

Flares and Flickers

The Franklin brothers again show their genius for handling children in "Aladdin and the Wonderful Lamp." The results they obtained in this and in "Jack and the Beanstalk" have been simply wonderful. It's no easy job to make a child show several different emotions in as many seconds. Watch little Virginia Lee Corbin and Francis Carpenter change moods and expressions at the Liberty theatre today and tomorrow.

ing a beach around the swimming tank at his Southern California home. Little Lee, the new Paramount star, suggests that he name it Rex Beach, after his dog Rex.

Virginia Lee Corbin, the Princess in William Fox's "Aladdin and the Wonderful Lamp," did some real acting while riding on the camel during the making of the picture. Her placid face doesn't tell the real fears she experienced every time she sat on the back of the joggling animal showing at the Liberty theater today and tomorrow.

"A Case of Pickles" is the billing for the added attraction, Howatson and Swaybell, at the Oregon theater today.

The Liberty Theatre has contracted for the full output of Sessie Hayakawa features, with his own new company.

What is said to be a worth while comedy is Fatty Arbuckle in his latest success "Good Night Nurse" to be shown at the Oregon today.

There are three Messinger children in William Fox's "Aladdin and the Wonderful Lamp," as you will notice from the cast of characters. Buddy, who is the magician's legal advisor; Gertrude, the charming lady in waiting; and Marie, one of the Dancing Girls at the Liberty today and tomorrow.

The end of the first theatrical season in this country during which a war tax was collected on theatrical entertainments shows remarkable results, according to figures now available. At the time the war tax was voted by Congress it was estimated that a total revenue of $40,000,000 would result, the estimate later being raised to $60,000,000. According to later figures, however, the amount will reach $120,000,000.

Coming next Thursday is Sidney Olcott's big production, "The Belgian" with Walker Whiteside and Valentine Grant in the leading roles, at the Liberty theater.

The athletic Douglas Fairbanks performs one of the most daring feats of his career when he walks on a telephone wire from a building to a tall pole in an attempt to rescue his sweetheart from the clutches of her frate papa. Supporting Douglas in "The Matrimaniac" is Constance Talmage to be shown at the Oregon theater Wednesday and Thursday.

While Francis Carpenter was acting the part of Aladdin struggling in the desert, Carmen De Rue, one of the dancing girls, wanted to go to his assistance with a cup of water. She didn't believe he was just acting the part of a boy with a parched throat. She thought it was "just dreadful."

In "The Firefly of France," the new Paramount picture starring Wallace Reid with Ann Little, which will be shown at the Oregon today, the work of an intrepid birdman forms the basis of a story that sets the blood tingling and makes one of the most interesting pictures that has been seen here in many weeks.

It is estimated that 3,000,000 Americans have read Sergeant Empey's book, "Over the Top," the most popular literary masterpiece dealing with the war, and over 25,000,000 are reading his special articles appearing in newspapers throughout the country. Empey is to-day the most talked of man in America. "Over the Top" will be shown in pictures at the Liberty theater, starting July 18.

Description of Act: Florence Randall & Company are two talented people who present a new comedy sketch entitled "A Temperate Woman" in which Miss Randall and Mr. Harris portray the dual characters of a young couple in love and of the aunt of the girl and the father of the boy. The four separate characters reunite very quick changes and a great range of artistic skill, on the Hippodrome show at The Bligh today.

Why is "Over the Top" the greatest story of the war? Because it is written by a man who has been there, who has suffered seven wounds, been promoted for bravery and still stirs the heart of America with his lectures and vibrant tales; because it is chuck full of humor, anecdotes that bring the smile rather than the tear; because it has the vigor, the dash and the indomitable optimism of the true American thoroughbred. The Vitagraph picture, "Over the Top," starring Empey, himself, is the climax of screen art. It is the Great American Photodrama. Will be shown at the Liberty Theatre for three days starting July 18.

Johnson and Arthur present a comedy magic act in which several tricks are burlesqued in a laughable manner. The illusions are pretensions and most interesting, on the Hippodrome show at The Bligh today.

Danny Simmons, a happy smiling chap, with a well knit body attired in the Cameron tartan that sets off his muscular frame, presents a clever conceit that he bills as "The Raw Recruit" in which he impersonates a Scotch soldier who has just joined the ranks, on the Hippodrome show at The Bligh today.

DR. LUCAS' LAST LECTURE

Dr. Alzamon Ira Lucas, noted orator and lecturer, will give the last of his three series of lectures entitled "The Soul: its functions and how to awaken it," in the Grand theater tomorrow night at 8:15 sharp.

"The man or woman whose soul is asleep," says Dr. Lucas, "can never expect to enjoy the health of body and peace of mind that should be theirs on this earth." The man who worships at the shrine of only beliefs without righteous deeds is more of a Pagan than the Upanishad of India who had strange ideas about the soul," says Dr. Lucas.

"No chain is stronger than its weakest link, and the man who is unknown to himself—the wanderer in the realms of thoughtdom only, without an awakening of his soul, is surely a danger to the community of any city," said Dr. Lucas. Your health and happiness is determined by your soul and a rare treat is in store for those who are seeking greater soul development. A cordial invitation is extended all parents, teachers and the public in general. The admission is free.
