

Oregon City, Oregon,

Friday : : : : Bec. 9, 1870. The National Debt.

The Radical press throughout the Union places great stress on the fact that the party in power is paying off the national debt, and it appears from their urgument that this is the only reason why the party should remain in power. This is all very well, but the fact that this debt is being reduced does not argue in their favor. The tax-payers who are over-burdened to raise this money will naturally claim that it is through their indulgence and not by any meritorious action of the party in power by which this debt is being reduced. If the people will look at the enormous sum they are annually called upon to pay, and the immense revenue received by the national Government, they will not only withhold any credit from the party in power, but inquire why is the debt not reduced more rapidly with which the party in power can boast, but the people, who are down-trodden and over-burdened with taxation on every side, who deserve the credit of this reduction. With the present revenue of the general Government, after paying the interest on the debt and the necessarily increase of the expenses, costs the people more than double the amount it did during any Democratic administration since the formation of the Government. Then why should these speculators and swindlers claim or receive any credit for the reduction of the debt? It should be reduced double the amount it has been with the enormous incomes, and then the expenses of the Federal Government would be much larger than at any previous period under Democratic rule. The fact cent from the people possible, and the tax- porations. The Sacramento Union, a good had it were at Salem and took it with Army Corps was deleated and driven payers and not the party in power deserve the credit for the reduction of the debt. It is an easy matter for a party in power to pay off the indebtedness if the mortgage bonds. They tell the public people will submit to the high and unjust that the road made over $800,000 in Octotaxes which they put upon them. We can see no reason why the debt should not be reduced. In fact, it ought to be reduced faster, and the taxes be lifted from the shoulders of the people. The New York Herald has an able article on this subject, from which we take the following extract: and a half unpaid interest money against

This undoubtedly sounds very well. The liquidation of the debt at the rate of a hundred millions or so a year is a gratifying fact. But thoughtful people will ask where the money comes from. The tax-payers know very well that they are overburdened to produce the result. Secretary Boutwell has not a magician's wand by which he can call up treasures from the deep. Every dollar comes from the pockets of the people, and the larger the amount collected the greater is the cost of collection. The net receipts of the Treasury for the quarter ending September 30 of this year was over a hundred and fifteen millions of dollars. This is at the rate of four hundred and sixty millions a year. A trifle more than half the receipis was from customs-that is, $57,729,473, and nearly fifty millions came from internal revenue. If we reckon the annual interest on the debt at a hundred and thirty of income the administration has three bundred and thirty millions a year for current expenses, independent of interest on the debt, and to apply to the payment of the principal of the debt. The annual expenditures, exclusive of interest on the debt, ought not to exceed a hundred and fifty millions a year. That would be more than double the sum expended previous this really large and unnecessary current expense for conducting the government, that added to the interest on the debt lions. This would leave a balance, at the rate of the present income, of a hundred and eighty millions a year to be applied to the payment of the debt. No wonder that the debt is being rapidly reduced un-der the present administration. With was so powerful and united (the cohesive such resources no government could do otherwise. If we allow the administration the credit it claims for augmenting the revenue by a faithful collection of taxes, tions, and no amount of deception, bullythe fact still remains that all comes from ing or threatening can cause them to act
