NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—The stock market drifted aimlessly today, a firm opening bid succeeded by irregular declines, these in turn giving way to a general rally, with yet another setback towards the close.

The final reversal came on the heels of Secretary McAdoo's statement before a congressional committee in which he again urged prompt action on pending railroad legislation, with direct reference to its bearing upon further government loans to be floated by the end of the fiscal year.

Other Washington developments which served to unsettle the market included the extension of the freight embargo and maintenance of the existing price schedule on copper metal by the war board.

Specialties again comprised a very large part of the day's limited dealing, pools continuing their activity in speculative issues while rails and many other standard stocks were ignored or moved within narrow bounds.

Industrial conditions, especially the production of finished iron and steel further aggravated by the freight blockade, according to trade authorities. United States Steel was again the most active issue of the day, losing a point on persistent
