"The Land of Promise," which was written by the noted English author, W. Somerset Maugham, bids fair to be one of Billie Burke's most popular productions, not only from the fact that she had already appeared in the same piece on the legitimate stage, but that the screen version has been written by the author of the original, thus insuring no weakening of the production through "too many cooks."

"The Land of Promise" is the attraction at the Oregon Theatre for 3 days starting today.

One finds it difficult to understand how Wilfrid North, who directed "Sally-in-a-Hurry," starring dimpled Lillian Walker, which is at the Liberty theater on Monday and Tuesday, was able to get such a clever performance from the two animals seen in the film.

Old Japanese actor, thinks he's "haunted" when he sees self on screen. One of the oddest characters ever shown on the screen is to be found among the "extras" appearing in Sessue Hayakawa's latest Paramount picture. This is "The Secret Game" which will be shown at the Oregon Theatre Wednesday and Thursday.

Coming next Friday the greatest of them all Rex Beach's "Barrier," at the Liberty.

Winsome Billie Burke at the Oregon today.

Henry Weaver, who played on the legitimate stage for many years, appears as the father of Winifred Allen in the Triangle play, "For Valour," at the Liberty theater on Wednesday and Thursday. Mr. Weaver made famous the part of Simonides in "Ben Hur," and as the public prosecutor in "The Only Way" gave on of the most memorable characterizations ever seen on the American stage.

Wm. S. Hart will be the big attraction at the Oregon Friday and Saturday in "The Primal Lure" together with a Mack Sennett two reel funfest "An International Sneak" which will make up one of the biggest double bills shown in Salem for some time.

There are many attractive humanly-in-a-hurry. The Vitagraph Blue interest touches introduced in "Sally-in-a-Hurry" feature, which is at the Liberty theater on Monday, in which dimpled Lillian Walker plays the title role.

You have all heard of Mark Twain's "Tom Sawyer" and also of Jack Pickford who plays Mark Twain's boy hero—boy of all ages from 10 to 90 will welcome this big event at the Oregon next week.

"The Barrier" is better, bigger and far greater than "The Spellers." See it at the Liberty next Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

"The Secret Game" is a big timely production about the present international crisis featuring the well known Japanese artist Sessue Hayakawa will be the feature attraction at the Oregon Wednesday and Thursday.

By all means you should see the Italian Battlefront pictures that comes to the Bligh Tuesday.

cat in a storm? Educated as we are in the fallacies of the superstitious beliefs of our forefathers, we still preserve some of the relics of superstition which cast a spell of gloom over commonplace occurrences.

The sinister influences of an ancient superstition have a great part in the story of "The Devil Stone," the latest Artcraft release, with "The Italian Battlefront" is the first official war film to come out of Italy and it will be shown in Salem at the Bligh theater one day only, Tuesday, Jan. 15. The photographs are said to be the most striking action pictures yet brought out of the war zone and the country which has been most in the war news the last few months has officially put its stamp of approval on "The Italian Battlefront."

Trench warfare in the snow-clad Alps, aeroplane battles between the Italian fliers—said to be the best in the world—and the Austrian bird-men are actually shown. These pictures were taken from vantage points gained by the Italians in the observation campaigns. How the Italian army transported its heavy artillery across the Alps; organized and sent into action the ski cavalry and the bicycle cavalry and perfected a system of overhead railways from peak to peak of the Alps are only a few of the many thrilling scenes in the films. The sinking of a submarine, the housing and feeding of thousands of troops and actual warfare, the capture of prisoners and almost every phase of the war along the Italian battlefront are shown.

The pictures are amazingly accurate, according to critics who have seen them and who know the country, and they abound in thrills.

appear at the Oregon next week in his latest Artcraft production "A Modern Muskateer." Like the Dumas hero, he manages to get into innumerable scrapes, some humorous and others sensational. We would suggest the Armory be rented for such big productions as this so everybody could get in.

The women of this country can do their bit, even while staying at home can be gleaned from the Triangle play, "For Valour," at the Liberty theater on Wednesday and Thursday.

The Snead-eker company, that has been putting over some splendid short versions of famous plays at the Bligh the last two weeks, will return Monday and offer "Tess of the Storm Country" the piece that made Mary Pickford famous.

The great Italian Battlefront pictures, that took all Portland by storm when they were shown at the Heilig theater last week, will be shown in Salem for one day only, Tuesday, Jan. 15, at the Bligh theater.

Coming soon, Mary Garden in "Thais" is announced at the Liberty.

Mae Marsh, the quaint little star of "Birth of a Nation," "Polly of the Circus," and many others, is now appearing for the last time today at the Liberty in "The Cinderella Man" and you can be assured that it's good when Mae Marsh is in it.

Rex Beach's greatest piece "The Barrier," is now in pictures and will be shown in Salem at the Liberty next Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

CHILDREN GO TO SEE GOVERNOR

Hundreds of Youngsters From Baptist Church March Through Streets

One of the best things that has been pulled off in Salem for some time was a parade of several hundred children of the First Baptist church yesterday, which included an invasion of the office of Governor Withycombe and a serenading of the two newspaper offices.

The children were led by Evangelist Bruce Evans, who is holding a series of revival meetings at the church, and Dr. G. F. Holt, pastor of the church. At the governor's office the children crowded into his private room and sang several of which were composed for the occasion, and answered questions put to them by the evangelist, most of which most adult men and women cannot answer. The youngsters then all marched past the governor to shake hands with the executive. In a long line, two abreast, they marched through the streets, carrying banners with patriotic inscriptions or words boosting the church and Sunday school. Horns and other noise-making instruments were used freely.

RELIEF BLANKS ARE RECEIVED

Plan Is Devised for Working Out Allotment for Dependents

A plan has been devised by the civilian relief committee of Willamette chapter, American Red Cross, to obtain relief for dependents of soldiers under the war-risk insurance and pay allotment statutes. The committee, of which Ivan McDaniel is chairman, has full information on the subject, and blanks which may be filled out by persons affected. Those wishing information may obtain it from Mr. McDaniel at the commercial club.

All cases of dependents, it is explained, should be reported to Mr. McDaniel, who wants a list of all soldiers' or sailors' dependents in Marion and Polk counties.

In case any dependents have assignments of pay allotment that are slow in coming they will receive temporary relief from the Red Cross pending receipt of the pay.

Several women who have had experience in social service work are wanted to assist in the work as individual visitors to dependents.
