BETTER BALANCED CHRISTIANITY
THEME OF SERMON BY MR. GILL

Unified Christendom will have the result of a better balanced Christianity; sectarian Christianity is largely one of emphasis; so says the Rev. Robert S. Gill in an address delivered Sunday night, the fourth in a series on church unity. The theme for the talk was the contrast of Protestant and Catholic ideals.

"In the view of a Christendom, divided into 160 or 170 sects, the natural conclusion is that they can't all be right," said the speaker. "An almost equally natural conclusion is that they all are probably wrong. But this is natural only because it is the fruit of disunity. What is certain, anyhow, is that some can't be wholly right and some wholly wrong. The roots of all are interlaced in close and intimate fashion. By and large Christendom is divided into two great groups—Catholic and Protestant. An Episcopalian in a good position to see this as he is both Catholic and Protestant. Some folks are unkind enough for this reason to say that he is therefore neither fish, flesh nor fowl. On the contrary he is merely in possession of a wider, or at least a different, synthesis."

Both intellect and emotion count. After making an extended contrast of the two systems, Catholic and Protestant, the speaker asked: "Which is right? These differences are deep and radical. Nothing seems surer to me than that both are right in what they affirm, and that both are wrong in what they deny. If we could combine both we should have a pretty well balanced Christianity, better balanced than is the witness of either apart from the other; although anyone who is accustomed to looking at a merely lop-sided Christianity would scarcely agree with me.

"We seem somehow to suppose that emphasis on one point necessarily bars out emphasis on some other point. How is the Christian program to be carried out—by work or by prayer? Quite obviously by both and it would be absurd to say that if we work we can't pray, or if we pray we can't work. Is Christianity a matter of emotion or of intellect? This is a question of frequent debate in the pulpit. But how badly taken the point is! Quite obviously Christianity is both a matter of intellect and one of emotion.

Christ Is Center. Just so we might ask, is the Bible the center of Christianity, or the sacraments? Shall we be Bible Christians or sacramental Christians? Can we not be both? Is there anything about the one necessarily opposed to the other? Neither is the center of Christianity anyway. Jesus Christ is. And Jesus Christ lives in both Bible and Sacraments.

"Is the Christian minister a priest or a prophet? Is it his business to celebrate the sacraments or to preach the gospel? Does it have to be limited to one or the other? May it not be both? Would not his ministry have a better balance if both were strongly emphasized, and not either one to the exclusion or disparagement of the other?

Less Stubbornness Urged. The Catholic is stiff and firm on the authority of the church, on the church's divine appointment and mission. The Protestant strenuously asserts the rights of private judgment and the necessity of individual conversion. But the Catholic holds also that the benefit of the church and her ordinance depend on the individual; and the Protestant thinks of the church as of divine authority. The evangelist will not deny his catholicity; nor will the Catholic deny his evangelicity. Wide as the difference is, the hope in the situation lies in the fact that it is mostly one of emphasis. Stanch Catholic and stanch evangelist will be the first to deny this; but either will be hard put to it to prove the contrary.

"The whole point is that we have nothing to lose, and everything to gain—even the attaining of the unity of the faith. We need not be less stanch in saying Yes, but less stubborn in saying No."

Rabies Is Prevalent in
Klamath County Says Letter

Rabies is dangerously prevalent in Klamath county, according to a letter that has been received by Dr. W. H. Lytle, state veterinarian, from H. Roland Glassey, county agent for that county. The letter says that a government hunter is at work on the Jim Jockley farm on Klamath marsh, where several cattle have died of rabies. One dead coyote was found, indicating that the animal had bitten the cattle. Two professional hunters and trappers are operating in the Bly section where thirty-two head of sheep and eight or ten cattle have died since the disease first made its appearance.

BANISH CATARRH

Breathe Hymel for Two Minutes and Stuffed Up Head Will Get Relief. If you want to get relief from catarrh, cold in the head or from an irritating cough in the shortest time breathe Hymel.

It will clean out your head in two minutes and allow you to breathe freely. Hymel will end a cold in one day. It will relieve you of disgusting sniffles, hawking, spitting and offensive breath in a week. Chiefly from a soothing, healing, germ killing antiseptic, that comes from the eucalyptus forests of inland Australia where catarrh, asthma and consumption were never known to exist.

Hymel is pleasant and easy to breathe. Just pour a few drops into the hard rubber inhaler, use an directed and relief is almost certain. A complete Hymel outfit, including inhaler and one bottle of Hymel, costs but little at drugist everywhere and at Daniel J. Fry's. If you already own an inhaler you can get an extra bottle of Hymel at drugists.

New Member Appointed for Consolidation Commission

Because of ill health, Austin T. Buxton has submitted to Governor Withycombe his resignation as a member of the consolidation commission and yesterday the governor announced the appointment of Judge J. C. Fullerton of Roseburg to fill the vacancy. Mr. Buxton is now a resident of Molalla, but until recently lived at Forest Grove.

The commission was provided for by the 1917 legislature and appointed by the governor to investigate the question of combining state commissions. Governor Withycombe is pleased with progress that is being made, and says an elaborate report will be presented at the next legislature.

Idaho Veterinarian Too
Cautious, Is in Court

Because he has insisted on testing the horses of Harney county men driving to towns across the Idaho line, E. S. Roberts, an Idaho deputy veterinarian, has been made defendant in an action brought by the state upon complaint of Lewis Fisher. The complaint states that Roberts injected mallein into a mare and a gelding owned by the complaining witness. The case is on file in the justice of the peace court for Snake River precinct, Harney county, and a copy has been received by State Veterinarian Lytle. Dr. Lytle says an agreement exists between states that tests of stock shall not be made when the animals are simply ridden or driven to vehicles in trips across the line.

Two Deliveries to Serve
Patrons of Dallas Stores

DALLAS, Ore., March 11.—(Special to The Statesman.)—The Dallas delivery system which has heretofore been making four deliveries daily from the local stores this morning started in on a two-delivery schedule. The change was made in an endeavor to conserve the gasoline supply and cut the operating expenses of the merchants. The Dallas merchants have adopted a thirty-day credit system and hereafter credit at most of the stores will only be given for thirty days. This system has been forced upon the merchants on account of the high cost of supplies and the cutting of the credit system by the wholesale houses.

Leaders Confident That Plan
Is Destined to Overthrow
Autocracy

Cablegram to Arthur Henderson, British labor party leader, England: "Oregon labor federation approves British labor reconstruction program. International action will rally people to world democracy and make overthrow of autocracy certain. Urge allied conference for furtherance of comprehensive plan."

By R. A. HARRIS.

In the above language the Oregon States Federation of Labor, through its executive board, has voiced its approval of the sweeping reconstruction program of the British Labor party, as reprinted in the Statesman of March 2 from the New Republic of February 16, in a cablegram, direct to Arthur Henderson, prominent British labor leader.

Leaders Are Confident.

That a similar world program "will rally the people of the world to the standard of democracy as no other incentive heretofore offered has done, and will make the early and complete overthrow of autocracy as inevitable as the law of gravitation," is the further expressed belief of the Oregon labor leaders in a letter which they are writing to a large number of prominent men and women of America.

Included in the list of men and women the Oregon labor body is urging to lend their active influence for an international conference looking to the formulation of a world program along the lines of the platform of the British labor party are the following:

Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, New York; Frank P. Walsh, Kansas City; Samuel Gompers, Secretary of Labor Union, Senators McNary, Chamberlain, Hiram Johnson, W. E. Borah, Representative Slinnot, Washington, D. C.; Charles Steiwe, Arthur Kellogg, Edw. T. Devine, S. McCune Lindsay, Josephine Goldmark, Florence Kelley, Irene Osgood Andrews, Lillian Wald and the Editors of the New Republic, New York; John R. Commons, Madison, Wisconsin; Henry Ford, Detroit; Graham Taylor, Mary McDowell, Chicago; T. S. Adams, Yale University, New Haven; Archbishop Ireland, St. Paul; John Sargo, Old Bennington, Vermont; Bishop William Bell, Los Angeles; Rev. E. V. O'Hara, C. S. Jackson, Portland, Oregon.

Following is the text of the letter to the above and other prominent Americans:

"We are writing to offer the help of the workers of Oregon in organizing an American movement to support an allied conference on a world program of democracy of the general intent and purpose of the British Labor party platform as published in the New Republic of February 16 last."

"We believe that such action will rally the people of the world to the standard of democracy as no other incentive hitherto offered has done, and will make the early and complete overthrow of autocracy as inevitable as the law of gravitation."

"We urge you with all our might to lend your great influence and activities to the forwarding of such a movement."

Salem Committee Leads. The action of the State Federation of Labor as above indicated is the result of the efforts of a Salem committee appointed on authority of a resolution adopted at the meeting of the Salem Alliance for Labor and Democracy following the address of Professor Joseph K. Hart of Reed college who spoke on the British labor program in Willamette University chapel on the night of February 6.

IN FIVE MINUTES! NO
INDIGESTION, GAS OR
SOUR, ACID STOMACHThe Moment "Pape's Diapepsin"
Reaches the Stomach All Distress Goes.

"Really does" put upset stomachs in order—"really does" overcome indigestion, dyspepsia, gas, heartburn and sourness due to acid fermentations in five minutes—that—just that—makes Pape's Diapepsin the largest selling stomach antacid and regulator in the world. If what you eat ferments and turns sour, you belch gas and eructate undigested food or water; head is dizzy and aches; breath foul; tongue coated; your insides filled with indigestible waste remember the moment "Pape's Diapepsin" comes in contact with the stomach all such distress vanishes. It's truly astonishing—almost marvelous, and the joy is it's harmless."

A large fifty-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin is worth its weight in gold to men and women who can't get their stomachs regulated. It belongs in your home—should always be kept handy in case of sick, sour, upset stomach during the day or at night. It's quickest, surest, safest for the stomach in the world.

sity chapel on the night of February 6.

The platform of the British Labor party is comprehensive and complete. The New Republic, which printed it in full, is one of the country's foremost weekly magazines of political comment. It commends the British labor document to the careful consideration of thoughtful people everywhere and calls it "the most mature and carefully formulated program ever put forth by a responsible political party." It is one of the most popular topics of discussion by the eastern press bearing on the internal issues of the war, and is being considered with a wide degree of favor by progressive men and women. Already several commendatory messages have been forwarded to the British labor leaders expressing a desire for international action of a similar character.

Four "Pillars" Shown. Reduced to its four main "pillars" which scarcely do it justice because of lack of scientific detail which the original document contains, are as follows:

1. The universal enforcement of a national minimum, which will insure to everyone, in good times and bad alike, all the requirements of a healthy life and worthy citizenship.

2. The democratic control of industry: "A genuinely scientific reorganization of the nation's industry, no longer deflected by individual profiteering, on the basis of common ownership of the means of production and the equitable sharing of the proceeds among all who participate and only among these."

3. A revolution in national finance whereby the colossal expenditures involved in the war, as well as in future reconstruction and development, shall be paid by just taxation of the excess wealth of the nation wherever found, and without encroaching on the prescribed national minimum standard of living of any family whatsoever; without hampering production or discouraging useful personal effort, and with the nearest possible approximation to equality of personal sacrifice.

The surplus wealth for the common good, whereby, through nationalization, municipalization and properly graduated taxation, all surplus wealth beyond proper and reasonable needs, shall be owned and utilized alike for all the people, in the extension of industry, scientific research, progress in art, literature, music and all that upon which the real development of civilization so fundamentally depends.

PROMOTION IS
GIVEN EBERLYFormer Member of State Forestry
Department Gives
Good Account

H. J. Eberly, who before his enlistment was connected with the state forestry department, and who is now with the Tenth Forestry engineers in France, has been promoted to second lieutenant, according to a letter received from Eberly by the office of State Forester Elliott. Eberly has some interesting things to tell about French life, and says is quite an attraction to the school children in the town of 20,000 people where he has been stationed. His headquarters, however, at the time of writing were in Paris.

Leutenant Eberly's letter follows in part: "Once more I am located in a regular place and can give you a wee bit of dope about myself and this country which I am beginning to like a regular renchman. Perhaps this is because so far it has treated me so well. A few days ago I was recalled from the supervision of the camp and ordered to report to Paris where I was made second lieutenant. So now you all do not need to be ashamed of your representative 'over there.'"

Class Rules All. "I can't begin to tell you how pleased it made me feel, but believe me, I had it coming, and now I know this army game both ways—the one from seeing France through the slit in a French box car to living in the best hotels and traveling first class. Everything in this country is by class from riding in an omnibus to going to a moving picture show, and when I get back I can tell you both sides of the story."

"I have been in Paris altogether about two and a half weeks, and it is all you ever heard it was and then a lot more. Of course it is different since the war, but it is always Paris and life there is the ideal one of all true French people. I understand that no soldier taking his regular leave is to be allowed in the city, therefore a very small percentage of the troops will ever get to see the place. My headquarters are there, but I have no very great desire to be stationed there permanently—to much wild life for old Eb! I would much prefer the place where I am located at present—a small city of about 20,000 in which no American soldier have ever been before and I am the one and only living attraction—can you imagine me in such a place? When I go down the street I hear the people say, ah ha, the American! and I am known by that name everywhere. The school children gather round me so thick I can hardly walk at noon time, all trying to grab me by the hand and calling 'good-bye.' That is all the English they know and use it reckless-like on all occasions."

Finds Salem Men. "Salem seems a long, long way off, but my heart is just as warm for you all as ever, and we are all waiting for the day." I was in a camp where the Fifty-first division was located and found two fellows from Salem. One was called Mac and the other wore glasses and used to work in Patton's. All are pretty well, a few dying from pneumonia. "Mrs. Elliott would love this town where I am now for there are all kinds of interesting things to see. A mammoth cathedral built in 600 and a lot of fortifications and walls built
