The Bitters contain 25 per cent of alcohol, the label stating that it requires that much to hold in solution the barks, roots and herbs in the medicine. TOM AND STEVE COME TO TOWN
Walker and Hill Use Different Methods and Each Claims Best of It

"Let me make you acquainted with my next door neighbor, he is a pretty fellow, and owns about as much land as I do, only his boys are all girls," said Tom Walker yesterday afternoon, as he stood in front of the bank, and turned to his neighbor S. B. Hill, commonly called "Steve" in the Middle Grove school district.

"The fact of the matter is," continued Tom, he owns and runs a McCormick harvester and mine is a Deering, and each thinks his machine is the best. He runs his by horse power, and I run mine with a tractor—sometimes. But just now I am breaking a team of horses on my place, and he is plowing with horses, just the same as I am, only I use three, and he gets along with a pair of colts, and claims to do more work in a day than I do.

"We never see each other, except in town here, or looking over the fence, as this time of the year, there is little time to waste."

"The fact of the matter is a good one this year, but never can tell how long one will stay, as the government is after them all the time."

"Now, if I had a lot of girls to do part of my work, just like Steve here, has, I would not worry about the hired man proposition so much, because girls on the farm the right kind of girls, are just as good as a lot of the wrong kind of men. The girls are just as good girls, and make just as good wives, or better, for their work in the fields, as do the girls who never do any of that kind of work. And they are all the healthier for the out door exercise."

"But I will have a better story the next time I come in, and that will be about our Red Cross work. And that is another place where all our girls shine, for they are doing splendid work, and also selling thrift stamps to beat the band."

Salem Will Be Host to Laymen's Missionary Assembly Next Month

Beginning March 17 Salem will be host to a Laymen's Missionary movement convention, and it is believed by the local committee that 1000 delegates will be present.

The Laymen's Missionary movement is in two ways perhaps the most significant development of recent years in the religious life of the country. In the first place, as an interdenominational undertaking embracing most of the evangelical churches of America, it represents a long step forward toward that ideal of church unity which inevitably will be realized, at least in the form of universal co-operation in spreading the gospel of Christianity. In the second place, as an enterprise fostered by laymen and appealing to the men of the nation to take an active and militant part in the work of the church, it represents perhaps the most dynamic force now at work in the much needed task of making Christian service a vital factor in the everyday life of the average man.

Coming at a period of turmoil when even the most stouthearted optimists are sometimes tempted to the view that Christianity has failed of its mission to the world, this campaign is peculiarly timely, and in the cities where conventions have already been held it has met a response almost undreamed of. Men are thinking today of spiritual matters as they have not thought before in generations, and it is a matter of common knowledge that church attendance by men is steadily increasing.

Complex and various are the factors which are bringing about this awakening, its significance is too plain to be misunderstood.

"Out of the chaos into which half of the Christian world has been plunged by war is to come, not the downfall, but the renaissance of Christianity. Out of the ashes of sacrifice are to rise new structures, not only political and economic, but moral and religious."

Church's Mission.
"A mighty epoch of reconstruction is near at hand, and in it the church, clearer visioned and dedicated anew to its true ideal of special service, is destined to play a vital part. Not necessarily less than in the past a woman's church in woman's world, it promises to be in the future a man's church in a man's world. Every sign points in a tremendous religious revival, and the Laymen's Missionary movement is one of the potent agencies now at work laying its foundations."

MONEY'S WORTH RIGGS' POLICY
Salem Man Files Declaration of Candidacy for Representative

Z. J. Riggs of Salem yesterday filed with Secretary of State Olcott declaration of his candidacy for the nomination of representative in the legislature on the Republican ticket. Mr. Riggs' slogan is "A dollar's worth for every dollar spent."

Further he submits the following as his platform:

"Practice economy at all times and at the same time strive for efficiency, as I feel that the expenditure of the taxpayers' money should be done with the same economy and judgment as that of an individual."

Another candidate to file yesterday was W. G. Trill, district attorney for Wheeler county, who is up for re-election. He is a Republican.

His slogan is "A strict enforcement of all statutes without prejudice or favor."
