Political and Economic Measures Weigh Heavily Upon Market

NEW YORK, Jan. 24.-Political and economic measures continued to weight upon the stock market today. although there was a moderate rally, due in part to short covering, a Provisions closed 5 cents off to 22 the end. Pools were again avtice in minor specialties, but the lack of public interest in representative shares was an obvious drawback. Peace rumors, government financing, the freight embargo and fuel shortage were among the conflicting elements that affected the moderate dealings in varying degree. Trade authorities agreed that as yet industrial conditions showed little improvement from the government's closure decree. Greater ease was displayed in the market for call loans which opened funds, while quotably unchanged were scarce to the point of complete withdrawel. That investment money still seek an outlet was seen in the large over subscription to the $5,000,000 New York city revenue-warrants, which slightly over 4 1/2 per cent.

Market leaders moved in a very actionary trend on presentation to before the report of the rifle that congress of railroad bills somewhat fired it is heard.

price of eggs has mounted gradually during the last two or three years. Perhaps it is not possible to produce eggs for that price during the present winter, but that is the record made by ten White Leghorn pullets last year. These pullets were purchased November 1, 1916, by H. L. Kempster, of Columbia. Mo. Only two were old enough to lay before Janwers of said city, and to complete their registration on or before the St. day of February, 1918, at 8:00 p. m.

Any German alien, required to registration within the time fixed therefor, or who violates, or attempts to violate, or of whom there is reasonable groundation believe that he is about to violate any regulation duly promulgated by the President of the United States, or these regulations, in addition to all other penalties prescribed by law, in liable to restraint. were old enough to lay before January 1. At the end of seven months, May 31, the flock had produced 749 eggs at a feed cost of less than 14 cents a dozen. The average retail price of eggs in Columbia during this time was not less than 35 cents a dozen. Thus, on the basis of that price, the hens returned a labor income of $1.32 each,

The house in which the birds were kept had been made of packing boxes and was covered with roofing paper. The actual cost of the house, not including packing boxes, was $3.85. During the seven months the birds ate 225 pounds of cracked corn and 125 pounds of mash. The mash consisted of equal parts by weight of bran, shorts, corn meal, and beef scrap. Oyster shell was kept before the hens in a can attached to the wall. The total feed cost including one bale of straw was $8.66.

Owing to the high price of feeds it may not be possible to produce eggs so cheaply during the present winter. However, Mr. Kempster suggests that the record made by these hens was not exceptional. At any rate the backyard poultry keeper will be able to make considerable saving by producing his own eggs. Further information concerning the backyard poultry flock will be found in Extension Circular 26 of the University of Missouri College of Agriculture Columbia, Mo.
