CONFLICT.

BY CHARLES G. WHITING.

The mystery of sin and wee. The dismal depths of dread and hate. Press on my soul with leaden weight-Leave me no respite here below,

My boasted strength to weakness turns, I cannot be the man I would: Now evil seemeth like to good-To good itself with passion burns.

My heart against my soul contends --My mind whirls in a gloomy round. In dark nor day is refuge found --The self same fear on both attends.

Dreams curse me with renewed pain Of happiness I may not win, Or hateful scenes of deeper sin. And whisper: "This shalt thou attain!"

And voices busy at mine cars Tempt me with hints of loss and gain ; And every simple draught I drain Is mingled with my bitter tears.

If the fell foe of all my life Shall leave me only for the grave,-Nor any blessing come, to save One human joy amid the strife. -

Do Thou, O Christ uplift my soul From the dim caverns of despair; So strengthened by their loving care, I'll combat till I reach the goal.

The ladies didn't understand him, they blushed and said they were sorry they made it too long. But a committee man took the editor aside and explained the shirt to him in a whisper, and the next day he appeared at the office that those hold defant, energetic, persevering, coat, and he wrote four columns health? the back of the shirt.

Somebody gives the following good advice to girls. We think the ideas are very correct;

"Men that are worth having, want women for wives. A bundle of gewgaws, tied together with a but also those they do business with or for who expects to raise a family of other diseaseboys on veritable bread and meat. The piano and lace frames are good in their places, and so are ribbons, IDIOCY, LUNACY, frills, and tinsels, but you cannot make a dinner of the former or a blanket of the latter, and awful as such an idea may seem to you, both dinner and blankets are essential to domestic happiness. stead. Suppose a man of sense a Diuretic. and of course good prospects, to be looking for a wife, what chance have you to be chosen? You may tap him or you may trap him, but show much better to make it an object for him to eatch you. Render yourself worth catching, and you will need no shrewd mother or brother to help you find a market.

Self-Supporting Women,-The Topeka (Kansas) Record says, Osawkee. They built a cabin of poles, which they carried on their shoulders over a quarter of a mile. In this habitation they have resided with no protector except a large and savage dog. They bought no land but invested their money in stock. They now have nineteen stock. They now have nineteen head of cattle, 48 hogs, eight horses, and a large "outfit" of geese, chickens, etc. They mancut and put up their own hay, chop their own wood, and do the same amount of work that two men would do, and have no society, but appear to be women of fair education. The history of these women, previous to their appearance in this cabin on the grasshopper, and the causes which led them to adopt this singular mode of life are involved in mystery.

Grant has a brother in Chicago who looks so much like the President that people are continually giving him presents, and then wondering why they don't get any office. Uliss, says that thing is played out, and papers published in that city should in justice to engraved wrapper, with fac-simile of my their readers make a note of it, that they must know how they are being victimized,
