MEMBERSHIP OF CLUB DISCUSSED
Campaign by Letter Is Decided Upon at Noon Luncheon Yesterday
 The future of the Salem Commercial club's membership roll was one of the topics discussed by the directors at their regular noon luncheon at the Marion yesterday.
 As before intimated, both the membership and the activities of the club have been made to suffer during the past year by the demands of war activities and other influences. Yet the officers and directors emphasize the fact that it is imperative that the club, as the center of progressive work in the city, must be maintained. As to the methods of building up the membership, there was considerable discussion, some of the members believing that an active drive would be the only certain method of enrolling a large membership. However, it was decided at this meeting that an attempt would be made to enlist the business men through an appeal by letters, and if this does not bring results, then a close canvass might be made. In this canvass by mail, old members are being requested to renew and new members to enroll for one year at the same rates as made during the past few years.
 The fact has been cited that to provide for the current expenses of the club and a reserve fund there should be an income of approximately $1000 a month. This will require a big, live membership.

JORDAN VALLEY PACT IS SIGNED
Desert Land Board Negotiates Important Reclamation Agreement
 One of the most important contracts to which the state desert land board has ever been a party was executed yesterday when the names of Governor Withycombe and State Engineer John H. Lewis were attached to a contract between the board and the Jordan Valley Land and Water company and the contract received approval of Attorney General Brown.
 The contract covers about 30,000 acres in the Jordan valley of Malheur county. Already the Antelope flat reservoir and a feed canal leading from Jordan creek have been constructed partially and the company, under the contract will complete the canal so that it will have a capacity of 127,000 acre feet. The contract leaves for future determination whether the company shall construct Canyon reservoir on Jordan creek for the irrigation of additional lands. The ultimate construction cost of the project will be in excess of $1,000,000. The guarantee performance of the terms of the contract of the Jordan Valley company has put up bonds of $100,000.
 The contract executed yesterday is the first Carey act project ever executed by the state covering a project already under construction when the contract was executed. Land and water rights in the district are to be sold to settlers for $71 an acre. Of this amount $5 an acre goes to the building of roads. One road has been projected from Jordan Valley to Venator, 20 miles east of Crane, the terminal point of the Oregon Central railroad and other highways are being planned. Under the contract the company has five years in which to finish construction of the project, but expects to have it completed in three years. Of the 30,000 acres about 6,000 have already been sold according to the requirement that not more than 160 acres can be sold to one person. Most of the purchasers so far have been men from the Twin Falls neighborhood of Idaho who have sold their Idaho holdings at $250 an acre and bought the Oregon land at $71, paying $20 down. Harley J. Hooker is sales agent for the lands and declares that present economic conditions offer no serious difficulty in the sale of lands. Mr. Hooker finds the farmers in a buying mood. Settlers on the Jordan Valley lands have seven years in which to finish paying for the lands. On the Jordan valley project part of the water can be drawn from its natural flow until about July of each year, and then the entire supply will be taken from the reservoir.
 To complete details of the contract Paul S. A. Bickel, engineer in charge of the project, was in Salem yesterday. Mr. Bickel formerly was in charge of the North and South Twin Falls projects in Idaho.

State Military Leaders to Address Dallas Meeting
 DALLAS, July 8.—(Special to The Statesman)—W. V. Fuller, chairman of the Polk county council of national defense has called a big county meeting of the organization to be held in Dallas Wednesday night of this week. Two different meetings will be held on this date. One for the instruction of registered men who are subject to the draft will take place in the circuit court room of the court house. All registered men have been ordered by Captain Cullison, in charge of the selective draft of this state to be in attendance at this meeting at which an officer of the United States medical department of the army will address the gathering. The other meeting will be held in the Orpheum theatre and will be for the general public. The speakers at this meeting will be John K. Kollock, of Portland, chairman of the Oregon council of national defense and Colonel John B. Hibbard, commanding officer of the Oregon Guards.

Rhoden Pays and Case Against Him is Dropped
 T. F. Rhoden, who until a few weeks ago was district manager for the Metropolitan Insurance company in Salem and who, after resigning his position and leaving for California, was charged by Mrs. Grace Pilkington with larceny by bailer, has telegraphed the amount involved in the complaint and action against him has been dropped. Rhoden was accused of selling an automobile which had been transferred to him by Mrs. Pilkington under a contract by which he was not to be legal owner of the car until he had completed payment for it.

$6000 From Twenty-five Acres, Lawrence Expects
 SILVERTON, OR., July 8.—(Special to The Statesman)—The pruner on in this part of the valley never looked more promising. The trees are filled with fruit and with a possible shrinkage in size due to the extreme dry weather the fruit will be abundant. J. E. Lawrence, a large grower from Scotts Mills district, reported that he anticipates a $6,000 crop from his twenty-five acre tract.

Court Claims Jurisdiction
 In the action of beneficiaries of the will of the late Thomas Johnson, namely Mrs. Isabella Farrar, Sarah Forstner and Eliza Dakin, against Thomas B Kay a friendly suit brought to determine whether Oregon courts have jurisdiction in the case, Judge Bingham has decided that such is the case. Certain stock was left in the Kay Woolen Mills was left to the plaintiffs by the will of Mr. Johnson, but the will was contested by an adopted daughter of the deceased who lives in St. Louis. She claimed that other wills had been made and that Mr. Johnson was not in a capable condition when the last will was made. She contested the will and when Mr. Kay was required to turn over the stock to the beneficiaries of the will, for whom a decree was given, the adopted daughter refused to surrender the certificate of stock on grounds that the Oregon courts did not have jurisdiction. This gave rise to the case just decided by Judge Bingham.

Organized Auto Thieves Operating on This Coast
Two Contracts Will be Let by Road Commission

Almost every day Salem police headquarters is in receipt of telegrams from various parts of the coast country, warning them to be on the lookout for auto thieves. Evidently they are doing a thriving business and are getting away with a number of machines.

Surprise has been expressed that it is possible for a thief to annex an automobile, as was recently done in Salem, and then traverse a well traveled highway, through numerous towns threaded with telephone lines, and make good his getaway. But as a member of the local force pointed out, it is not as difficult as it looks. The grand larcenist has only to provide himself with a number of different license plates, and as he travels from one section to another, occasionally change the plates. Thus, if an officer on the road, armed with a description of the auto, holds him up and looks for the license number, he finds that it does not tally with the description wired him. Consequently he has nothing on the thief unless the car has some other distinguishing mark about it. To make the thing doubly sure, the thief could very quickly camouflage the car with a new coat of paint. With an organized gang operating in large centers it is possible to make auto stealing a safe game.

At a meeting in Portland today the state highway commission will open bids for the sale of $250,000 in state highway bonds, definite approval of which was received from the capital issues committee. Contracts will be let for a bridge at Tizard, Washington county, and the Elgin-Mizan grading project in eastern Oregon. The estimated cost of the latter is $40,000.

EVANGELIST HAYWARD Says Millennium of Peace Will Follow This War
 But the Wicked Will Have No Part In It.

"Satan will take a much needed vacation, and, for the first time in their history the wicked will be at peace among themselves." So said Evangelist Phil C. Hayward in discussing the millennium which will be the subject of his address tonight in the series of Hayward-Dickson meetings which are being conducted in the big tent on Court Street opposite the Post Office. These great free lectures are given every night, and you are invited.

Hear Mr. Dickson tomorrow night in that remarkable sermon-lecture on "Heaven, Hell, Purgatory."
