OPERATIONS OF I. W. W. SPREAD OVER COUNTRY

Evidence Shows Work in Wheat and Oil Field of Middle West States

LETTERS ARE PRODUCED

Court Hears of Negotiations With Laborers—"Cats" Make Change

CHICAGO, May 20.—Details of the operations of the I. W. W. in the wheat and oil fields of the middle west states were revealed today when government attorneys read numerous letters from the correspondence files of Forrest Edwards, secretary and treasurer of the Agricultural Workers' organization of the I. W. W. No. 400, at the trial of 112 members of the body before Federal Judge Landis.

This branch is considered one of the largest and most powerful unions of the I. W. W. by government investigators. At one time, it is said to have an enrollment of 20,000 members, and according to the charges made by the government, its members put into effect a score or more forms of sabotage to curtail the production of foodstuffs and supplies.

The letters showed that large sums were expended by the organization in flooding the middle west states with I. W. W. literature, pamphlets on sabotage and manifestos. One letter read in court disclosed the fact that the I. W. W. last July negotiated with the Farmers' Non-Partisan league of North Dakota for a wage scale agreement. The league offered to pay farm workers $4.50 a day but the proposition was finally rejected because the I. W. W. demanded $5 a day, as the minimum wage.

In one of the official bulletins mentioned was made that the defense of I. W. W. in the state of Washington had cost the organization $23,000. One bulletin read in part: "The anti-I. W. W. bill in Minnesota has passed both houses and is now up to the governor. We wonder if it will work in Minnesota. Durant brothers, millionaire hopgrowers of California, have paid the price. They are on the bum. The 'cats' made a remarkable change in their economic relations to the rest of society."

The methods used by the I. W. W. in farm strikes were described in a letter, written by Thomas O'Day of Anet, N. D., to Edwards, as follows: "There now are about five wobs in town and we have been doing all we can to keep scabs off the jobs. We picket every train. Quite a few wobs on the job with the cat. Three of us hired out to John for $3 with the intention of striking for $4 the next day. The cat then came and stayed till we struck. Still on strike feeding the cat rich cream."

An article in Solidarity, I. W. W. publication, signed by Edwards, was read in part: "Some day our organization will be more powerful than the state. When that time comes, they will open jail doors and release all labor agitators."

A letter, written by W. D. Haywood, general secretary and treasurer of the I. W. W., to Edwards in August, 1917, suggested that since the American Federation of Labor had split with the People's Council for Peace the I. W. W. might be able to drive a nail in the coffin of the labor body by getting into the swim with the People's Council for Peace.

Correction of Errors in Page Ad. Are Made

The Statesman regrets two typographical errors in Sunday's full page advertisement of the Feldstein-Drektor company who are closing out the entire chambers & Chambers furniture stock at 467 Court street. The errors were as follows: "Genuine leather Bed Davenport with quartered oak frame, regular price $77.50, sale price $55.50. (This item read "German" leather, instead of "Genuine" leather.)"

The other error appeared in the following item which read "nickled-trimmed" instead of nicely trimmed: "Solid Oak Dining room Table, nicely trimmed, regular price $21, sale price $16.45. Messrs Feldstein & Drektor report remarkable success at their Big Sale. They state that they are more than pleased with the large volume of business they are doing and if business keeps up to the volume done the last few days it will not take long to close on the entire $36,000 stock.

JUDGE SETTLES TAX QUESTION

Opinion Delivered in Connection With Numerous Appealed Cases

WASHINGTON, May 20.—In an opinion today growing out of the collection of taxes under the corporation excise tax act of 1909, the supreme court held that only profits accrued since that act became effective are taxable under its provisions. Just how the taxable part is to be separated from the previously received "is a matter of some nicety," Justice Pitney conceded in rendering the decision.

The opinion was delivered in connection with a number of cases appealed for the purpose of determining justice what constituted exuse profits under the act growing out of the sale, after the law went into effect, of stock which was purchased previously and also just how the term "income" affects mining and lumber interests obtained prior to the law's enactment but disposed of afterward.

Internal revenue bureau officials believe today's decision supports the bureau's rule permitting tax payers in figuring inventory and for income and excess profits tax returns to use cost or market value of goods and securities, which ever is lower, or else cost alone. If Attorney General Gregory construes the decision differently, however, all returns filed under this system will have to be returned to taxpayers for revision.

Whether a compromise is agreed upon.

Administration forces during the day rejected a substitute resolution brought forth by Senator McKellar and Senator Hitchcock of Nebraska, both military committee members, on the basis of a compromise. They proposed to empower the committee to employ assistants, spend money and have sub-committees sit during congressional recess in investigation of aircraft, ordinance and quartermaster's affairs of the army, but without using the language to which President Wilson objected in the original resolution. The disagreement came on the plan for continuing inquiries by sub-committees at congress adjourns.
