MIDSUMMER days are luring surprisingly few people to mountain and beach resorts this summer, for many have a duty and so far this season it has kept her at home. The fad of the keeping of artistic flower gardens and her duty is to sit in the gardens and knit and knit and then ply her needles for more war relief work. The gardening is not extensive, almost simple it would seem to professional, but many women of taste are choosing even the smallest spots and devoting their energies to its artistic arrangement. One of the prettiest places of Salem is "Hollyhock Cottage," the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Burghardt, Jr., 360 Union street. The garden is one of the daintiest and so choice are the hollyhock blooms that western connoisseurs are giving them recognition. Mrs. Clifford Brown and Mrs. Frederick D. Thielens also have very pretty gardens. To add further to this interest, the women have been taking pictures of these places of beauty and Mrs. Brown has made them even more realistic by tinting them cleverly. Some of the snap shots will ultimately find their way to the boys "over there," furnishing some relief in the somber trenches. For the use of soldiers for hospital purposes, the late Mrs. Samuel Alexander, a cousin of Mrs. W. P. Lord of this city, has left her handsome estate in Piedmont. Mrs. Alexander passed away July 7. Mrs. Alexander was formerly a society leader of the bay cities and her home is one of the most beautiful places in northern California. It comprises five acres and is all a garden place. Besides the garden and home, the Red Cross will also be the beneficiary of all the automobiles and equipment. Mrs. Alexander had been active in Red Cross work since the beginning of the war. Some years ago she received a hip injury and since then had been at home most of the time. Her place was valued at between $200,000 and $300,000. She left a son and three daughters. Her husband, who was a sugar king in Honolulu, was killed while hunting in Africa. The oldest daughter gives her time to farm interests, owning an island in the Sacramento river.

STYLE AND COMFORT MOST IMPORTANT IN CORSETS

Some corsets merely afford style without comfort. Others afford comfort without style. What every woman wants is correct style, plus real physical comfort. Every woman can enjoy this combination in the new models we are showing in the line of

A much welcomed visitor in Salem since Friday, has been Tom Ordemann, a gifted singer who has returned to the west for the summer, following a winter's stay in New York City. While there he studied voice under E. X. Arons. Mr. Ordemann claims Salem as his home and for a couple of summers appeared in out-of-doors concerts in Willson park with the Cherrian band. Last winter in New York he was presented in a concert in Aeolian hall, where he received an ovation. He will return to New York in October. Mr. Ordemann will leave today for Portland.

AFTER many weeks and months of vigil and waiting, Governor and Mrs. Withycombe are anticipating the homecoming of their son, Earl Withycombe, who has been ill in Reed hospital, Washington, D. C., since the first of the year. When taking

Mrs. H. B. Thielens and Mrs. C. P. Bishop passed Thursday in Woodburn where they were party guests.

Mrs. Sam A. Kozer of the Court apartments is entertaining as her guest, her mother, Mrs. B. A. Beecher, and her sister, Mrs. Frank G. Pritchard of Portland.

Mr. and Mrs. George Haack and Mr. and Mrs. Louis W. Josse motored to Salem Thursday for a visit with their mother, Mrs. Pauline Josse. Mrs. Haack and her children, Gordon and Cleo, will remain in Salem until the middle of the week, but the other motorists returned to Portland the following day. Mrs. Josse is giving up her home in this city and expects to leave in about a week for Portland where she will live with her daughter, Mrs. Haack.

Mrs. C. D. Gabrielson and her small grandson, Robert Chauncey Bishop, are still at Palo Alto, Calif., where they went some weeks ago to be near Lieutenant Carl Gabrielson who is stationed at Camp Fremont. They will probably remain until over seas orders come to Lieutenant Gabrielson.

Mrs. John Withycombe (Ilda Jones) of Lake Labish, has been entertaining as her guests for several days, Mrs. L. Eugene Robinson and her 3 year old daughter, Phoebe, of Corvallis for several days. They returned home yesterday.

Mrs. Merrill Moores (Gertrude Jones) arrived Monday from Portland and will be a guest of her sister, Mrs. Withycombe, indefinitely. She returned from the east where she was with her husband, prior to his sailing for war service in France. She was also with him during his training in Texas and later in Chicago.

Following the Roberts-Harding nuptials last Sunday afternoon, Miss Mildred Kruse passed a short visit in Salem as a guest at the homes of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Jones and Dr. R. M. Roberts. Miss Kruse was bridesmaid to the bride, Ethel Harding Roberts. Professor and Mrs. Roberts have been passing their honeymoon in Newport, Albany and other valley points.

Four machines conveyed a picnic group of motorists to Willson springs last night, where they are remaining until tonight, for an outing. In the party were Dr. and Mrs. H. H. Olin, Mr. and Mrs. G. G. Brown, Mr. and Mrs. Milton L. Meyers, Mrs. Dan Fry, Jr. (Rita Steiner), Mr. and Mrs. Frank W. Durbin, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Dancy and Mr. and Mrs. John Coughell.

Miss Anna Parks, of Pleasant Hill, Or., is passing several weeks as a guest at the Stephen A. Stone home on South Commercial street. She is an aunt of Mrs. Stone. The Stone home was brightened Friday with the arrival of a little son, Stephen A. Stone, Jr. This is the second son in the Stone family, little Jerry Stone having arrived in December, 1916.

Miss Mabel Boardman, the only woman on the executive board of the American Red Cross, who has just returned from a visit of inspection abroad, answers the question, "What sort of women workers should go to Europe?" Miss Boardman says:

"Those who are absolutely representative of the best American womanhood should be sent abroad. Our women over there in relief work represent the whole United States to our allies and to our own soldiers. They must be women of strong character, who are able to face abnormal conditions, who possess perfect health and an infinite amount of tact. This is no adventure, but the hardest of hard work. The canteen workers, for instance, must be ready at any time during the day or night to be on duty when troop trains are routed through."

"When a woman says to me, 'I want to go to France to do executive work,' I feel doubtful of her success. But when a woman says, 'I want to go to France to do any sort of work that may be expected of me—I am willing to do anything,' I feel that she is the material out of which a possible executive may be made. The woman workers must be able to obey orders and to work under rigid discipline."

"Many persons have wondered why we have sent American women for canteen work instead of American men who are not in the army, or English and French women who are already over there. In the first place, the rolling canteens near the front are conducted by men. The canteens on the line of communication are conducted by women because it has been felt that their presence is an encouragement to the soldiers. In the second place, French women would not be able to understand the soldiers, and neither they nor the English women would represent 'home' to our men, which is the most essential thing. Again and again canteen workers told me that soldiers entering the canteen stopped in the doorway with amazement at the sight of them, and seemed deeply touched and strengthened by finding that the American women had come so far to help.

"One of the great reasons why it is necessary to send American women abroad is the atmosphere they throw about the canteens and hospital huts. Men build houses; women make homes. I remember in this connection a hospital ward which the women nurses had made especially homelike. They had utilized every sort of receptacle for flower vases. Even Boche helmets were filled with forget-me-nots, and tin cans covered by old straw hats were used for field buttercups."

"The greatest thing I brought back from my trip was that we must take 'home' to our boys over there. We can do it partly by making our letters just as full of cheerful home news and normal life as possible."

Miss Ruth Schultz, the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Schultz, 1235 E street, is awaiting a call as a yeomanette of the United States navy. Some months ago she enlisted in the stenographic department and recently learned that she has passed the examinations and is subject to call. She will probably leave within three weeks or a month, and expects to be at Bremerton. Miss Schultz was graduated with the 1917 class of Salem high school. Like her sister, Miss Mary Schultz, who is in New York City, she is an accomplished musician. During the year she has appeared in several piano recitals.

Mrs. Sol Levy and her daughter, Miss Elizabeth Levy, are enjoying an outing at Seaside where they have been for a week.

Miss Jean Belle is leaving for Seattle where she will remain for a couple of weeks.

Little Miss Maxine Glover, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Glover, will remain until Tuesday in Portland where she is enjoying an extended stay with Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Hunt.

Mrs. C. D. Purdy has been visiting her sister, Mrs. G. A. Rockwell in Portland.

Mrs. S. R. Van visited with relatives in Portland during the week, returning Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Eakin of La Grande are the happy parents of a little son, born to them Thursday. The little one weighs seven pounds and is a brother of Robert Edward Eakin, the first son, who is three and a half years old. The mother was Miss Netta Kiddie, before her marriage and attended Willamette university.

For the pleasure of three hundred or more students who remain at the Chemawa Indian school during the summer, Miss Alice Judd gave a program of songs and readings at the school auditorium, Thursday night. Her selections included patriotic and Indian songs.

Mrs. Ralph R. Matthews (Blanche Brown) is expected in Salem, Tuesday night from Cushing, Oklahoma, to visit her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Brown, 230 South Commercial street. She will remain for the summer. Mrs. Matthews was popular with the young folks in Salem, before her marriage, six years ago. Following her sojourn in Salem she will join her husband at Wood River, Ill., who is the chief chemist of the Roxana Petroleum company.

Coming as a surprise to her many friends in this city was the marriage Saturday evening, July 6, of Miss Leila Lent, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. E. Lent of Lents, and Carl Wimberly of Roseburg, says last night's Portland Telegram. The wedding took place at the home of the bride's parents at 10 o'clock, Dr. Oswald W. Taylor, rector of Grace Memorial Episcopal church, officiating in the
