere and he got it straight. Carpenter in the eleventh round. They're going to let him win and then make a lot of money showing the pictures in Europe. It's a shame isn't it?"

"Are you sure its true?" I asked him.

"Absolutely," he assured me. "I got it straight."

"How much are you betting?" I asked him.

"Not a nickel. I wouldn't bet on one of those things. They're crooked."

Think of it! He could get perhaps as high as 15 or 20 to 1 and clean up a fortune and he won't bet a nickel because he knows it's crooked. I left him listening to the plaintive sea waves. I have no doubt he knew perfectly well what they were saying. He was a wise guy.

My next informant was a man with whom I rode the roller coaster in an amusement park.

"Do you think Dempsey can get back into shape before the fight?" he asked me after we had paid for our ride and were descending the steps to the board walk.

"He seems to be in good condition," I said.

"The man laughed. 'Aren't you wise?' he asked me. 'Why, he's out hitting the high spots every night. Drunk all the time.'

"Where does he get drunk?" I asked.

"All over the place," the man explained.

"Have you seen him souse?" I asked.

"I haven't seen him," the man admitted, "but everybody knows it's true. 'He's around drunk all the time. Didn't you know that?'"

I admitted my ignorance. The man smiled pityingly and went his way. I know what he was thinking. It was this:

"What a dumb bunch these reporters are. Paid to find out what's going on and they don't know as much as the ordinary man in the street."

I know what is going to happen though. The two men mentioned above and a hundred or more like them have told me. None of them know either fighter nor anyone connected with either camp, but they know all about what is going on.

I've got all the inside dope from the outside and if I had one kopeck in Russian money which is the equivalent of about one-millionth of one American cent, I might bet that much on the fight in this way:

Nobody who's talking or writing about the fight, expert or dab, knows anything.

pens of journalists. Georges had had his hair cut.

The village barber, smuggled the barbed wire disguised as a mysterious sparring partner in the early hours Monday, did more damage to Carpenter's good looks than could a hundred Dempseys.

Those long, bay rammed locks that used to wave from high brow to cerebellum, no longer tumble into the Frenchman's eyes as he shakes his aristocratic head. Their roots stand out, two inches or more in places, brushing with nervous hands, feet only the rasp as of sandpaper where once glistened oiled silkiness.

Interviewed, Georges said: "Does it look as bad as that? Well, it's cooler anyhow."

RICKARD, KING OF FIGHT PROMOTERS

By Henry L. Farrell,
(United News Staff Correspondent)

NEW YORK, June 28.—Big money comes only after big work, big trouble and big worry.

Tex Rickard, king of all boxing promoters, has learned this in the spectacular career that has made him the biggest figure in the sporting world.

Rickard has done big things, but he had to work and worry to do them and the returns haven't always been in proportion to the risk involved.

If the promoting king had been inclined to worry abnormally, he would have gray hair dating back to 1906 when he staged the Gans-Nelson lightweight championship bout.

Gans, then the champion, and Nelson were dickering around for a bout when a telegram came from an unknown, one Tex Rickard, who was running a gambling house in Goldfield, Nevada, offering $30,000 for the contest.

Gans and Nelson both laughed at such a ridiculous offer and passed it up as coming from a "nut" or a publicity seeker. Rickard kept insisting, however, and finally he prevailed upon them to come to Goldfield where he showed them $20,000 in twenty-dollar gold pieces. They signed.

Rickard was looked upon as a fit subject for an insane asylum. He had put up every cent he possessed and was considered a sure lose but he went through with the bout and made money, cleaning up about $20,000.

The trouble he had at Goldfield was nothing compared to his experience when he made his next big step in the game by signing Jim Jeffries and Jack Johnson to decide the heavyweight championship for a purse of $120,000.

He had the fight all arranged and an arena partly completed in California when the governor decided that his state wanted nothing of the big bout and ordered Rickard out. He had his fight all dressed up and no place to go.

Rickard dashed across the line into Reno, Nevada, threw an arena together and packed them in. The receipts were close to $300,000.

The Willard-Moran bout in Madison Square Garden was easy, except he had to guarantee the big Kansas a fortune before he would consent to meet the blonde Pittsburgher. He made money on that fight also.

Bad breaks came when he was getting ready for the Dempsey-Willard fight in Toledo. He tied himself up to a $127,500 purse but the prospect was exceedingly rosy when the governor of the Buckeye state sanctioned the bout and a big stadium was complete.

However, the government, then in charge of the operation of the railroads, refused to give any special train service and the immense stadium was only partially filled. Rickard made some money but not the amount he was entitled to expect.

With almost a year spent in getting the principals signed, Rickard experienced similar trouble with the Dempsey-Carpenter arrangements. But most of the obstacles came early when he had plenty of time to make other arrangements.

Rickard planned first to get the champion and the Frenchman in the ring at Madison Square Garden for a purse of $500,000, of which $300,000 was to go to Dempsey and $200,000 to Carpenter.

The huge size of the purse brought about such opposition that the New York State Boxing commission, im-ing directly at the bout, ruled that not more than $15 could be charged for a seat at any championship bout.

This, of course, made it impossible to stage the contest in the Garden, owing to its limited seating capacity. Rickard then set his eyes on Sheepshead Bay, the site of the old automobile race track, where he planned to erect an immense stadium.

Governor Miller then stepped in and let it be known that the contest could not be held in New York state.

To remove the "big money scandal" Rickard then succeeded in getting the principals to work on a percentage agreement by offering them 60 percent of the gate receipts.

New Jersey went after the bout then, in fact, invited it. Rickard was assured that there would be no interference and he selected Jersey City.

No sooner had New Jersey been named as the site, than Governor Edwards issued a statement that "as long as the contest was conducted in accordance with the boxing laws, New Jersey would be glad to have it."

THIS TIME LAST YEAR

Bancroft, New York, got six singles out of six times up and accepted fifteen out of sixteen chances against Philadelphia.

After losing eighteen successive games, the Athletics beat Washington.

Holke knocked a home run for the Braves that beat Brooklyn after he had struck out three times.

Jones, Harvard first baseman, came to terms with the Athletics.

BRITISH LORD ACTS AS NEW YORK CLERK

By United News
NEW YORK, June 28.—Hello, Lord!

Employees of the Guaranty Trust company are giving Baron Arlington—otherwise Napier George Henry Stuart, peer of Cricheff, Wimbourne, England—a real deluge of American informality since he has come over to "learn business," as he puts it, in the Guaranty's educational department.

Lord Arlington takes it. He finds the mazes of finance "much more romantic than the social world," he admits with bashfulness.

For the baron is young—only 24—and hasn't been around much, except to have a speaking acquaintance with a few hundred dukes and earls and to have served during the war as a flight lieutenant of the Royal Naval Aviation corps.

He hasn't even seen a baseball game. Perhaps that is one reason why he came to America.

But the real reason, he said, is that he became disinterested at having things done for him.

"I believe that everyone should know how to handle his own affairs, and this requires business knowledge," is his way of looking at it.

"When I go back I'm going to take with me a complete knowledge of finances. I am literally learning the business. I don't know whether I will take up finance as a profession, but at least I will know how."

The young baronet has already been through the general banking department of the Guaranty. Soon he will take up the credit end and go from there to foreign exchange.

Just now he is doing auditing, and works from nine till five on the third floor at 114 Broadway.

MILLIONS IN TREASURE IN MEXICAN CAVE

By United Press
SAN ANTONIO, Tex., June 28.—One man in the world knows the location of the Cavallo Blanco cave, in old Mexico, and knowing it may result in his becoming the possessor of $73,530,000 in gold and silver.

Adam Fischer, recently returned from Mexico, said he had re-located the Blanco cave, with its great treasure trove. He discovered it once before, but was unable to find it when he returned.

Fischer is now awaiting the decision of the Mexican government on his application for a concession to remove the hoard.

The story of the gold and silver bars and Spanish octagonal dollars dates back to 1810. At that time, during a revolution against the Spanish government, it is claimed that officers of the government and army took the gold and silver from the treasury and hid it in the Cavallo Blanco cave, in the Cerro de Silla mountains, near Monterey, in the State of Nuevo Leon.

Hundreds have spent their lives in the search for the treasure, according to Fischer, but he alone has discovered its hiding place.

If Fischer gains possession of the great fortune he plans to erect a $2,000,000 monument on Alamo Plaza to the heroes of the Alamo, and also make other munificent municipal gifts.
