MY GARDEN.

The following very beautiful sonnet to "My Garden," was written for the first issue of the Wallamet Farmer, by Miss Belle W. Cook, of Salem:

Ah! when the Spring, returning. Sweet with the breath of flowers, Calls at my open window, And whispers of by-gone hours, I long for my pleasant garden, To work in the warm brown earth, To nourish the wee green children, And watch for the seedlet's birth; To breathe in the cool of evening The odors of balm and spice; For, to dress and keep a garden, Was the work of paradise, And is not this a reason For the wish we always feel, To plant in the shining seed-time Earth's treasures to reveal; To join in the great procession. Earth's workers moving on, And help, though e'er so little, The hand of the Mighty One! Oh, you who long thus, vainly, May often ease your heart, By planting Charity's blossoms In the city's busy mart : Blossoms that spring up gladly In the hearts of the hungry poor, By plentiful tears well watered, To smile at your open door, Blossoms that feed on sunshine, The sunshine of human smiles, And yield a grateful fruitage. To be plucked in the blessed isles.

Whipping Oxen,—It is a cruel and generally useless act of barbarers are in the habit of continually keeping the whip a going when teaming their cattle. Instead of Gas Fixtures, inviting the animals to exertion by proper words, the first intimation the poor creatures have from their master that he desires them to start, is a cut of the whip or a prick from the goad. This is not only savage, but absolutely wick- Wrought Iron Pipes, all Sizes. ed, and wholly unnecessary. Another method often seen is that of TEES, ELBOWS, RETURN BENDE pounding and thrashing the oxen because they don't readily back a load, when they have not been Scotch Tubes, Water Guages, Whistles learned to back an empty cart down hill. I have no doubt that the selling value of many a voke of oxen is depreciated from $25 to Hotels, public buildings, and private resi $75, by being abused in this way, dences heated with the latest improvements If animals are desired to work I myste citizens generally to call and exthey must first be learned to work- amine my stock, which has been selected and when they understand what is with great care, and especial attention given wanted of them they will cheerfully comply. But there is a better way to communicate your desires to them than through the whip. Kindness and skillful management TREPORS !! is far better. -It has often been noted that rats are very elever in the plans they try to secure plunder, and it also deserves mention that they are frequently found to exercise their number who may have sustained some injury. The following story from the Caithness (Scotland) Courier, illustrates the second of these traits more than the first:

While Alexander Gunn, cattle dealer, Brahour, was lately passing the Mill of Dale, his attention was directed by a large rat coming out of its hole, which, after surveying the place, retreated with the greatest caution and silence. They seemed then to relax in their exertions, and only continued for a short time; after which one of the rats seizes a small stick about five inches in length, which he inserted into the blind one's mouth, Grass and Flower Seeds! and in this way conducted it to the water, of which they all par- All Seeds from this establishment took and afterwards led their companion back to its hole.
