Corn Soars With Keen Demand From Millers

CHICAGO, July 12.—Keen demand from millers together with prospects of curtailed receipts made corn soar today, but a material betback ensued after announcement that President Wilson had begun drafting a veto of the bill to increase the government guaranteed price of wheat. The close was nervous, 1⅝c to 2¾c net higher with August $1.61½ @1.61⅝ and September $1.51@1.61¼. Oats gained ½c to 1⅛s and provisions 5c to 10c.

SESSION DULLER THAN IN WEEKS

Alternate Rallies and Declines Mark Trading on New York Exchange

NEW YORK, July 12.—Alternate rallies and declines attended today's session of the stock exchange, the dullest in many weeks, but gains, mostly nominal, prevailed at the apathetic close. Professionals were in absolute control, the market at no recent period manifesting such an utter lack of public interest. hTis was most evidenced in the rails, many of which were unquoed.

News of the day was constructive for the most part, although the discussion over copper prices at Washington and the conference of railway executives to effect a satisfactory form of contract with the government were among the deterrent factors.

Only nominal rates were quoted for time money, indicating further withdrawal of such funds by local institutions. Nevertheless forecasts favored partial rectification tomorrow of last week's contraction in excess reserves.

Half a dozen issues, led by United States Steel, made up 50 per cent of the day's business. Steel scored an extreme advance of slightly more tha none point, but cancelled half its gain at the irregular clse.

Pool influence was again moderately exerted in the direction of tobaccos, shippings, papers, motor accessories, American woolen, Mexican petroleum, corn products and American can. Total sales amounted to 240,000 shares.

The general bond list, including liberty issues, was inclined to ease. Total sales, par value, amounted to $4,775,000.

United States bonds, old issues, were unchanged an call,registered 2s losing ¼ pr cent on call.

A SILHOUETTE GALLERY.

From the Woman's Home Companion we clipped the following clever idea for an evening's entertainment, that might be successfully used in any community:

There was a debt resting on our village ibrary, and to raise it a plan that appealed personally to each one in town was originated.

Two of us visited every house, armed with many sheets of brown wrapping paper, a stout pencil and a hand lamp that gave a good light.

We requested that only one member of the family remain in the room at a time. Then a piece of paper, large enough to hold the drawing of a full-size head, was pinned on the wall, and our subject placed close enough for the profile to be clearly outlined when the lighted lamp was held at an angle to cast the shadow correctly. One of us held the lamp and the other made the silhouette quickly—taking the paper down before the sitter turned around. Each paper had the name written on it to avoid any trouble in numbering them for guessing.

We went everywhere in the village, leaving out no one and telling all to come on a certain night, drop a coin in the box at the door and see if they could find themselves.

The silhouettes, which were life size, we cut out and pinned against a dark wall of solid color. Each one was numbered a,nd fifteen minutes were allowed for guessing them, after which the correct answers were read and a simple prize awarded.

Ice cream was sold from a wagon on two wheels pushed by a boy and girl dressed in bakers' caps and aprons, ringing a dinner bell to attract the crowd.

CONSERVATIVE RECIPES.

The following recipes for quick breads made principally from corn meal are taken from Farmers' Bulletin 565:

Ash Cake.—One quart corn meal, two teaspoons salt, one tablespoon of lard or other shortening, boiling water. Scald the mean; add the salt and shortening, and when the mixture is cool form into oblong cakes, adding more water if necessary. Wrap the cakes in cabbage leaves, or place one cabbage leaf under the cakes and one over them, and cover them with hot ashes.

Hoecake.—Hoecakes are made of corn meal, water, and salt. Originally they were baked before an open fire on a board which for convenience had a long handle atached to it. At present they are cooked slowly and on both sides on a well-greased griddle.

Corn Dodger.—The corn dodger is like the ash cake except it usually contains a small amount of butter or lard. The meal is scalded and when cool is formed into cakes and cooked in a hot oven.

Corn Pone.—Two cups corn meal, one-third cup water, one-third cup sour milk or buttermilk, one-fourth teaspoon soda, one-fourth cup wheat flour, one teaspoon salt, one tablespoon sugar, two teaspoons baking powder. Pour the water and milk over the corn meal in a double boiler and cook a few moments, or boil the water and pour it over the corn meal and then add the buttermilk. Sift together the flour, salt, sugar, baking powder, and soda, and add to the corn meal when it is cool. The mixture should be just stiff enough to make into cakes or "pones." If it is stiffer than this, add a little water. Form into cakes and place in a hot, well-greased pan and bake in a hot oven until brown. The cakes should be handled lightly and not pressed down after they have been placed in the pan.

Sour-Milk Corn Bread.—Two cups corn meal, two cups sour milk, two tablespoons butter, two tablespoons sugar, white or brown, one and one-half teaspoons salt, two eggs, one teaspoon soda, one tablespoon cold water. There are two ways of mixing this bread. By the first the meal, milk, salt, butter, and sugar are cooked in a double boiler for about ten minutes. When the mixture is cool, the eggs are added well beaten and the soda dissolved in the water. By the other method all the dry ingredients, including the soda, are mixed together, and then the sour milk and eggs well beaten and the butter are added. If the second method is followed, the cold water is not needed. The bread should be baked in a shallow iron or granite pan for about 30 minutes.

Crackling Bread.—One quart corn meal, one pint cracklings, three teaspoons salt, boiling water. Mix the corn meal and salt; pour over this mixture enough boiling water to moisten but not enough to make a mush. When the meal has cooled, work the cracklings into it with the fingers. Form the dough into cakes about four inches long, two inches wide and one inch thick; bake for thirty minutes. This bread, because of its large percentage of fat, is eaten without butter, and should be served very hot. "Cracklings," like "scraps," is a name given to the crisp, brown meat tissue left after lard is "tried out." They consist of connective tissue with a large amount of fat adhering to it. Much of the fat can be removed by pressure. This is best done by squeezing them in a thin cloth while they are still warm or after they have been reheated. Because of the large amount of fat in this bread, it is better food for persons who are working hard out of doors than for those of sedentary occupations. It makes 12 cakes.

Crisp Cornmeal Cake.—Three cups milk, one teaspoon salt, one and one-half cups corn meal. Mix the ingredients and spread on shallow buttered pans to a depth of about one-fourth of an inch. Bake in a moderate oven until crisp.

Spider Corn Bread.—One and one-half cups corn meal, two cups sour milk, one teaspoon soda, one teaspoon salt, two eggs, two tablespoons butter. Mix the dry ingredients. Add the eggs well beaten and the milk. Place the butter in a frying pan, melt it, and grease the pan well. Heat the pan and turn in the mixture. Place in a hot oven and cook 20 minutes. This serves six people.

Sweet Milk Corn Bread.—Two cups Yellow corn meal, one cup wheat flour, two cups milk, one-half cup sugar, one teaspoon salt, two eggs, three teaspoons baking powder. Sift together the corn meal, flour, sugar, scalt, and baking powder. Add the eggs well beaten and the milk and bake one-half hour in a moderate oven. In this case, as in the recipe for the sour milk corn bread, the corn meal can be cooked for a short time with the milk if a softer bread is desired. This serves eight people.
