

Health and Happiness.

The two things which conduce most to health and happiness are labor and abstinence. Spartan severities are not recommended; nor could they be conducive either to health or happiness; but the degree of labor which may be had without being oppressive, and that quantity of food which suffices to support nature without loading the stomach. But labor and abstinence are two things which mankind take most pains to avoid. Yet what can exercise a more healthy influence both upon the mind and body than these? And not only should a man be temperate in food, but moderate in all things. Moderation of disposition teaches us to restrain all the evil workings of the mind—to repress jealousies, envy, anger, malice, hatred, revenge, and all these baneful passions which have ruined the health and peace of thousands. It directs us, too, to cultivate all the benevolent feelings of our nature, to moderate our desires, and above all, to do unto others as we would they should do unto us. By this means we shall insure peace and tranquility of mind, which are absolutely requisite to the full enjoyment of all the faculties of the mind, and the thorough performance of all the animal functions of the body without impediment, pain, or molestation. The mind thus disengaged from tumultuous passions, and the body free from disorders, render existence a happiness to us, and life an object to desire, while the loss of everything pleasant and delectable. "To enjoy good health," said St. Evermond, a celebrated French philosopher, "is better than to command the whole world. Health is the fountain of every blessing; for without this we could not relish the most exquisite pleasures, or enjoy the most desirable objects." Without health we can neither be happy ourselves, nor useful—at least, not in a considerable degree—to our friends, or to society. Much, undoubtedly, depends on original vigor of constitution. But by a judicious attention to sundry particulars, health may in many cases be preserved where it would otherwise be lost.

GETTING SERIOUS.—This thing is getting serious, remarks an exchange. Chief Justice Parker, of Massachusetts, announces the opinion of the Supreme Court of that State that an engagement "may be proved by those circumstances which usually accompany such a connection," and the Kentucky Court of Appeals has declared that mutuality of an engagement may be proved against a young lady "by showing that she demeaned herself as if she concurred in or approved the young man's promises or offer. It is not necessary that there should be an express promise on either side; an engagement may be evidenced by the unequivocal conduct of the parties, and by a general yet definite reciprocal understanding between them, their friends and relations, evidenced and corroborated by their actions." This is indeed a serious view of the case, and parties interested should take warning accordingly.

TWO HEARTS.—A man in Hartford, Conn., has two hearts, one on the left, which performs all the ordinary functions of a heart, and the other, on the right, much larger, appears to exert some influence on the brain. The doctors advise that this extra heart should be cut out, and the young wife was warily in favor of the operation, fearing some rival would seize upon that heart and dispossess her of the other. But the obstinate man refused to be deprived of any of the organs with which he was endowed, preferring derangement or death.

The line of conduct chosen by young men during the five years from fifteen to twenty will, in almost every instance, determine his character for life. As he is then cheerful or careless, prudent or imprudent, industrious or indolent, truthful or dishonest, intelligent or ignorant, temperate or dissolute, so will he be in after years, and it needs no prophet to cast his horoscope or calculate his chances in life.

CONCERN.—There is one thing worse than ignorance, that is conceit. Of all intricate foils, an over-wise man is the worst. You may cause idiots to philosophize; you may coax donkeys to forego fistules; but don't think of ever driving common sense into the head of a conceited person.

A young lady school teacher was, one Sabbath lately, endeavoring to impress upon her scholars the terrible punishment of Nebuchadnezzar. She told them that seven years he ate grass, just like a cow. Just then a small boy asked, "Did he give milk?"

A paper has this advertisement: "Two sisters want washing." We fear there are millions of brothers in the same predicament.

A new spirit medium, with a view to inducing editors to commit suicide, imparts the information that newspapers flourish in the spirit world.

No matter how much desire you have to fight, never begin on a mule or a cross-eyed man. Their looks don't advertise clearly enough what they are going to do.

The value of a possession is in the use that is made of it.

FRENCH MEDICAL OFFICE.

DR. JULIEN FERRAULT, Doctor, Member of the Faculty of Paris, Graduate of the University Queen's College, and Physician of the St. John Hospital Society of San Francisco.

Dr. FERRAULT has the pleasure to inform patients and others seeking confidential medical advice that he can be consulted in his office, Army Hall Building, North East corner of Montgomery and Sacramento streets, San Francisco, Rooms 8, 9, 10, 11, from 10 o'clock, morning till 6 o'clock, either Montgomery or Sacramento streets.

Dr. FERRAULT'S studies have been almost exclusively devoted to the cure of the various forms of Nervous and Physical Debility, the result of injurious habits acquired in youth, which usually terminate in impotence and sterility, and permanent disorders of all the concomitants of old age. Where a secret infirmity exists involving the happiness of a life, and that of others, reason and morality dictate the necessity of its removal, for it is a fact that premature decline of the vigor of manhood marries unhappiness, and renders life a burden.
