SHIPBUILDERS TO BE EXEMPTED

Negotiations in Progress Not to Draft Subjects of t Allies in U. S.

WASHINGTON, March 11 .- Negotiations are in progress between the United States and the allies for the exemption from draft of the allied nationals who are working in shipyards of this country but who are subject to draft under treaties now being negotiated. The United States desires to have the allies recognize shipbuilding as a vital war service as the United States has recognized it, in exempting Americans who are coig such work, Officials said the negotiations effect a good many thousand workers trained in shipbuilding, whose loss would prove a serious handican to the building program and might possibly entail delays in special lines of work that would be disastrous. Eastern shipyards especially employ large numbers of aliens, including Scotch, Irish, Italians and Slavs. many of whom are highly skilled carpenters and iron workers. Approximately 250,000 Englishmen and 60,000 Canadians would become liable for service under treaties negotiated with those countries, but not yet ratified by the senate. The treaties permit the drafting of men between the ages of 20 and 40 years, who include the most vigorous and productive of the shipyards alien employes. Similar treaties with Italy and France are being negotiated.

Committee to Give Advice on Agricultural Problems

WASHINGTON, March 11 .- An advisory committee of representative producers of foodstuffs and livestock has been formed by Secretary Houston and Food Administrator Hoover to give advice on national agricultural problems. The committee will be called into conference frequently.

Members of the committee were selected with reference not only to the larger agricultural interests, but also geographical considerations. Among the number who already have accepted are: F. J. Hagenbarth, Spencer, Idaho.
