This was presented by "General" Hal Patton, and elaborated upon by Mr. Rhoden, and in the course of the ensuing debate it was demonstrated that the retail merchants of Salem were going to get back of the movement: One method of boosting will be by means of inserting some word about war saving stamps in all advertisements run in the daily papers. A number of those present were ap pointed by the chairman to visit, business houses in their vicinities and induce the proprietors to include such lines in their advertising. In addition to this a large number of
