

BETTER BE HAPPY THAN RICH.

Better be happy than rich,
If riches bring sorrow and pain—
Better to sow and to stitch,
And enjoy the little you gain.
Some people love to be thought
The owner of thousands a while,
Aging what others have brought
From the paths of honor and toil.

VALUE OF CARROTS.—For the past ten years I have annually raised one or two acres of carrots, and my custom has been to dispose of what I could at a certain price, and what could not be sold thus, to feed my stock. My price has been usually twelve dollars per ton, and I have sold the greater portion of my crop at that rate.

For fattening purposes I consider this, perhaps, more than their intrinsic value; but for feeding milch cows, store cattle, or sheep I doubt not they are well worth that amount, as a substitute for hay, or indeed for any other winter fodder. Two feeds, of a peck each, fed daily to a cow, with plenty of good bright straw, will keep her in good condition, and under some circumstances, probably, it is cheaper than giving the cow all the hay she can consume.

For horses that do not labor more than one-half the time, I think they are equal by measure to oats, i.e., a horse fed a peck of oats and a peck of carrots each, daily, will do as well as if fed two pecks of oats—their action being slightly diuretic and laxative, and just what the system seems to need in the winter, when they are wholly deprived of green fodder.

In our region, the raising of carrots is on the increase, and farmers are beginning to ascertain that a stock of cattle can be kept on the same land by a judicious growing and feeding roots; and that instead of two or three tons of hay being required to winter a cow, one ton each of hay and roots will do it as well or better.

VENERATE THE PLOW.—The German savants who went to Bombay last year to observe the great eclipse, have brought home a poor account of what they saw, the eclipse having been visible for only six seconds. But they tell some curious stories about the natives of India, and the state of their education. At a meeting of the Geographical Society, held recently at Berlin, Dr. Tietjens, who was one of the party of observers, mentioned that, in the neighborhood of Bombay, some plows, which had been imported from England, were regarded, not as implements, but as the gods of agriculture, and were preserved in a temple as an object of prayer.

WHITEWASHING.—This article as ordinarily made, rubs off the walls after it becomes dry, soiling and everything coming in contact with it. This may be obviated by slaking the lime in boiling water, stirring it meanwhile and then applying, after dissolving in water, white vitrol, sulphate of zinc, in proportion of four pounds to a barrel of white wash, making it to the consistency of rich milk. The sulphate of zinc will cause the white wash to harden, and prevent the lime from rubbing off. A pound of white salt should also be put into it. This makes the best whitewash known.

TO CLEAN MIRRORS.—The greatest care should be taken in cleaning a mirror, to use only the softest articles, lest the glass should be scratched. It should first be dusted with a feather brush, then washed over with a sponge, dipped in spirits of wine, to remove the fly spots. After this, it should be dusted with powder blue in a thin muslin bag, and finally polished with an old silk handkerchief.

FEEDING FOWLS.—There is nothing gained by feeding your laying hens as though you were fattening them for market. Especially will this remark apply while they are running out. This thing of over-eating is hurtful to anything that eats. It is natural for a fowl to be on the lookout the most of her time, and swallow a grain at a time as it is found, and thrive best, living in this manner. Not so man or beast. It is better for the latter to eat meals at certain periods and not eat a particle between meals.

To make superior liquid blacking, equal to any you can purchase, take the following ingredients:
Ivory black in fine powder, 28 pounds; treacle 8 pounds; refined or dropping sweet oil 1 pint good malt vinegar 1 gallon; stale but good beer 2 gallons; oil of vitrol 2 ounces; soft water distilled 6 gallons. Mix treacle and water well together, and to powder add the oil till well mixed then porter and vinegar in pan; stir well together one hour with stick, then fill for use. The above quantity of ingredients will of course fill a good number of bottles with the liquid, which may be disposed of to those who may require it. Less liquid can be made, it is understood, by using the ingredients accordingly.

Pass fine, freshly slacked lime through a fine sieve, and to six quarts of the lime thus obtained, add one quart of the purest salt, and one gallon of water, boil the mixture and skim it clean; then to every five gallons of this mixture, add one pound of alum; half a pound of copperas, and put in slowly three-fourths of a pound of potash and four quarts of fine sand. It adheres firmly to wood or brick. It is an excellent incombustible white wash.

A SUBSTITUTE FOR PRESERVES.—A lady writes communicating the following bit of information obtained where "she took tea last." A dish of what I took to be preserves was passed me, which upon tasting I was surprised to learn contained no fruit. The ease with which it was prepared, and the trifling cost of its materials are not its chief recommendations; for unless my tasting apparatus deceived me, as it is not usually wont to do, it is emphatically a tip-top substitute for apple-sauce, apple-butter, tomato preserves, and all that sort of things. It is prepared as follows: Moderately boil a pint of molasses from five to twenty minutes, according to its consistency, then add three eggs thoroughly beaten, hastily stirring them in, and continue to boil a few minutes longer, and season with nutmeg or lemon.

POTATOES.—How few cooks know how to fry potatoes. There is nothing so easy to get and yet so palatable for breakfast, with a thick, tender beefsteak or a mutton chop sizzling from the grid-iron. To fry raw potatoes properly, they should be pared, cut lengthwise into slices an eighth-of-an-inch in thickness, dropped into a pan over the fire, containing hot beef drippings, turned frequently, nicely browned all over, but never burned. The addition of a little salt and pepper while in the pan, and a little flour dredged over them, is an improvement.

THE GREEK BEND.—"And the Lord said: Because the daughters of Zion are haughty and have walked with stretched out necks, and wanton glances of their eyes, and made a noise as they walked, with their feet, and moved in a set the Lord will make bald the crown of the head of the daughters of Zion, and the Lord will discover their hair."—(Isaiah, ch. 3, verses 16, 17.)

—When the Roman Poet was told by a plegmatic friend to mind his own business, and not to meddle in other men's affairs, he made the immortal reply, "I am a man, and whatever relates to my fellow creatures, also touches me."

GINGER CAKE.—One cup of molasses, one cup of sugar, two thirds of a cup of butter, one cup of sweet or sour milk, two eggs, one teaspoonful of soda; ginger to your taste; make your batter as thick as common cup-cake.

DOVER CAKE.—Take one pound of sugar, half pound of butter, six eggs, one teaspoonful of saleratus, one cup of sour milk, one pound of flour, mixed like poundcake.

TO RESTORE THE COLOR OF BLACK KID BOOTS.—Take a small quantity of good black ink with the white of an egg, and apply it to the boots with a soft sponge.

AN EXAMPLE WORTHY OF IMITATION.—The Stockton Independent recently contained the following:

Sacramento in 1858-9 resembled most towns and cities in the interior of the State, in the general decline in her prosperity. She then, however, buckled on her armor and went into the work of building a road across the Sierra Nevada mountains, to secure the trade of that territory, for which she was well repaid in the great trade that sprang up on the opening of the silver mines of Washoe. This enabled her in conjunction with the indomitable enterprise of her citizens, to subscribe between four and five hundred thousand dollars to inaugurate the Central Pacific Railroad in the years of 1860-1, which was the inception of the great company of that name. The floods of the succeeding year that nearly depopulated the city, only seemed to increase their energy, for we find that the following Spring they subscribed and raised some three hundred thousand dollars to build a levee to protect the city from future overflows. Since then her business men have, at their own expense, raised the commercial portion of the city from eight to twelve feet. To-day her inhabitants are reaping the reward she so well earned as one of the most thriving and prosperous cities in the Union. We refer to Sacramento to show to our citizens what energy and well directed effort can do in a community. It is an example well worthy the attention of other cities.

Portland for instance.

COTTAGE PUDDING.—One cup of milk, one cup of sugar, one pint of flour, two table-spoonfuls of butter, one teaspoonful of soda, two teaspoonfuls of cream of tartar, two eggs. To be eaten with wine sauce.
