At night I had a suitor, vain As the vainest in the land : Almost he seemed to condescend In the offer of his hand.

In one who pressed his suit, I missed Courage and manly pride; How could I think of such a one As a leader and a guide?

And then there came a worshipper With all such undoubted trust That when he knelt he seemed not worth Uprising from the dust.

The next was never in the wrong, Was not too smooth or rough; So faultless, so good was he That that was fault enough.

But one, the last of all who came, I know not how to paint; No angel do I seem to him-He scarcely call me saint!

He hath such sins and weaknesses As mortal man befall; He bath a thousand faults, and yet I love him with them all!

He never asked me yea or nay, Nor knelt to me one hour : But he took my hand and holds my heart With a lover's tender power.

And I bow, as needs I must, and say, In proud hamility. Love's might is right, and I yield at last To manhood's royalty.
