munity north of the city, was of draft age and would have been among the first of the registered men chosen from this county, but rather than await the draft he enlisted just before the first of the year and had been at Camp Lewis taking training since that time. Information reaching his relatives in Dallas the first of the week stated that he had been operated on and that his condition was serious.

The young soldier's body arrived in Dallas last night and yesterday a military funeral was held over the remains in the Dallas Presbyterian church. Business in the city closed during the services in honor of the young soldier. Later another service was held from the German church of Salt creek as the young man's parents can neither speak or understand the English language.

Quiring was the second Dallas boy to give up his life for Uncle Sam since the present war broke out. Sergeant Elton Blake of Company L being the other. Blake died about a year ago of pneumonia at Vancouver barracks.
