Whate'er I do or think the best Fault comes to me. Is there no end to this sad fate

For one so low; Or must I still, without complaint, Receive the blow? The time will come to me, I know,

By some kind friend, When all that seems so wrong of me

Shall have an end; Yet what care I for friend or foe And all their might? The conscience pure no one can kill When I do right.

-J. DeHaven White.

ASPIRATIONS.

Our aims are all too high; we try To gain the summit at a bound, When we should reach it step by step, And climb the ladder round by round. He who would climb the height sublime, Or breathe the pure air of life, Must not expect to raise in ease, But brace himself for toil or strife.

We should not in our blindness seek To grasp alone for grand and great, Disdaining every smaller good. For trifle makes the aggregate. And if a cloud should hover o'er Our weary pathway like a pall, Remember God permits it there, And His good purpose reigns o'er all.

Life should be full of earnest work, Our hearts undashed by fortune's frown; their papers from the office, they are held Let perseverance conquer fate, And merit seize the victor's crown.

The battle is not to the strong. The race not always to the fleet; And he who seeks to pluck the stars, Will lose the jewels at his feet.
