When that American boy comes back from the trenches, he will be a bigger man than his dad. He will have an international sense," declared Dr. A. W. Evans, nephew of David Lloyd George of England, and a lecturer of the Salem lyceum course, who held a large audience ear-bound to him last night during his keen patriotic address at the armory.

With fine contrasts and scintillating humor, Dr. Evans, who is a native of the "heather hills of Wales" brought home strong international points in praising the United States for one great characteristic. He mentioned that he has wandered in fifteen countries and has lived in six. The traveler-lecturer said in a month he would receive his final papers as a citizen of the United States. Then he asked his audience to define "America" for him.

There were many answers and the lecturer brought out the words of "liberty" and "home" which were given as definitions. But he showed a difference. He said, "I remember when a small boy, I used to stand before the Union Jack, in saluting it we said: "Oh, Lord, arise, Scatter our enemies, Make them fall, God save us all."

He added, "I used to think that if you were not a Britisher, you weren't much. Further to show up the hatred which was bred into little European children for some races other than their own he told a reminiscence of his sixth birthday. His father gave him a box of soldiers. He hailed another small boy to come and play with him. But the other boy said as he looked at the toys, "They're no good, it says so right on them." And there were the words, "Made in Germany." Disgusted the youngsters mobilized their toy German army and bombarded them until they broke.

Decree of final settlement was entered in the estate of Marie Leisi, deceased, releasing the bonds of Helen Leisi, administratrix. The bond of Olive L. Stege in the sum of $127.75 was filed as administratrix of the estate of F. M. Howe, deceased. A. McCulloch, F. J. Smith and Archie Smith were appointed appraisers of the estate of Mannasseh Bergey, deceased. The sale of certain property of the estate of Mabel L. Campbell, deceased, by Willard L. Campbell, and O. L. Martin, administrators was yesterday approved by the court, the sale price being $500 cash.

CHIROPRACTIC Competency The history of the Science of Chiropractic, which shows this mode of practice with eight or ten thousand practitioners, innumerable benefited patients and thousands of ailing mortals daily taking adjustments is possibly the best assurance that chiropractors are competent to deal with the sick. Chiropractors are not cure-alls. They do not claim or pretend that a spinal adjustment will set a broken leg, cure toothache, etc., but they do claim there are many instances where the doctor of medicine or surgeon is helpless and the only method of helping the patient is Chiropractic. If you are suffering from any ailment, come to me and I will diagnose your case without asking you a question. I will be honest in telling you whether Chiropractic adjustments will cure you. DR. O.
