Grenade Throwing May Be Forerunner of Change in Field Events

SAN FRANCISCO, May 9.—The announcement that the University of Washington has fallen in line with a number of other institutions and included grenade throwing as one of the regular field events has renewed the discussion as to the probable after effects of the war on athletics. There are followers of track and field sports who express the opinion that there may be a revision in the list of events by the inclusion of more utilitarian events to replace those which have no particular usefulness.

A former Princeton university athlete in speaking of the matter said:

"CASCARETS" TONIGHT IF BILIOUS OR SICK

Enjoy Life! Don't Stay Headachy, Constipated, With Breathe Bad and Stomach Upset.

"The case of the hand grenade throwing contest is a good example of what may follow. It would in all probability supplant the shotput or javelin throw. The shotput is not an all round developer in my opinion. It builds only a small portion of the body, confined particularly to the arm and shoulder muscles of the hand used in hurling the missile. No accuracy is required, distance being the only thing to be attained by the contestant.

"Grenade throwing calls for both distance and accuracy. It also would be a utilitarian event for the reason that thousands of young men incidentally would be learning how to throw a missile which has become one of the most important weapons of offense and defense in modern warfare."

"The hammer is another event for which a substitution might be effected by borrowing from the list of events used in military games. There is nothing particularly spectacular in events for the onlooker such as is afforded, for instance, by the pole vault, one of the most thrilling of the present day field events. Javelin throwing as an event in the days when men fought with arrows and spears would have served the same purpose as grenade throwing today. But the javelin is now obsolete.

It is not likely that any one wants to do away with the spectacular, but events which are neither spectacular nor of any particular use might be supplanted with competition which furnished a little of both these elements.

ZURICH, May 9.—Kiev newspapers received here describe an all-day battle between the anarchists and the Bolsheviki at Moscow, resulting from the imprisonment of 400 anarchists in the Kremlin. TORNADO SWEEPS IOWA

Just as their house was hurled away. They escaped injury.

Passengers on a late train tonight reported having seen a tornado near Jewell, fifty miles north of here, but reports directly from that town were unavailable. Early reports that Prairie City had been struck by a tornado proved erroneous.

Slow approach of the tornado that hit Eldridge gave residents ample time to seek shelter. Mrs. Henry Ehlers, 80 years old, suffered several ribs broken, and internal injuries and her condition is critical. She was buried beneath timbers in her cellar.

Miss Emma Damman was a victim of one of the freakish pranks of

WIND WRECKS ELDRIDGE

DAVENPORT, Ia., May 9.—More than a score of persons were injured, one probably mortally, when a tornado wrecked the northern part of the town of Eldridge, north of here, and swept over the surrounding country late tonight.

Debris left by the wind blocked railway and telegraph communication. The storm was accompanied by torrential rains which ruined crops and gardens and washed out miles of railway tracks.

Your Printed Message Should Be Appropriate

It should harmonize with the business in which you are engaged. It makes no difference whether your message be a business card, a handbill, a letter, a pamphlet, or a catalog—the rule holds good in every case.

You would not expect a machinist or a coal driller to be attired the same as a florist or a jeweler. It would not be appropriate. Neither would it be appropriate for their printed message to be similar. The coal ad may be printed in bold, black type, on coarse, heavy paper; but the high grade jewelry ad should be printed artistically with light face type, in refined colors and on finest quality paper.

What is more, the printed message should be up to the minute in style. Old, antiquated style in printing creates just as bad an impression as would the hoopskirt, the hobble skirt or the "train" if worn today.

It's our business to make your printed message appropriate. Our printing plant is supplied with the very latest type faces, ornaments and other equipment. The plant is in charge of a printer of unusual ability—a man who makes a study of what is appropriate and timely for each printing job. His services and his advice are at your disposal.
