

FIRST OF CAMPS OFF TO ORCHARD

Over Two Score of Boys and Girls Attack Cherry Trees of Mr. Chapman.

First of the organized boys and girls of Salem to leave for the cherry orchards to help harvest the valley crops was a camp of forty-two members which left yesterday for the Twin Oaks ranch of J. R. Chapman in Polk county under the chaperonage of Mrs. H. N. Aldrich and Mrs. George Satterlee.

The boys in the camp were organized under the Boys' Working reserve of the Y. M. C. A. through H. N. Aldrich the girls under the Girls' Working reserve of the Y. W. C. A. through Miss Florence Cleveland. Picking cherries will be the occupation of the camp, and as soon as that work is finished the boys and girls will be ready to tackle some of the loganberry yards.

Prior to leaving Salem yesterday two automobile loads of the youngsters paraded the streets to advertise the reserves under which they are organized. As soon as any number works for a total of 300 hours he is awarded a large bronze medal. The members of the camp are:

GIRLS, HERE IS CHANCE TO WORK

College Women Needed in Variety of Occupations in War Service.

Possible lines of war service for college girls during the long summer vacation are suggested by Miss Clarel Nye, of the Home Conservation division of the United States Food Administration.

"Each girl should decide in what branch of work she has the most ability," said Miss Nye. "The home demonstration agents need girls who have had training in home economics, public speaking, English, and Journalism. They need, also, girls who have ability to organize or to arrange things attractively for exhibits and fairs."

"To those who have nothing definite in mind I suggest that they hunt up the home demonstration office, usually found in the Farm Bureau, if they live in a rural community, or to find the urban agent, if they live in a city. Should there be no urban agent in her town, a girl should look up the woman who represents the food administration."

"There is a demand for volunteers to act as assistants to the local authorities engaged in the work of the food administration. In almost every county in every state home demonstration agents are overworked and need help badly."

"If in college a girl has shown any ability in research, she can help greatly in standardizing recipes which are sent in by housekeepers and in assisting the agent in preparations for demonstrations. No good agent ever goes out to give a demonstration without having first made careful preparation for it."

"If a girl has an artistic ability and originality, she can be of assistance in arranging exhibits. The preparation of exhibits takes a great deal of time, but because of the value of a means of teaching food conservation it is an important part of the work of the county representative of the food administration."

"The girl who held offices at college is usually a good organizer. The ability to organize can be utilized in completing communities for food conservation. This community committee is the link in the chain between the housekeeper and the federal organization for food conservation."

"If the college girl has the asset of being a good mixer, the value of any other qualities is greatly enhanced."

Edna Mills May Be Retained as Demonstrator of Food

DALLAS, June 20.—(Special to the Statesman)—A meeting of the Polk county woman's council of national defense was held in the circuit court room in the court house Tuesday afternoon and was attended by about 200 delegates from all sections of the county. The meeting was presided over by Mrs. Winnie Braden, head of the county organization. Mrs. Castner of Hood River, head of the Oregon council of defense, was present at the meeting

PUTNAM WRITES FIRST ROMANCE

'The Smiting of the Rock' Received by Friends of Versatile Author.

Several copies of George Palmer Putnam's latest work—an Oregon novel—have been received by his friends in Salem. In presenting this novel he does so under the name of Palmer Bend, a designation which speaks for itself to those who know the author.

Although Mr. Putnam has been the author of a number of books, particularly on travel, and also a number of short stories, this is his first attempt at a novel. His friends, who have been interested in his other works, have been surprised at Mr. Putnam's first adventure in the land of romance. Not because it is not up to the standard of his preceding works, but because it is better, ever so much better in fact. And this is not said to disparage his former efforts.

It may be said disinterestedly that Mr. Putnam's first effort at novel writing has caused him to hit a stride that is worthy a second attempt.

The book—"The Smiting of the Rock"—is a tale of Oregon, of love, of irrigation, and of strong men, and an equally strong, and incidentally, a beautiful woman. Another woman and the heroine appears in the book, and for a time she holds the hero's attention, but it is the beautiful face and beautiful character of the Oregon girl that charms and holds.

The scene is in the central Oregon country. Many of the characters can be identified even by the casual reader who knows anything of Oregon's well known men. The plot is gripping in its character and action fairly strikes one in the fact throughout the book. The effect of Mr. Putnam's travel studies is strongly apparent in the novel. His descriptions are perfect and merit exceptional commendatory comment. They are neither tedious nor dull, and prove an interesting portion of the book, particularly to an Oregonian.

It may be said without flattery to Mr. Putnam that he has succeeded in producing a tale that is well worth reading. Oregonians will find more than a pleasant two hours with this little book in their hands.

Mr. Putnam is well known in Salem where he lived for some time and served here in the capacity of private secretary to Governor Withycombe. He is publisher of the Bend Bulletin and it was his sojourn in the great Central Oregon country that prompted the novel in which he so faithfully depicts that great growing zone of Oregon.

His use of the name Palmer Bend to substitute his own as author grew out of the fact that the work is published by G. P. Putnam & Sons of New York. His connection with that family caused him to submit the manuscript of the novel under an assumed name to ascertain whether his books were or merely as a family affair. Any one who reads the book may readily see how it would "get by" the copy reader of any publishing concern that is looking for works that have the prospect of being heavy sellers.

Aspirants Draw Straws for Democratic Favor

Secretary of State Olcott announced yesterday that Thursday, June 27, has been set aside as the date for deciding by lot who shall be Democratic nominees for the state legislative districts in the sixth and the fourteenth districts. In the official canvass of the Democratic vote J. R. Stannard and Frank Tichenor were found to have drawn 14th four votes each in the sixth district, comprising Coos and Curry counties, and C. J. Edwards and R. J. Moore tied with four votes each in the fourteenth district, comprising Tillamook and Yamhill counties. Stannard is the Republican nominee in the sixth district and Edwards in the fourteenth district. Either the candidates themselves or their attorneys are to appear on the date set by the secretary of state to cast lots.

Special Tax Passes at Dallas School Election

DALLAS, Or., June 20.—(Special to the Statesman)—At the annual school election for school district No. 2 in which the Dallas city schools are located held in the high school building Monday afternoon Mrs. J. R. Craven was re-elected to serve another term on the board and W. L. Soehren was elected to fill the place of C. G. Coad who has been one of the members of the board of directors for the past several years and who refused to consider the place another term. The special tax for $10,500 passed with but four dissenting votes. The amount was $1,250 lower than the special tax voted at the election last year.

and spoke on the workings of the organization throughout the state. Mrs. Castner recently returned from a meeting of the national officers of the defense council held in Washington and was able to tell assembly just what the government expected of members throughout the country. It was unanimously voted at the meeting that the body lend its aid in retaining the services of Miss Edna Mills as federal food administrator for Polk county and committees will wait on county court at a future date and see if that body will lend necessary financial support. Miss Mills' salary is paid by the federal government, and all asked of the county is traveling expenses which would amount to something like $50 a month. The Dallas Commercial club will furnish Miss Mills with free office space.

WAR SUMMARY

To all outward appearances the Austrian offensive in the Italian theatre has met with failure all along the front from the Venetian Alps to the Adriatic sea.

In the hill region additional ground has been recaptured from the invaders, while along the Piave river where intensive fighting is in progress, at some points with fluctuating results, the balance seems to sway in favor of the Italians.

South and east of Asiago the French and Italians have refought Fenestraz, Bertignol and Costalunga, past which the Austrians had hoped to push their front and gain the Asolo river valley, which leads to Vicenza on the plains below.

Not alone were the positions regained, but more than 200 prisoners fell into the hands of the allied troops.

On their part over the entire mountain region, the Austrians have remained quiet except when compelled to go on the defensive and then their efforts to hold back their antagonists have lacked the stamina usual in men whose hearts are in their task. This condition has prevailed since the first onslaught of the enemy was summarily stopped by the fire of the British, French and Italian forces forming the barrier to the Venetian plains.

More heart is being thrown into the enemy along the Piave from the Montello plateau southward to the region lying east of Venice. Here he still seems, notwithstanding his heavy losses and numerous repulses on various sectors, bent on throwing his armies across the stream or pushing further westward with those of his forces who have already set back to the Austrians have followed those of the past days on the Montello, where the Italians are victoriously disputing the right of way to the plains. Likewise, near the famous Zenson loop, farther down the stream, the enemy's heavy attacks have been held and under the impetus of the Italian counter-blows, he has fallen back nearer the river for reinforcements hastily brought up.

Still further south between Fossalta and Sandona di Piave, the Italians have further pushed back the invaders and unofficial reports assert that they have recaptured the village of Capo Sile, lying on the edge of the marsh region some 20 miles east of historic Venice.

It is not outside the range of possibility that a large number of the Austrians are in a fair way to be taken prisoner by the Italians for a large number of pontoon bridges which they threw across the Piave over the fourteen and a half mile front between the Conegliano railroad bridge and the Zenson loop, have been carried away on the bosom of a swollen stream.

Meanwhile, the food situation and the war weariness of the people within the dual monarchy again are making trouble for the authorities. Troublesome times also are in store for the German government owing to the lack of bread. In Vienna mobs are reported to have railed bakeries and stoned the residence of the premier and even to have attacked one of the wings of the imperial palace. Troops had to be called out to restore order.

The German official communication said that the Germans penetrated the American positions at Seicheprey, in the Toul sector east of St. Mihiel, and inflicted heavy casualties. The Associated Press correspondent with the American army in this region says the infantry activity has been confined to an attempted raid, notwithstanding the German claim.

The wheat harvested in the Imperial Valley, Calif., is on its way to the Allies overseas. It is needed there. Within a month the great harvest of the Middle West will start on the same errand of mercy. America must feed them all.

The number of June brides already reported revives that cynical remark that at marrying time a woman is more easily satisfied than at any other. When she is ready, almost anybody will do—Los Angeles Times. What's the matter with you? Did the other fellow get yours?

Your Printed Message Should Be Appropriate

It should harmonize with the business in which you are engaged. It makes no difference whether your message be a business card, a handbill, a letter, a pamphlet, or a catalog—the rule holds good in every case.

You would not expect a machinist or a coal driller to be attired the same as a florist or a jeweler. It would not be appropriate. Neither would it be appropriate for their printed message to be similar. The coal ad may be printed in bold, black type, on coarse, heavy paper; but the high grade jewelry ad should be printed artistically with light face type, in refined colors and on finest quality paper.

What is more, the printed message should be up to the minute in style. Old, antiquated style in printing creates just as bad an impression as would the hoopskirt, the hobble skirt or the "train" if worn today.

It's our business to make your printed message appropriate. Our printing plant is supplied with the very latest type faces, ornaments and other equipment. The plant is in charge of a printer of unusual ability—a man who makes a study of what is appropriate and timely for each printing job. His services and his advice are at your disposal.
