The Frankfurter Zeitung says: Two interventions are being pre pared. From one side the Japanese with the Cossacks of Semenoff are going to enter. Another may take place on the coast of the Arctic sea and along the railway of the Murman coast. The allies have the support in this region of the population who have completely separated themselves from the societies. This double Intervention will probably take place at the moment the Bolsheviki government, after eight months of dominations, appears to have exhausted its
